INTERESTING among the various rumors in circulation was the revival of the old story to the effect that a deal was pending for the purchase of the New York Theatre property on the east side of Broadway, from 44th to 45th st, as a site for a skyscraper hotel. Charles P. Taft was reported to be financially interested in the transaction. No confirmation of the rumor could be obtained. It is confidently believed, however, by realty men that this particular property will eventually be improved with a big hotel.

PRODUCTION OF ANTHRACITE COAL.

1912 Output of Hard Coal Exceeded 75,000,000 Long Tons.

The production of anthracite coal in Pennsylvania in 1912 was 75,310,049 long tons, valued at the mines at $177,767,054, an average price of $2.36 a ton, according to figures just compiled by Edward W. Parker, coal statistician of the United States Geological Survey. This is a smaller production than in 1911 by 5,461,439 tons, but the value is greater by $2,814,619. The smaller production in 1912 was due entirely to the suspension of mining operations during April and part of May. Except for this the year's output would probably have been a record breaker. The shortage created by the suspension is estimated by Mr. Parker at about 10,500,000 tons. The new agreement reached with the miners provided for an advance of 10 per cent. on all wages over and above those established by the original Strike Commission and for the abolition of the sliding scale. To meet this advance and other expenses the operators advanced the prices of prepared sizes of coal 25 cents a ton, with the exception of chestnut coal, which had been advanced the previous year.

The average price at the mines for anthracite in 1912, as shown by the returns of the Geological Survey, was $2.36 a long ton, compared with $2.17 in 1911, $2.12 in 1910, $2.06 in 1909, and $2.13 in 1908. The previous highest average price for anthracite in recent years was in 1903, when it was $2.28 a long ton.

An interesting feature of Mr. Parker's statement is that there is at the present time a market for almost any grade of coal that will burn. No more coal goes to the culm piles except for temporary storage and subsequent recovery by washeries. The old culm banks themselves are contributing their share to the total production, and these unsightly monuments to former waste are rapidly disappearing. Even the waste from the culm-bank washeries is being made to serve a useful purpose by flushing into the mines, partly filling old workings, where it cements together and furnishes supports to the roof while the coal previously left for pillars is removed. This utilization of the waste prevents, too, the injury to farm lands in the valleys, a serious cause of complaint among the farmers when, as in earlier days, the waste from the washeries was spread over their lands in flood seasons. The recovery from the culm banks and the output of small sizes from freshly-mined coal constitute about 40 per cent. of the total quantity of anthracite sent to the market.

In this connection it is interesting to note the circular price for anthracite at the mines for the different sizes. Buckwheat, rice, and barley sizes, which were formerly thrown away, are now sold.

Circular Prices for Anthracite at the Mines in 1911 and 1912, per Long Ton.

Size	1911.	1912.
Lump	$3.50	$3.50
Steamboat	3.00	3.00
Broken (furnace)	3.50	3.50
Egg	3.75	3.75
Stove	3.75	4.00
Chestnut	4.00	4.15
Pea	2.00	2.50
Buckwheat	1.50	1.50
Rice	.538	.634
Barley	.339	.388

The figures presented by Mr. Parker indicate that the average value per ton for all sizes of anthracite in 1912 was $2.36, or 29 cents above the mining cost, after the agreement for 10 per cent. increase in wages went into effect, while the average value per ton in 1911 was 23 cents above the mining cost.

The New West Side Pier.

The Sinking Fund Commission has approved plans submitted by Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith for the construction of a 1,000-foot pier, with slips 630 feet wide on each side, at the foot of 46th street and the North River.

This pier is intended to be the beginning of the improvement which the city has decided upon between 44th and 56th streets, to accommodate the great ocean express liners.

Upon the request of Commissioner Smith, the Sinking Fund Commission authorized the beginning of condemnation proceedings on May 21, when a public hearing will be given. The Dock Commissioner estimates the cost of the pier and a shed 1,200 feet long at $2,735,000. The estimate of the cost of property to be taken is $911,000; of excavation, $600,000; of the construction of the pier, $422,000, and of the shed, $802,000.

Loans on Concrete

The banker wants to be convinced before he ventures to make a loan on concrete buildings.

The question is chiefly one of lack of knowledge of the facts. Present facts proving that concrete is a material of established merit, and the loan is generally allowed.

We can provide the facts and prove the merit of concrete to anyone contemplating the construction of an industrial building.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE REPAIRS.

While Repaving Is Going on, One Roadway Is Closed to Slow Traffic.

Bridge Commissioner Arthur J. O'Keeffe has given notice that, owing to repairs to the pavements of the north roadway of the Brooklyn Bridge, consisting of relaying new granite block on concrete on the Brooklyn approach, the north roadway would be closed to all vehicular traffic, except passenger automobiles, for a period of about two weeks. Horse drawn and other slow-moving vehicles cannot be allowed on that roadway during repairs, as the only available space will be that used by trolley cars, and slow-moving vehicles would cause congestion and delay the movement of the cars. Signs have been posted stating that the roadway is closed to ordinary traffic. Emergency wagons or fire apparatus are allowed to use the bridge if necessary, but ordinary vehicular traffic going to Manhattan is being diverted over the Manhattan Bridge.

The present pavement at the Brooklyn end of the bridge has been in use for a great many years. It has been possible before to make the necessary complete replacements, owing to the immense volume of traffic which had to be taken care of. The existence of the Manhattan Bridge so close to the approach of the Brooklyn Bridge makes it possible now to divert vehicular traffic and complete necessary repairs in a thorough and workmanlike manner. Trolley traffic over the structure will not be interrupted.

Upon the completion of repairs to the north roadway, repairs will be made on the south roadway of the Brooklyn approach and that roadway will then be closed to vehicles coming from Manhattan. But one roadway, however, will be closed at a time.

Activities in South Ozone.

Coincident with the springtime activity in real estate in the town, South Ozone, Queens Borough, is being improved physically at a rapid pace. The Rockaway Boulevard has already been asphalted, a new moving picture and vaudeville theatre will be finished by July 1, and a little later the new town hall and clubhouse will be completed. Work on the new $175,000 school building will soon be under way and by fall it is expected that the new trolley line from the village to 59th street, Manhattan, will be ready to carry passengers to that point for a five-cent fare.

Clifford B. Moore, chief engineer in charge of the Topographical Bureau of the Borough President's office of Queens, has announced that the field work necessary in connection with the preparation of the final map affecting South Ozone and vicinity has been completed. The office force is at present engaged in making the necessary computations which will permit of the actual drafting of the maps.

During the past week, representatives of the General Gas Light Company of No. 46 West Broadway, Manhattan, have been signing contracts with business men of the town for bright gas lights in front of their stores and inside of them. Almost all of the business men of the town have engaged lights.

In addition to the stores mentioned, the D. P. Leahy Realty Company has contracted for the erection of a four-light ornamental iron column at the corner of Lincoln avenue and Rockaway Boulevard and a two-light column in front of its office at Boss avenue and Rockaway Boulevard. It is the intention of the business men to make the boulevard a local Broadway in the matter of illumination.

The Refrigeration Show.

The Austrian Association of Refrigeration has been carrying on an active propaganda in order to secure a large representation at the third International Congress of Refrigeration to be held at Chicago in September. On behalf of the Austrian government, Herr K. K. Sectionchief, Dr. Siegmund Brosche and Herr K. K. Ministerial Secretary Dr. Alfred Grunberger will attend the Congress. On behalf of the state railways Ministerial Concillor Ladislaus Miller, Dr. Franz Dreschka, Chief Engineer Emil Cimonetti and Imperial Concillor Engineer Franz Gerstner are named as Congress members. The marine section of the imperial war ministry will also be represented. On behalf of the Austria Lloyds, Chief Inspector Robert Dussich and Inspector Dr. Friedrich Paugger will take part in the Congress. It is probable also that the city of Vienna will send official delegates.

The Land Movement in Nassau County.

The most notable increase in assessed valuations in Nassau county, so far as homes for the middle class of population are concerned, is in its southern or level half. The reason for this circumstance is that the largest communities are in the territory, they are growing rapidly and closely together, busy trolley roads afford frequent intercommunication and the lines of the Long Island Railroad, the Main Line and the Montauk division—have materially improved the efficiency of their train service. Grater accessibility attracts new population and the two combined are the promoters of real estate values that are unassailable.

When the electrification of the Main Line of the railroad to Hempstead took place, five years ago, there was only a comparatively slight influx of newcomers to that old community. The place was primarily a home center for well-to-do New York business men who had plenty of time to travel between their homes and their places of business. The rapidity or slowness of railroad service was an inconsequential factor with them. As the Long Island Railroad Company determined on a plan of general improvement to its system, land operators saw in the Hempstead plains section an opportunity to expand the residential area of the village of Hempstead along modern lines; and, it is safe to say that the great structural changes in Hempstead in recent years have been in its outlying sections.

The land movement has been and is now in the same areas. Illustrative of the fact is the large land development south of the old part of Hempstead and along the line of the trolley to Freeport, made by the Windsor Land and Improvement Co., and the extensive movement of vacant land between Hempstead and Garden City. Structural improvements have followed on the heels of land development and the circumstance tends still further to expand the residential area. Every improvement aids values proportionately. It is these conditions, taken as an entity, that caused the Long Island Railroad Co. to find it worth while to erect a spacious new station at Hempstead. For practically the same reasons the company erected a new station at Floral Park. The growth at Garden City, while along different lines than at either Hempstead or Floral Park, has been caused by the general expansion of Hempstead. The latter town is becoming less and less exclusive because its business center depends for trade and its increase on the middle class and because the railroad facilities have brought and are bringing that element of population. Where railroad facilities are fine exclusive communities are carved out of virgin territory and these draw new residents from older centers.

Fire Engineers' Exposition.

For the forty-first time the foremost firefighters of the United States and Canada, reinforced by many of their brethren from other countries, will meet in their annual convention, Monday, September 1, and throughout the week at the Grand Central Palace. The Metropolitan convention will be marked by the accompaniment of an exposition of all appliances, processes and auxiliaries for preventing and extinguishing fires and protecting property against them.

The International Association of Fire Engineers is composed of the fire chief of every large city in the United States and Canada; and the chiefs have voted to make the convention the most notable in the history of their association and so far as their ability goes to make their fire show so good that it could not be better. The president of the general committee and chairman of the exhibition and program committee is Fire Commissioner Joseph Johnson. Chief John Kenlon is vice-president of the general committee. To insure expert management, Messrs. Stephen M. Van Allen and William J. Poth, proprietors of New York's Annual Sportsman's Show and until recently managers of Madison Square Garden, have been retained to manage the exposition.

In the convention will be read interesting and valuable papers on every phase of fire-fighting and preventive precautions and there will be conferences participated in by the fire chiefs and commissioners, architects and construction engineers, the National Fire Protection Association and the National Board of Fire Underwriters. The exposition will be invested with action by contests and exhibitions, such as hitching, scaling with ladders, hose and life-net work, some of the performances to be spectacular. There will be exhibits of fire apparatus of other days, relics of the volunteer firemen and various educational exhibits.

New inventions, safety devices and fireproof houses for the suburbs and the country will form valuable phases of the show. The exhibits will include displays of fire engines, apparatus and supplies, fire alarms, fire pumps, wrought and cast-iron water pipe; iron, steel and concrete construction, fire insurance, horse shoes, fireproof building materials, asbestos, patent exit bolts, metal doors and windows, cement, concrete and hollow block fireproof garages, brick, iron shutters and doors, granite and other stone, harness, fire extinguishers, fireproof paint, fire hose, iron and fire-escapes, sprinklers, metal ceilings, wire glass, terra cotta, fire brick, fireproof wall paper and uniforms.

Powers, William W. Niles, A. C. Hottenroth, Charles W. Bogart, Louis F. Haffen, Col. Joseph A. Goulden, William S. Germain, and Max Just; treasurer, Carl W. Schmidtke; secretary, Philip J. McKinley.

Rapid Transit Committee: William J. Flynn, chairman; Max Just, F. J. Muhlfeld, James F. Donnelly and Oscar R. Meyer.

Brooklyn "L" Improvement.

The first plans for elevated railroad improvement under the Dual System contracts have been submitted to the Public Service Commission by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit for the proposed connection of the existing Myrtle avenue and Broadway elevated lines in Brooklyn. The Public Service Commission for the First District approved the plans, on the condition that the company will invite competitive bids for the construction work. The plans call for the alteration of the existing structures and their connection so that trains may operate freely from one line to the other.

Fire Resistive Construction.

In presenting the report of the committee on fireproof construction, including concrete and reinforced concrete, to the annual convention of the National Fire Prevention Association, Prof. Ira H. Woolson, chairman of the committee, remarked the prevalence of the idea that there was no such thing as reliable fireproof construction and that it was a part of the work of the committee to endeavor to remove the doubt of the safety of fireproof construction that was worthy of being classified as such.

The committee requested that its title be changed to "committee on fire resistive construction" as the old title was cumbersome and inappropriate. The committee offered a definition of a standard building and specifications for its construction. The committee recommended that window openings exposed by other buildings "within 50 feet shall be protected by approved shutters or outside open sprinklers in addition to the wired-glass windows." This was strongly objected to and the committee was requested to reconsider that point.

Bids Invited for a New Subway Section.

The Public Service Commission for the First District has called for bids, to be opened June 24, for the construction of Section No. 4 of the Broadway-Fourth avenue rapid transit railroad. This railroad will be operated by the New York Municipal Railway Corporation (Brooklyn Rapid Transit) under the Dual System contracts. The Broadway subway is now under construction from Trinity place and Morris street to a point in Broadway midway between Houston and Bleecker streets. Section No. 4 extends from this point north under Broadway to a point 390 feet north of the southerly line of 14th street. It will be a four-track subway, and the section includes a local station at 8th street and half of the express station at Union Square. Working shafts will be located in Union Square, one in Broadway at Waverly place and one in Bond street just off Broadway. These locations are chosen to minimize the interference with traffic and general business during the construction of the subway. The contractors will bid for construction only, which will not include the laying of tracks, or the finish work in stations.

Supporting Party Walls.

Where once buildings stood upon foundations that extended only to the frost line, the insatiable greed for space has led to burrowing forty or fifty feet below the surface, through solid rock, water-bearing sand and what not. This adds to the distractions of the party wall. Excavation, whether by dynamiting, caisson work or in just plain picking and shoveling, is a risk to the wall of brick and mortar. At the very least, it must be supported by "needles" until its foundation is reinforced and the new wall built. Blasting is always a game of chance. No human mind can foresee whether a blast will send a bit of stone four blocks down the street and hit a man on the head, or a horse on the back, causing a runaway; whether it will crack the rock obliquely, running under the building next door and leave it astride a yawning chasm, necessitating a cantilever support. And then when the dynamite has done its best and its worst, there remains the filling in of the chinks in the bed rock with cement or brick to bring the perpendicular surfaces plumb to the very inch.

In many instances, perhaps a majority, it would pay the builder of a modern skyscraper to tear down entirely the party wall and rebuild it at his own expense; he might sometimes better tear down and rebuild the entire building, if he could gain his neighbors consent, which is not easy; and it has sometimes been found to pay to build the new wall entirely outside the old, thus forfeiting the space of half the party wall where every inch has a calculable and considerable value.

These are some of the problems and part of the price of building progress, but they only serve to emphasize the great improvement in the material and methods of this generation over those of the past. Asked to epitomize the improvement, builders answer with one accord—Portland cement.— This has made the steel frame possible, without which no skyscrapers. It has given brick a new lease of life, and increased the value of fireproof tile. In the construction of buildings of enormous cost everything which tends to greater permanency is of vital importance. It would be puerile to think that the last word has yet been spoken in construction methods, but the present generation has a right to considerable pride in its achievement—yet would it not be interesting to hear the comment and criticism of the next?—Melville McPherson in "Building Progress."

Standardizing Salaries of Municipal Engineers.

Last year the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of New York City appointed a committee to standardize the salaries and grades of the entire municipal engineering service. This committee, after preparing tentative gradings for engineering positions, forwarded the data to the Municipal Engineers of the City of New York—an organization of about 600 technical employes in the city's various engineering departments—and requested the society to criticise the gradations in each class and suggest amendments which would be helpful to the Board of Estimate's committee in standardizing engineering salaries. The Municipal Engineers appointed a committee, which issued a report on Dec. 23, 1912. This report was adopted by the society's board of directors and was recommended to the society for approval; then followed a long and animated discussion and finally, after several months of debate, the report was made the subject of a letter ballot. Before the ballot however, it was decided that if more than 100 members voted against the report it should be rejected. The negative votes numbered 112 and the affirmative 146. The report, therefore, was never submitted to the Board of Estimate.

The positions at present in the engineering service are graded by the Municipal Civil Service Commission according to limits of salaries; the limits are fixed as follows, the amount given in each case being the minimum annual salary for the grade: Grade A, $300; grade B, $600; grade C, $1,200; grade D, $1,800; grade E, $2,400. Practically, grades A and B are useless, for no engineering positions are paid so small a salary as $600.

MORRIS PARK SALE.

Begins at 10 This Morning—Auctioneers' Arrangements—Terms of Sale.

At 10 o'clock this (Saturday) morning, in the old Morris Park Clubhouse, Joseph P. Day and J. Clarence Davies will make the necessary preliminary announcements in connection with the auction sale of the famous race track property. A few minutes later, Mr. Day will shout, "How much?" for the first of the 3,019 lots to be sold, and the biggest realty selling event in the World's History will be under way. It is expected that the sale will continue for ten days.

For succeeding days, beginning Monday, it is the plan to begin selling at 10 A. M.. There will be a recess from 1 o'clock to 1.45, when the sale will be continued. After another recess, the evening session will last from about 7.45 to 10 o'clock.

While it has been the intention to suit as far as possible the convenience of those who will attend the sale, there has never been an offering of this magnitude which might serve as a precedent in this respect. If it becomes apparent that the convenience of a larger number would be suited by some readjustment of the hours of selling, this will be made and due notice will be given.

"As to the probable outcome of the sale," said Joseph P. Day and J. Clarence Davies yesterday, "Nothing has taken place to alter our belief that since the State Banking Department has authorized the sale of every one of these 3,019 lots, low prices must prevail."

"What might be regarded as a fair number of inquiries for an offering of ordinary proportions have been received, but it would be useless to try to gauge the volume of interest in a sale of more than 3,000 lots by the standards we have been accustomed to use in connection with offering of 300 or 400. There have been people up to look at the property. Yes, but with an area of 300 acres, accessible by half a dozen different routes, any estimate of their number would be nothing more than the wildest sort of a guess. There is only one logical prediction as to the result of the Morris Park sale, and that is that any attempt to sell 3,019 lots within a few days at the end of the dullest Spring season the real estate market has known in years is bound to yield bargains.

"Consider, also, in this connection the fact that 70% of the purchase price may remain on mortgage and it must be apparent to any one that this sale will afford an unparalleled opportunity for the small investor to realize handsome profits on a minimum cash outlay."

All is in readiness for the sale and it is believed that more satisfactory accommodations have been arranged for than for any similar event in the past. The ground floor of the old clubhouse makes a splendid salesroom for those who desire to attend the sale. Broad aisles will make entrance and exit easy, while plenty of space in other parts of the building has also made possible various other innovations, such as an information bureau, a special room for the signing of papers and the installation of numerous telephones for the use of those who may wish to keep in communication with their homes or offices.

The real cost to you, of an ownership service, lies in its errors.

Each error costs youanywhere from $1.00 to $1000, in lost time and opportunity. We can furnish you with an almost perfect system. A really good service is very expensive to prepare and we cater only to those who want the BEST.

Information Useful to Property Owners.

(Republished, with amendments, by request.)

Questions submitted to Borough President Miller and Answers thereto relating to Removal of Encroachments on Third, Tremont and Washington Avenues.

1. Will owners be notified personally of any violations affecting encroachments on their property?

A. Yes.

2. Will existing cellar entrances outside building lines be permitted, if covered?

A. Existing entrances to cellars beyond building lines will be permitted, if covered by iron doors, or gratings, level with sidewalk, not exceeding three feet by four feet in area, and if existing steps or stairs outside the building line leading to basement or cellar are removed and straight iron engineers' ladders substituted to afford access to basement or cellar.

3. Will ornamental pilasters, columns, water tables, sills or lintels be permitted beyond building line less than ten feet above curb level, which if removed would destroy the architectural effect of buildings?

A. The following projections beyond building line will be permitted for ornamental projections less than ten feet above curb level. Four inches for pilasters or ornamental columns of doorways; six inches for bases of such pilasters or columns; two inches for water tables, sill, lintels and ornamental courses. These projections do not include any steps above or below curb level. The projections permitted beyond building lines on Third, Tremont and Washington avenues in front of existing buildings will be of the same dimension, character and materials as are now permitted by the regulations governing projections outside building lines in front of new buildings on all streets in this Borough.

4. Will show windows or drop awnings be permitted?

A. No projections of show windows beyond building lines will be permitted. All permanent awnings or marquees of iron and glass must be not less than ten feet above sidewalk.

5. Will retaining walls built by the City outside building line be required to be removed and replaced at building line at the expense of the property owners?

A. The opinion of the Corporation Counsel will be obtained upon this question and the property owners notified thereof.

6. Will all kinds of signs or building projections over ten feet above sidewalk be permitted?

A. All signs over ten feet above sidewalk complying with provisions of ordinances will be permitted. Porticos or hoods over doorways, cornices over store fronts, and roof cornices, band courses, sills, lintels and other ornamental projections will be permitted over ten feet above sidewalk.

7. Will projections of vault roofs, steps, cellar entrances and area coverings above sidewalk level be ordered lowered to conform to ordinance governing pitch of sidewalk from building line to curb?

A. The usual rule will be that vault roofs, steps, cellar entrances and area coverings must be lowered to conform to sidewalk level.

8. Will doors outside building line over entrances to basements and cellars be allowed to be kept open and obstruct the sidewalk, referring particularly to the use of basements and cellars by icemen and others; the courts have held that they can be kept open if protected during use thereof, usually meaning a considerable part of the day?

A. As all steps to cellars and basements outside building line are prohibited and must be removed (see answer to question No. 2) the doors to cellars and basements permitted outside building line must be kept closed except when actually in use for access to cellar or basement by tenants of stores on ground floors by means of engineers' ladders. When closed, these doors being constructed of iron and set flush with sidewalk will cause no obstruction to sidewalk.

(Signed) CYRUS C. MILLER,
President of the Borough of The Bronx.

THOMAS HASTINGS of the firm of Carrere & Hastings, New York, delivered a lecture on modern architecture at the Royal Institute of British Architects on May 27. Mr. Hastings prophesied that the time must come when architects of necessity would be educated in the style of their own time and expressed the belief that we should one day rejoice in the dawn of a modern renaissance, in which we should see the architect solving new problems and adapting his art to the honest and natural treatment of new material and conditions.

BUSINESS NEWS

A Weekly Summary of New Catalogues and Bulletins and of Articles Appearing in Current Periodicals of Interest to Architects, Building Managers, Contractors and Realty Interests.

A New Fenestra Catalog.

The Detroit Steel Products Co., of Detroit, announces that it has ready for distribution on application a copy of its new catalog "V" for 1913. The book is undoubtedly a master-piece of its kind and it should be in every architect's office. The company has gone to considerable expense in the matter of producing very high grade working blueprints, showing the construction of its improved sash and giving tables that the architect will find very handy for reference purposes. In addition the book contains very excellent photographic and text descriptions of installations it has made in which some of the most difficult lighting and ventilating problems have been solved by the use of Fenestra sash. Copies of this book may be obtained by addressing the company at 1 Madison avenue.

How Natural Cement is Made.

Natural cement is a pure hydraulic cement manufactured principally in the County of Ulster, New York, and notably in the towns of Rosendale where large quantities of magnesian limestone or cement rock is found. All this information and a great deal more concerning this building commodity is contained in a new booklet just issued by the Rosendale Natural Cement Co., of 50 Church street.

The booklet has for its object a desire to give architects some definite information regarding natural hydraulic cement, and particularly the different virtues of the "Brooklyn Bridge," "Norton" and "Hoffman" brands and shows the analysis of same. In reference to the argument frequently used to the effect that natural cement does not attain a high tensile strength as quickly as Portland, the booklet says that while this is true, the manufacturers claim that this is an advantage rather than a detriment, in that it admits of more elasticity, hence less tendency to crack, and also results in a steady, unbroken and prolonged hardening, which has without doubt a continuance for many years and which is a far greater factor of safety than an early high set. Using 29 per cent. of water, the initial set for neat cement is 20 minutes and the final set 40 minutes.

Space does not permit of extensive quotation of the facts contained in the booklet, but it is full of such valuable information and such fine photographic reproductions of buildings in which this cement has been used that it is commended to the attention of architects, owners and builders for their perusal.

Model Country Homes.

A. L. A. Himmelwright, M. Am. Soc. C. E., etc., for 14 years general manager of the Roebling Construction Co., is issuing through the Neale Publishing Co., New York, one of the most practical books on modern fireproof houses and country homes which has come to our attention. The book is divided into many classifications, the author speaking as a consulting engineer to his client in the spirit of giving practical advice. The first part deals with location, water supply, drainage, excavating and grading. Under the caption "The Plans" are these headings, general construction, cellar story, first story, second story and third story. Under the heading "Practical Suggestions" are to be found items concerning building materials, work to be done by contract and manner of carrying on the work. Next comes a description of a model sixteen-room building, divided into cellar plan, ground floor plan, second floor plan, third floor plan, detail plans, special features, schedule of quantities and costs, and the garage.

Regarding the specifications the author divides the subject into general conditions, mason work, carpenter work, roofing, plumbing, painting, notes on structural steel and notes on fireproof construction. When it comes to construction schedules of materials the author gives a memorandum of furring blocks required, a list of pipe sizes, door and window sills, door bucks, window frames, glass required, approximate sizes of frame shutters and blind openings, a memorandum of doors required and names and addresses of reliable concerns who furnish materials for these model buildings. The book also contains practical suggestions for buildings of the kind Mr. Himmelwright describes.

In presenting his book Mr. Himmelwright makes this statement in a foreword: "This volume is not a compilation nor the exposition of any pet ideas or theories which are often found wanting when put in practice; but the presentation of such facts, details and methods as are applicable to buildings of the character referred to and which have been found practical and economical during a long experience in the construction of fireproof buildings."

Copies of this book may be obtained by addressing Mr. Himmelwright at his home at Stockholm, N. J., or by addressing the Neale Company, at 31 East 17th street, New York City.

It contains tables showing prices for use of architects and owners in specifying. Emphasis is made of the special types of sinks made by this company to fit in special places which has long been an important feature of this company's business.

HITS EFFICIENCY THEORIES.

A Municipal Engineer's Sharp Reply to a Lecturer's Argument.

At a discussion before the Brooklyn Engineers Club the subject was "Efficiency in the Design of Commercial Organizations," and an efficiency engineer, H. F. Stimson was making the usual theoretical points for "efficiency" engineering.

He analyzed the organization of any business concern and pointed out that the general manager's is the important position in the organization, and that many organizations are going to the wall because of inefficiency in this office; in other words, that the organizations are dying of heart failure. There is great need in this country, at the present time, for institutions that will educate men to be managers; to study man and his forces and then to instruct individuals how to direct these forces of men toward certain definite ends. This field, he said, is completely neglected in our present scheme of education.

A lengthy and animated discussion followed. Charles R. Ward, chief engineer of the Brooklyn Topographical Bureau, said:

"This country has gone wild over this new theory of efficiency. It seems to me that this subject is advocated in many instances simply to distract the attention of the public from inefficient officials. In this city we have the Commissioners of Accounts' office, which is supposed to be a body of experts who oversee and criticise the various departments. This bureau costs the taxpayers of this city over $100,000 for examining the office of one Borough President, and to my knowledge no good result has been obtained from their examination. Not one of their recommendations has been put in practice. Their policy seems to be destructive instead of constructive. It is easy to criticise others, but it is a different matter to work out practicable methods whereby the city business may be conducted economically.

"We have also the Bureau of Municipal Investigation and Statistics. This bureau reports upon all applications for city money and they are trying to do good work. A new Bureau of Efficiency has just been established by the city and the first official work accomplished by this bureau has been the increasing of the salaries of the men at the head of this bureau 100 per cent. This is a sample of efficiency generally produced by our experts.

"We have also a new bureau established, called the Committee on Standardization of Salaries. This committee expects, by the use of various civil service records, to standardize the pay and work of about 40,000 city employees. This committee will probably cost the taxpayers many thousands of dollars, and as this administration is rapidly drawing to a close, it is safe to assume that the next administration will discard the work done by this committee.

"It is ludicrous for a construction engineer to watch the frantic efforts of our efficiency experts in their endeavor to standardize the cost of cleaning catchbasins throughout the city. We have also witnessed the elaborate theory enunciated by the experts as to the proper number of scrub-women required to clean the municipal buildings, irrespective of the character and use made of the buildings. Their minds appear to dwell upon the minutest detail, and they seem to forget the big things which are constantly being adopted and will eventually bankrupt our city. All the cost data and time cards in the world could not save the city the amount of money which the new issue of $45,000,000 corporate stock, at 4½ per cent., will saddle the city with; it is the greatest interest paid by the city since the panic, and the added interest of one-fourth per cent. over the previous issuance will cost the city over $5,600,000. A slight increase in the interest received by the city for the millions of dollars on deposit in our sinking fund account would pay the salaries of hundreds of efficiency experts.

Says City Squanders Thousands on Expert Advice.

"During the last few years the city has squandered thousands of dollars upon the advice of experts, for new typewriting machines, new time cards, new cost data cards, etc. Dozens of additional clerks have been employed to take care of this new system and what has the city gained by it? Has any use been made of the cost data, or has it resulted in making clerks out of a large number of laborers? There is plenty of opportunity for the proper kind of efficiency in all large cities. Take for example, the East River bridges, which cost many millions of dollars, and remained idle for years. Efficient management could have saved the taxpayers enormous sums in this case alone.

"Our Brooklyn subway loop, which cost the city $10,000,000, has remained idle for years. The South Brooklyn dock property, which cost over $10,000,000; the Eighth Ward Market, which cost $1,000,000, and dozens of other cases which can be mentioned, demonstrate why I say we need efficient elected officials instead of efficiency experts."

Charles A. Somner, an engineer in the Municipal Ferry, agreed with Mr. Ward that efficiency experts, especially those that are to be met in city departments, are not of much value, and he gave several personal experiences to prove his point.

Henry B. Seaman, former chief engineer of the Public Service Commission, found fault with the system of efficiency engineering, which title he said is a misnomer anyway, because it makes man a mere machine, entirely disregarding his spiritual side. He was of the opinion that more and better work would be obtained from a body of men who were happy and contented with their work than would be obtained from these men if they were dissatisfied, no matter how efficient the organizations under which they were working. The greater co-operation, he said, will be obtained in the organization in which the men are most happy and contented with their work.

BREAKS ALL CEMENT RECORDS.

Production in 1912 Greatest in History.

The total quantity of Portland, natural, and puzzolan cements produced in the United States in 1912 was 83,351,191 barrels, valued at $67,461,513, compared with 79,547,958 barrels, valued at $66,705,136, in 1911, according to an advance statement by Ernest F. Burchard, of the U. S. Geological Survey just issued. This represents an increase in quantity of 3,803,233 barrels, or 4.78 per cent., and in value of $756,377, or 1.13 per cent.

The distribution of the total production among the three main classes of cement in 1912 is as follows: Portland, 82,438,096 barrels, valued at $67,016,928; natural, 821,231 barrels, valued at $367,222; puzzolan, 91,864 barrels, valued at $77,363.

Production of Portland Cement.

The total production of Portland cement in the United States in 1912, as reported to the United States Geological Survey, was 82,438,096 barrels, valued at $67,016,928, compared with 78,528,637 barrels, valued at $66,248,817, in 1911. The output for 1912 represents an increase in quantity of 3,909,459 barrels, or nearly 4.98 per cent., and in value of $768,111, or 1.13 per cent.

The shipments of Portland cement from the mills in the United States in 1912 are, according to reports received by the Survey, 85,012,556 barrels, valued at $69,109,800, compared with 75,547,829 barrels, valued at $63,762,638, shipped in 1911. The shipments therefore represent an increase in quantity of 9,464,727 barrels, or 12.52 per cent., and in value of $5,347,162, or 8.38 per cent. The average price per barrel in 1912, according to these figures, was a trifle less than 81.3 cents, compared with 84.4 cents in 1911. This represents the value of cement in bulk at the mills, including labor and cost of packing, but not the value of the sacks or barrels. The average price per barrel for the country is about 13.9 cents higher than the average price received for Portland cement in the Lehigh district, where it was sold at the cheapest rate, and is near the average price received in the Iowa-Missouri district, but it falls 54.5 cents below the average price received on the Pacific coast, where Portland cement brought the highest figure during the year.

Stocks on Hand.

Reports were received from nearly all the mills in the United States that shipped any Portland cement in 1912, giving stocks of finished cement on hand December 31, 1912. For the very few mills which did not report this information an estimate, believed to be very close, has been made. The apparent stock on hand at the end of 1912 amounted to 7,811,329 barrels, compared with 10,385,789 barrels on hand at the close of 1911, according to reports and revised estimates, thus indicating a reduction in stock of more than 2,500,000 barrels during 1912.

Imports of Foreign Cement.

The imports and exports of cement are reported to the Survey by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. The statements include all hydraulic cements, also the weights of sacks or barrels. Portland cement probably makes up at least 95 per cent. of the total in each year.

The imports of hydraulic cement in 1912 were approximately 68,503 barrels, valued at $93,558, or about $1.37 a barrel, compared with 164,670 barrels, valued at $242,722, or $1.47 a barrel, in 1911. This decrease in the quantity of cement imported was to be expected in view of the large excess domestic stocks that were marketed at low prices during the year.

Exports Only Small Share of Output.

The United States has a comparatively small export trade in cement. In 1912 the quantity exported was only 4,215,532 barrels, most of which was Portland cement, valued at $6,160,341, or approximately $1.46 a barrel, compared with 3,135,409 barrels, valued at $4,632,215, or about $1.477 a barrel, in 1911. The quantity exported in 1912 was slightly more than 5 per cent of the total production of hydraulic cements in 1912. The exports in 1910, 1911 and 1912 have shown increases of 135, 27, and 26 per cent., respectively, over those of the preceding year.

Usurpation of Streets.

Instances of the usurpation of streets for business purposes are being disclosed daily, and it is the determination of the Comptroller that in all such cases the streets shall be restored to the use of the public.

An investigation has disclosed conditions which may prove much more far-reaching in effect than anything that has yet developed. These relate to land held under grants from the State of New York. These grants for the most part are of two kinds, one known as commerce grants and the other as beneficial enjoyment grants. Under the former it is not permissible to erect other than docks or similar structures upon the land under water, and such a grant does not license the holder to build factories, stores or dwellings.

In other words, the grant is made strictly for the subservience of commerce by the building of docks alone. Notwithstanding this, several cases have come to the attention of the Comptroller, where large factories and other structures used wholly for business purposes have been erected on land acquired under commerce grants. The erection of these buildings was undoubtedly a violation of the terms of the grants, rendering them subject to cancellation and annulment. These cases will be brought to the attention of Atttorney General Carmody, and it is not unlikely that action will be taken in the near future, which will result in the cancellation of the grants in question and the consequent removal of the buildings illegally erected thereon.

EXPLANATION OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1912.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page, is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

NEW YORK, JUNE 7, 1913

THE BIG MORRIS PARK AUCTION SALE

Lots Bought For a Rise, Many of Them By Out-of-Town Investors, At Good Prices—A Week of Remarkable Investment Contrasts.

THE creditors for whose benefit the State Banking Department is liquidating the old Morris Park race track property have reason to be satisfied with the big auction sale that has been under way on the premises since last Saturday. At the time this is being written 1,556 lots have been disposed of for $1,631,000. Ten years ago the financier whose exploits have brought about the present liquidation purchased the tract for $300,000.

If the 1,463 lots that are still to be auctioned off bring the same average price, $1,048, as those already struck down, the sale will realize some $3,150,000. In other words, property bought ten years ago at $1,000 an acre is now selling at better than $1,000 a lot. Yet a large proportion of the lots are as innocent of subsurface street improvements as they were then. This is not saying that the lots are not worth what they are bringing. It is merely a reiteration of a well-known fact: that there is substantial value in real estate on the line of progress of the city's growth.

There are several other notable phases of this sale. Perhaps the most remarkable is that it met with any degree of success at all in a week when security prices on the Stock Exchange reached the lowest point which they have touched since the panic of 1907. At least 5,000 people, quite a sprinkling of them out-of-town investors, were attracted to the sale; and there was capital enough at command to take up an unprecedentedly large offering of vacant lots, while securities went begging because of a world-wide money stringency. This interesting phenomenon is no doubt capable of more than one interpretation. But it is only fair to assume that buyers who have looked forward to a sale for months are acting upon reasoned convictions. Possibly, under existing industrial, political and financial conditions, they deliberately prefer exclusive ownership of concrete property; that is, the demand for lots developed at this sale may be another manifestation of the temper which is seen in the current tendency toward hoarding of money.

As to the prices obtained, there is no evidence yet of the expected "sacrifice." At this writing agents commissioned to pick up genuine bargains have bought very little indeed. The prices paid have turned out to be, on the whole, as fair to the sellers as to the buyers. They show a big recession from boom times, now distant, but they show an advance over valuations of recent years. They could not have been obtained before the dual subway contracts became a certainty last spring. The tax assessments representing market values of last summer average only about 60 per cent. of this week's auction prices.

As a matter of fact, the valuations established at this sale are likely to be accepted as standard for current appraisals. This assertion may not appeal to a certain minority who live entirely in the past and who refuse to recognize that capital values are affected by a general rise in the rates of interest on money. It may be urged that the great number of lots offered have a depressing effect on prices. But, on the other hand, no other lot offering has ever been so extensively or so ably advertised; and any deficiency of local buyers was made up by the presence of out-of-town purchasers, whose investments were on a generous scale. Finally, the sale was an ideal one from the buyer's standpoint. It was announced as absolutely unprotected, and the announcement to this effect was backed by the State Banking Department.

A real estate auction sale which is so notable intrinsically, and which has been so widely advertised—fully one hundred thousand is said to have been spent on publicity—must be an event of significance from different points of view to readers in various occupations and professions; and for this reason we bring together the following comments on it by persons whose opinions carry weight because of special opportunities for observation or of particular knowledge concerning prices, contemplated street improvements, or transportation facilities.

Raises Value of Adjacent Property.

In my opinion the sale is making excellent progress. The prices lots are bringing are remarkable for an auction sale, and they are having a stiffening effect on neighboring property, some owners of which, judging from the prices paid at this sale, have come to the conclusion that they had undervalued their own holdings.

I will cite an instance of my own experience. An owner listed a 45-foot corner near the Morris Park property with me, to sell at $3,500. I procured a purchaser, who agreed to buy at that figure. On the day the contract was to be signed the owner jumped his price to $5,000, based on the prices Morris Park lots were bringing. The result was no sale. He has since shown me an offer of $4,700, which he has refused.

The sale should help The Bronx. Its unquestioned success must establish a great deal of confidence in Bronx real estate. GEORGE PRICE.

Testifies to the Public Confidence.

In response to your request for an opinion regarding the auction sale of the old Morris Park race track now in progress, I would say that I am impressed with the fact that, at this writing, there have been sold to builders and investors more than 1,300 lots, at an average price in excess of $1,000 a lot. If the sale progressed no further, I would still think it a great achievement that testified in a notable way to the underlying public confidence in New York City real estate.

In view of money and general market conditions, the ability and willingness of the public to respond to this sale in so substantial a manner must be exceedingly gratifying to everyone interested, either directly or indirectly, in New York City real estate.

On the other hand, the prices being realized for property, the greater part of which lies on streets graded, curbed and flagged, when reduced to an acreage basis, appears to me to be low in comparison to the prices at which desirable Bronx acreage is being held.

AUSTIN L. BABCOCK,
Of American Real Estate Co.

Immediately Available for Development.

The rapid buying at excellent prices at the Morris Park sale is very significant, because it shows the widespread interest and confidence in real estate in the Borough of The Bronx. This is more marked because at present real estate in New York generally is very quiet. The purchases seem to be made not by speculators but by buyers who intend to build homes.

The effect on the East Bronx of the influx of new home builders will revive activity in a section of the borough which has been dormant for many years. This interest is justified by the rapid transit and industrial railway plans which now are maturing for the locality. The building of trunk line sewers makes these lots immediately available for development.

CYRUS C. MILLER,
Borough President of The Bronx.

Breaks Down a Barrier.

The sale of the Morris Park tract which is now going on has greater significance as to the future of The Bronx than many appreciate.

The growth of The Bronx up to the time of the building of the subways was relatively slow. Its growth then took place in jumps, and big jumps at that. The increase in assessed values, 1899 to 1910, tracing to the operation of the Interborough in the lower Bronx, was 460 per cent. This phenomenal growth was necessarily confined in greater part to the district served by the rapid transit lines.

The opening of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway the early part of last summer made accessible a new section which had heretofore been without transit facilities. The development along its line had reached not much further north than Bear Swamp Road, and only sparsely at that. To the north of this street is the Morris Park tract, which had lain dormant as to development and was in a way a barrier to the further growth to the north.

The sale of this property at prices not fixed by the seller, but by what the purchaser is willing to pay, breaks down the barrier, and is a forerunner of the rapid growth which is bound to follow along the new transit line of the Westchester road. The extension of the Lenox avenue branch of the subway along White Plains road adds a very important factor in the development of this northeastern section of The Bronx, which in a very short period of time will have transit facilities on its western side—the subway extension and the Third avenue elevated; through its center—the Westchester line; and on its easterly side—the Harlem branch of the New Haven road and the Pelham Bay Park extension of the Lexington avenue subway.

The section itself is unsurpassed for residential purposes, located, as it is, on high ground overlooking Pelham Bay, with two big parks, Bronx Park and Pelham Bay Park in the immediate vicinity—playgrounds for the children. Transit facilities it has today, and more not only promised but assured. For its development north of Pelham Parkway it needs in the property owners that same vim and push that has been back of those interested in the sale of the Morris Park tract. It needs the co-operation of these owners to secure the opening of streets, the building of sewers and water mains.

There is a very rapid growth taking place in the commercial and manufacturing center of The Bronx, south of 149th street. The number of factories in that section is rapidly increasing. The people employed in these factories and business houses number many thousands. A large majority of them earn good wages; they want and are entitled to good homes to live in—homes within a short distance of their business—homes where their children can breathe good fresh air and have playgrounds to romp in. It is only a few years ago that the section roundabout Hunts Point avenue and the Southern Boulevard looked more like the country than Morris Park does today. In a very few years the fields have gone and today a great commercial center exists.

It is an example of what has happened within a very few years; it is, I believe, an index of what will happen in a very short period of time in the Morris Park tract and the section to the north.

L. S. MILLER,
Pres. N. Y., W. & B. R. R.

Real Estate Market Contrasted with the Stock Market.

The contrast between conditions on the Stock Exchange and the market for securities, both in the city of New York and in European capitals, and the market for lots in The Bronx, during the last few days, is a very striking tribute to public faith in the value of New York real estate, or to the skill and energy of the advertising campaign which has been industriously carried on for the last few weeks.

It was a bold enterprise to attempt the sale of three thousand lots in the face of the statements by many that there was no market for anything. Apparently the faith of those responsible for the sale is being justified. Today the lots have not yet all been sold, and it is, therefore, too early to discuss the prices which have been and may be obtained.

For a good many years the growth of the city of New York has been at the rate of 150,000 persons a year. Some predict that this growth cannot continue, while others predict that it will continue at the same ratio in increasing numbers. If we could see into the future fifty years we might be as much astonished as our fathers would have been if in 1863 they could see the city of 1913.

LAWSON PURDY,
President Commissioner, Department of Taxes and Assessments.

A Businesslike Crowd.

The noticeable thing about the sentiment of the crowd at the Morris Park sale was its lack of sentiment.

Those who have come to the sale have been told that bargains were to be provided, and they—that is, most of them—have calmly settled back and waited for the goods to be delivered.

It has been so far an intensely businesslike gathering. For a few of the more desirable plots near the northerly end of the property, near the Westchester & Boston station and on Pelham Parkway, and for some of the more prominent corners on Morris Park avenue, the bidding has taken on a spirited character, which caused the whole roomful of people to be interested in the proceedings of the moment. But with these few exceptions the bidders have approached the situation in a most matter-of-fact frame of mind. They apparently came with a pretty good idea of what they wanted to pay and were not greatly moved by the fact that there is soon to be a subway up White Plains avenue or by any other of the prospective advantages of the property. They were buying the property as it is today, but perhaps the important fact is that they bought, and are still buying.

R. M. BRIDGMAN,
Of the Evening Mail.

A Comparison of Prices.

When it was announced about two months ago that the old Morris Park race track was to be offered at absolute auction sale, experienced observers of the market instantly laid emphasis upon two points in connection with this auction announcement:

Will the market, in its present condition of unresponsiveness, be able to absorb the 3,019 lots included in the Morris Park property

If buyers enough to absorb these lots appear at the auction sale, will the net results not be so entirely unsatisfactory as to amount to an unjustifiable sacrifice of a property which, under better market conditions, would undoubtedly excite active bidding and bring large prices?

At the present writing it appears that the entire offering will be absorbed. This in itself is a remarkable circumstance, for never before has so large a property been put on the auction block, and, what is still more significant, no offering of one-fourth this size has ever been made at a time when, both in real estate and financial circles, buyers were so obviously disinterested in salable securities.

With the sale not much more than half through, it is impossible to speak with any degree of finality about prices. The progress made so far, however, reflects beyond question the mood of bidders. Sales show an average price per lot of approximately $1,100. Some lots have sold down as low as $650. In the interior of the tract, both east and west of Morris Park avenue, many lots brought a trifle above and a trifle below $900. Corners on Morris Park avenue—a trolley street, destined to be an important business thoroughfare—brought from $5,100 down to $3,750, and inside lots $1,500, some a little more or less.

The highest price on the Bronx and Pelham Parkway was, so far, $4,450. Another corner here brought $3,750, and inside lots from $2,350 to $3,750.

These prices—especially the low prices are not absurdly low. They are, however, lower than other Bronx property less advantageously situated, bought four or five years ago, when subways were a long way off and a good deal was left to the imagination of the auctioneer or the optimism of the purchaser.

The Morris Park property is, in fact, well supplied with actual transit facilities, and has an excellent future. On one side of it are two stations of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad; on the other, two stations of the New York, New Haven & Hartford; while bisecting it is the Morris Park avenue trolley, connecting with the subway, about eight minutes' ride distant. Near its southwesterly extremity is the Neil avenue station of the White Plains subway extension.

The conclusion is that the 750 to 1,000 persons who have daily attended this sale have interpreted literally the public announcements of the managers of the sale as to the probability of low prices and it is plain that the public has learned a good deal since the boom times of five and six years ago.

R. O. CHITTICK,
Of the Globe.

SUBWAY PROGRESS.

Sections Ahead of Contract Time Limit —Three Are More Than Half Done.

Subway construction is proceeding so rapidly that there are now two sections of the Broadway subway and three sections of the Lexington avenue subway more than half completed, according to a report on construction progress up to May 15, 1913, just made to the Public Service Commission for the First District by Alfred Craven, chief engineer. On all these sections the contractors are ahead of their contract time, and if the same rate of progress is maintained the work will be completed several months in advance of the contract limit. Work is going on under twenty-one different contracts on as many sections, of which five are on the Broadway line, one on the Center street loop line, and four on the Fourth avenue subway line, all to be operated by the New York Municipal Railway Corporation; and eight on the Lexington avenue line, one on the Southern Boulevard line and two on the Queens rapid transit lines, all to be operated by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company under the dual system contracts. About 6,000 workmen are constantly employed on these sections, and in many places work goes on night and day.

The contract which is the furthest advanced is that for section No. 12 of the Lexington avenue subway, awarded to the Oscar Daniels Company in August, 1911. This section lies in Lexington avenue, between 106th and 118th streets. The work in this section is about 64 per cent. completed. The next most advanced contract is that of the Bradley Contracting Company for section No. 11, in Lexington avenue, between 93d and 106th streets, awarded in July, 1911, and now about 54 per cent. completed. The next is section No. 15 of the Lexington avenue line, held by Rodgers & Hagerty, lying between the Harlem River and 157th street and River avenue, on which the work is 53 per cent. completed. Section No. 9, in Lexington avenue, from 53d to 67th street, under contract to Patrick McGovern & Company, while only 40 per cent. completed, is yet ahead of the contract time.

On the Broadway line the most advanced contract is section No. 3, held by the Underpinning & Foundation Company, and covering the work in Broadway between Howard and Bleecker streets. This is 56½ per cent. completed.

PROGRAM VS. PROTEST IN CITY ECONOMY

Only After the Public Knows What Specific Things it Wants to Have Done in the Next Four Years Will it Know How to Judge Candidates for Office.

———Article III, Part II.———

By HENRY BRUERE, Director, Bureau of Municipal Research.

A Case in Point.

N 1907 the then Water Commissioner invited the Bureau of Municipal Research to make a study of the Water Department. When the Bureau accepted the invitation the present consolidated Water Department had been in operation for nine years. So far as the Bureau was able to learn, no comprehensive study of the administrative methods of the department had ever been made. Certainly none had ever been published. Citizens had made an investigation of the Ramapo project; experts had reported on the need of an additional water supply; and from time to time water commissioners had imparted some information in their annual reports on improvements made during their administrations. In the files of the Commissioners of Accounts there were various meaningless reports, showing that the books in the department, after great labor, had been balanced, not with the Comptroller's records, as they should be, but with each other.

Never, apparently, had a water commissioner, taking hold of one of the largest public utilities in the country, and the second largest water system in the world, analyzed the organization of his department or studied its methods to learn whether years of growth by slow accretion had resulted in efficient organization and an economical plan of administration.

The Bureau's study began with the collection of water revenues, because the revenue side of the department's activities had received less technical attention than the engineering problems of construction and maintenance. In May, 1909, it submitted to the Water Commissioner, and published for the information of citizens, a report of two hundred pages, calling attention to defective methods employed, leading to loss of revenue, and presenting a definite plan, approved by the Water Register, the Commissioners of Accounts and the Department of Finance, for the reorganization of the Water Register's Bureau.

For the next six months preliminary plans were made for the installation of the new system. When the new commissioner took office on January 1st, he was immediately acquainted with the work already done and gladly availed himself of an opportunity to continue it.

In a special "economy" report issued by the Water Department on January 1, 1913, the commissioner stated that as a result of the "installation of improved methods and procedures, and the attainment of an increased efficiency in the work of the Bureau (Water Register), the revenue of the city (from the sale of water) was increased from $10,652,213.89 in 1909 to $12,154,484.81 in 1911."

The following were some of the conditions reported by the Bureau of Municipal Research, whose correction led to the increase in revenue:

1—Means were not employed to determine, much less to insure, the accuracy of frontage rate charges, meter rate charges, charges for water used for building purposes, or charges for water used by shipping in the harbor. In other words, the department was not informed of the number of taps and outlets installed and the character of service in houses supplied on the frontage rate basis. Many of these houses had not been inspected by the department for twenty years.

HENRY BRUERE.

2—The department exercised ineffective control over meter reading, although the metered services were those of the largest consumers. In making their rounds the inspectors were permitted to carry with them reports of readings for corresponding periods of previous years, making it possible for them, had they been so inclined, to calculate in the corner saloon or at the baseball game, the approximate amount of water which the premises might have consumed in the period on which they were reporting.

3—There was no control exercised over the collection of revenues. These and other obvious, when learned, but fundamental administrative defects were costing taxpayers each year approximately $2,000,000. Yet protesting taxpayers were ignorant of them.

Improvement Permanent Only If Taxpayers Are Vigilant.

The business of collecting water revenue is now as efficiently conducted as the business of collecting insurance premiums. But there will be a reversion to old conditions unless the next administration realizes (1) that reorganization has taken place; and (2) that taxpayers and citizens generally desire to have the Water Department conducted in conformance with good business principles and not merely for the purpose of supplying necessary water to consumers "regardless of expense."

Had there been no Bureau of Municipal Research to remind the new commissioner that a definite and approved plan had been worked out for reorganizing water revenue control and collection, and had the Bureau not been prepared to send experts into the department to co-operate with the commissioner in effecting reorganization, I venture to say that even the present business-trained commissioner would not have succeeded during his administration in putting the revenue side of his department on its present efficient basis.

Information Pays.

It cost contributors to the Bureau of Municipal Research, all of whom are large taxpayers, $28,000 to effect this reorganization of water revenues. Had this reorganization not been made, it would have cost taxpayers, during the last three years, approximately $6,000,000 in lost revenues.

Just as it paid to be informed about the problems of the Water Department, to know exactly what steps were necessary to correct inefficiency, and just as it paid to be prepared to help correct wasteful conditions, so, with every change of administration and during every administration, it will pay taxpayers to keep themselves in readiness to insure continued attention to the business side of city government.

The greatest danger that threatens the taxpayers of the City of New York today is not an extravagant extension of municipal activities, as protesting taxpayers fear, but reversion to unbusinesslike, wasteful methods of administration, because taxpayers fail to keep themselves informed about city business.

On January 1st the Water Commissioner began a series of bulletins, calling attention to improvements made in his department. Bulletins of this character should be issued by all departments, in order that a public record may be made of efficiency gains. Information is difficult to obtain regarding improvements made in other departments, because city departments do not currently, as a rule, take the public into their confidence. Despite Mayor Gaynor's insistence that departmental reports should appear promptly, the annual reports for 1911 of a number of departments, including so important a department as the Department of Health, were published early in 1913.

Improvements Easy to Make.

In order that taxpayers may realize how obvious are some of the improvements that can still be made in departmental administration, the following statements from the commissioner's bulletins are quoted:

Water revenues are increased by:

1—Reading meters regularly.

2—Prompt billing to consumers.

3—Prompt following up of accounts in arrears.

4—Establishing accounting control over the accounts receivable in order that errors in ledgers might be detected and corrected with facility, instead of only after prolonged and costly investigation.

5—Balancing ledgers monthly instead of never.

6—Supervising inspectors carefully and verifying their work from day to day.

7—Making a complete re-examination of all water services, which, it is estimated, when completed, will increase the revenues by an additional half million dollars a year.

8—Establishing a patrol system to watch water taken by the shipping from the city's mains.

9—Establishing a division of complaints to handle promptly all complaints received.

10—Reorganizing the clerical force and establishing an equitable basis for promotion on merit.

11—Developing co-operation by means of conferences between heads in the water registers' bureaus in the several boroughs.

12—Enforcing discipline, providing time sheets, time clocks, etc.

13—Adjusting the physical arrangement of offices in order that work might be done without confusion and a minimum of personal discomfort.

There is opportunity in every department to plan similar improvements. Each of these thirteen steps is easy to take, provided there is sufficient desire and patience to take them.

More Notable Improvements.

Improvements in the Water Department have not been limited to the Water Register's Bureau. The commissioner reports substantial savings as a result of establishing a Bureau of Supplies, "which purchases, inspects, stores and issues materials used by the department, and lets all contracts." The Water Department carries in stores continually supplies worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. Six years ago the Bureau of Municipal Research made an inventory, the first ever taken of the large Water Department pipe yard in 24th street.

Stock was found scattered all over the storehouse, and, though records were kept, they were not of the slightest use in indicating the kinds and quantities of materials on hand. Buried under other supplies were expensive supplies purchased in large quantities years ago but no longer useful because of changes in equipment. None of the valuable property which the city had placed in this store yard against future use was properly protected. To this general condition there was one exception. An iron lawn roller, bought for some city purpose years ago, had been left in a corner of the store yard. When we found it, the handle of the roller was thrust through the heart of a large tree, which, in the course of years, had encased it. Strange, was it not, that an article so difficult to purloin as an iron roller should have been so carefully guarded? Today, by properly organized storehouses, with classified bins, and records showing what comes to stores and what is taken away, the Water Department maintains control over all its supplies and materials.

Formerly a small army of clerks was employed preparing payrolls, but laborers' wages were invariably delayed, because payrolls were written in long hand. Now payrolls are written by mechanical process, reducing the time required to make out each payroll from twenty-five minutes to twenty-five seconds.

These changes all mean economy for taxpayers and efficiency for the Water Department.

Unless taxpayers are observant, an indifferent and job-seeking commissioner will be able to let down the bars, one by one, until each of the steps that have been taken is retraced to bring back a condition of confusion and wasteful expenditure.

Case in Point, No. 2.

No department has more effectively combined improved service with economy than the department of the President of the Borough of Manhattan. But the very places where greatest economies have been made by an efficient administrator are places where a slovenly administrator would find it easiest to practice waste.

Padded Register of Bathers.

During the administration of Mr. McAneny's predecessor, the number of attendants in the eleven public baths was governed by reports made by those bath attendants of the number of bathers. Consequently, month after month the record showed an urgent demand for an increased number of attendants. By keeping an accurate count of the number of bathers, Mr. McAneny succeeded very quickly in cutting the bath payroll practically in half. Unless taxpayers are vigilant, Mr. McAneny's successor could very easily, if he chose, increase the statistics as to number of baths taken, and thus justify a demand for increased bath attendants.

Coal vs. Coal.

Coal bills for public buildings have been cut in half, not only by standardizing coal, but by changing the kind of coal used. A single command by an official more concerned for the profits of contractors than the property of the people would over night substitute expensive egg coal for buckwheat coal now used, and "distinguished" engineers could probably be found to write expert opinions in justification of it.

Everyone sympathizes with old men in city gangs laying stone block pavements. Until recently no one expected them to work with assiduity. Mr. McAneny, by organizing one or two gangs to establish a reasonable standard of performance for all gangs repaired 357,000 square yards of stone block pavements in 1912, as against 206,000 in 1909, with a payroll reduced from $480,000 to $315,000. For all that taxpayers knew in 1909, $480,000 seemed a reasonable figure for that year's stone block repair; $480,000 will seem a reasonable figure in 1914, unless taxpayers remember what has been accomplished and insist that present standards be lived up to.

Lemons and Plums.

One of the strongest arguments used for the removal of Borough President John F. Ahearn was the gross extravagance and favoritism practiced by his department in purchasing supplies. A "yard of lemons" taken from Borough President's Ahearn's purchases, showed that prices paid by his department for large quantities ranged from 50 per cent. to 570 per cent. more than prices paid for the same articles bought in units of one by the Bureau of Municipal Research. These purchases were lemons for the city, but plums for the Borough President's friends. One of Mr. McAneny's first tasks was to reorganize the purchasing methods. Instead of allowing each of the five bureaus to buy supplies independently, he organized a central purchasing office. Two things he did: (1) Required goods of adequate quality; (2) obtained fair bids upon them.

A purchasing agent necessarily exercises considerable power. If he is watched and controlled, he is more likely to be efficient and careful than corrupt and wasteful. Unwatched, he may remain efficient, but is likely to become corrupt. Encouraged to be careless, he has abundant opportunities both for inefficiency and corruption. Unless the next Borough President realizes that his economy record depends in a large measure upon the economy of purchases made by his subordinates, old ways are likely to be revived at taxpayers' expense.

For practically all notable improvements made by Mr. McAneny, similar dangers could be pointed out.

Case in Point, No. 3.

During the past several years the Bridge Department has acquired a reputation for efficient management. We asked the Bridge Commissioner for illustrations of economies effected by him. He calls attention to a reduction in 1913, in the total expenditures of his department, for budget as well as corporate stock purposes, of $185,178.95 below 1912, a decrease from $1,934,545.15 in 1912 to $1,749,366.20 in 1913. This saving is not due to a decrease in work done. The amount of work has doubtless been increased. For years, probably, the waste eliminated by the present commissioner has continued, because neither taxpayers nor the Mayor, the Comptroller, nor commissioners informed themselves of easily availed of opportunities to cut down expense.

A Matter of Common Sense.

The Bridge Commissioner, in telling how he effected his economies, does not pretend that they have been achieved because of the extraordinary ability of the commissioner, but shows that they are the product of common sense, plus regard for public interests, applied to a public department's business. Commissioner O'Keefe writes:

> This substantial decrease in the amount of the request for 1913, to take care of the functions of this department, has been due primarily to a complete reorganization in the engineering and clerical forces and to the centralization of purchases at one source, in place of a separate purchasing agency which existed prior to the reorganization in each of the eight different divisions. The central purchasing bureau has made it possible to bulk purchases and provide for the department's wants by contracts after public letting, where previously the greater part of the purchases were on open market order. In addition it has made it possible to standardize articles which can be generally used throughout the department instead of only in a single division, which experience proved to be the case under the former system. A further advantage is a more direct inventory control which has resulted in a reduction of material on hand. It also facilitates distribution and has simplified the system of job and unit costs which are kept in the department.

Unravelling Easy.

Engineering forces may be disorganized, purchases decentralized, supplies bought in small lots without public letting, articles unstandardized and inventory control lost, as easily as these improvements have been made, unless some one makes it his business to learn next year whether the present commissioner's successor is retaining the good business practices now established.

The $185,000 saved in the Bridge Department by common sense methods, and savings effected in the offices of the Borough Presidents of Manhattan and The Bronx and Water Department, could be multiplied many times if like common sense methods were applied to every department. Perhaps they have been applied to many other departments, but the public has not been told.

A Taxpayers' Survey.

The Bureau of Municipal Research believes that it would be of greatest advantage if taxpayers should make a "survey" at this time of the present administrative condition of every city department. It would be not only to the advantage of taxpayers, but to the advantage of the administration itself, for it would enable the Mayor and his associates to leave behind them an impartial statement of improvements that they have made, and a frank acknowledgment of opportunities for improvement that still remain. Those who have watched city government carefully during the past eight or nine years realize that New York's government is rapidly improving year by year. Each year pushed forward a bit the standards of the year before. It is important that every taxpayer and citizen interested in efficient government should know just how far we have progressed, so that a notch may be cut below which no succeeding administration may be permitted to fall.

During the past two years the Bureau of Municipal Research has conducted surveys in fifteen American cities, to learn for the information of citizens and officials where city government was ineffectively or wastefully conducted and to submit practical plans for betterment. Before the coming election every department of New York City's government should receive an impartial survey of this kind. It cost $3,500 to survey Portland, Oregon. It would cost approximately $125,000 to list for every department of New York: (1) What improvements in the nature of those described in this article had been accomplished; (2) what opportunities for improvement are still open; (3) conditions which the head of the department himself realized should be corrected; (4) obstacles in the way of further economies. With this information it would be possible to frame a definite administrative program for the next administration. Armed with facts and a program, taxpayers would be able to insist, day after day, Board of Estimate meeting after Board of Estimate meeting, budget-making period after budget-making period, upon detailed and constructive economies, which are the only kind that make for permanent improvement in administration.

SHALL I INSTALL SPRINKLERS?

What They Save in Insurance When Underwriters' Requirements Are Met.

By SPEAR & COMPANY

AT present the principal objection that the owner finds against the sprinkler system is the cost of installation. Yet we do not know of any investment that will yield the owner greater dividends in economies. The savings on the premiums for the owner and his tenants will pay for the equipment in three years. We find that sprinklers in a building are practically an insurance against vacant lofts. The unsprinklered building cannot compete with the sprinklered building for tenants.

When we consider that the rate on a 12-story fireproof manufacturing building without sprinklers is $1.80 a hundred on the contents and 30 cents a hundred on the building, and with sprinklers it is 25 cents a hundred on the contents and 12 cents on the building, the eagerness of the tenants to be in a sprinklered building is apparent. The owners who are opposing the Fire Commissioner in the enforcement of the law relating to sprinklers will in time realize that this particular provision is not inimical to their interests.

The sprinkler system as it is gradually developed and improved and its possibilities tested will in time take rank with the great beneficial inventions that have given mankind weapons in its struggle against the forces of Nature. The great toll of human life and destruction of property—one quarter billion dollars—during the past year, are sufficient proof that our fire-fighting methods and weapons are crude and inadequate. The advances made in the fireproofing of the modern loft building had lulled us into a sense of security which proved how false it was when the terrible Asch tragedy occurred. Then it was that the cry that the preservation of human life was above money considerations arose, which the lawmakers could not disobey, and therefore the sprinkler system was ordered installed in all buildings over 90 feet in height employing more than 200 people above the seventh floor.

Every inventive genius that started to think about fire danger and prevention, swung his attention, ultimately to one goal, that the fire should put itself out. The great majority of fires start obscurely or when human agency, which has the power to stifle it, is away. Ninety-nine out of every hundred serious fires have small beginnings, but the human agency so needful arrives after the fire has made rapid headway. It is therefore plain that any system of fire prevention that should in any sense prove effective, must eliminate the human agency. This goal after many years of experimentation, has been finally achieved in the modern automatic sprinkler system.

The Working Principle.

It is interesting to note the early history of the experiments in sprinklers. The years 1850 and 1880 witnessed the introduction of the forerunners of the automatic sprinkler. Very crude affairs they were compared with the up-to-date sprinkler system. Imagine perforated lengths of pipe through the building. These pipes were fed with water from the outside and when pressure was brought to bear the building was flooded regardless of where the fire was. Next came the open sprinklers attached to piping consisting of metal bulbs with numerous perforations, intended to distribute water over to a given area. Each succeeding year, however, saw an improvement in the sprinkler head and the general layout of the system.

There is at present a number of sprinkler heads on the market. However differently constructed the various sprinkler heads may be, they are all governed by the same principle. The cap to the sprinkler head is held in place by a stiffener composed of two or more parts joined together by fusible solder. This solder melts at approximately 165 Fahrenheit, the stiffener falls apart and the water rushes through. Facing the valve or cap there is a splash plate or deflector. It is apparent that this prepared shower bath in order to cover a sufficient radius to prove effective, must have sufficient force behind it. This is achieved by having two tanks gravity and pressure on the roof, exclusively for sprinkler purposes.

The pressure tank is usually smaller than the gravity tank, and contains but one-third compressed air and two-thirds water. When the heat of the fire melts the solder, thereby loosening the cap, the compressed air forces the water through with a rush. The fire is extinguished not merely by the chemical action of the water upon the fire but also by blanketing the fire with a curtain of fine spray, and shutting off the supply of oxygen that would feed the flame. A sprinkler head will wet an area from 75 to 100 square feet, and it is one of the ideal features of the sprinklers that only such heads will work as are directly affected by the fire, in that way minimizing the damage from water. Over 30 per cent. of all fires under sprinkler protection have been extinguished by one sprinkler head; over 70 per cent. by five sprinkler heads or less.

Two Kinds of Equipment.

There are two types of sprinkler equipments, the wet and dry system. Where there is any possibility of the water freezing in the pipes, it is advisable to employ the dry system. The water is intercepted at the point beyond which freezing may occur by a controlling valve. Between this valve and the sprinkler heads the pipes are filled with compressed air. When a sprinkler head opens, the exhausted air can no longer hold the water in check. The wet system is commonly in use in all buildings where there is no danger of the water freezing.

It is important to note that there are two different types of heads, the upright and pendant. Sometimes the open pipes spoil the effect of a decorated ceiling, so that where the pipes are concealed the pendant head must of necessity be used.

Must Be Watched.

A necessary feature, giving the sprinkler system added value, is an arrangement, which automatically notifies a central station when a sprinkler head opens. Without this device or the supervision of a watchman the fire insurance companies will refuse to give any reduction for their sprinkler equipment. The insurance company is liable for all damages resulting from fire, whether from the water or flames. Supposing a fire occurred on Saturday night or Sunday morning, which was extinguished by a sprinkler head. It is plain that unless a watchman was present, or the outside world notified by an automatic alarm, tons of water would pour through the building through that sprinkler head before the tenants returned to their work on Monday morning.

Without doubt the introduction of automatic sprinklers in any building creates immediately an entirely new atmosphere or condition. It makes the building so equipped eminently more desirable from the standpoint of every interest, whether it be that of owner, tenant, mortgagee or insurance company.

THE FEDERAL INCOME TAX.

A Lien on Real Estate—Bill Should Be Changed, Says Mr. Pleydell.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE.

One serious effect upon real estate transactions of the proposed federal income tax law does not seem to have received any public attention. If the bill now before Congress is enacted, the tax thereby imposed on a personal income will be a lien upon any real estate owned at the time by the person liable for the tax, and if the income tax is not paid by him it may be collected in full from a subsequent innocent purchaser for value of the real estate who has had no notice of the tax or the lien. This result comes about in the following way:

The income tax bill provides in Section M that all administrative provisions of law, "including the laws in relation to the * * * collection of internal revenue taxes" are made applicable to the income tax. Congressman Hull, in his speech, emphasized the fact that all the machinery of the internal revenue was to be used in enforcing the income tax.

Section 3186 of the revised statutes makes any unpaid tax owing to the federal government a lien upon the real estate of the person owing the tax. But there is nowhere in existing statutes (or in the income tax bill) any machinery for giving public notice of such a lien.

Here Is the Law.

Few persons are aware of the existence or effect of this Section 3186. It reads as follows:

> If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same after demand, the amount shall be a lien in favor of the United States from the time when the assessment list was received by the collector, except when otherwise provided, until paid, with the interest, penalties and costs that may accrue in addition thereto, upon all property and rights to property belonging to such person.

In the case of United States vs. Snyder, 149 U. S., 210, the Supreme Court held that the lien created by Section 3186 is valid and binding, even against a bona fide purchaser for value without knowledge or notice of the existence of such lien. It was held also that the recording acts of the several states have no force or effect as against the lien of the United States Government. In the case before the court an internal revenue tax upon a manufacturer of snuffs was not paid by him after demands by the collector, and the effect of the decision was that an innocent purchaser of some of his real estate five years later had to pay the tax due on the snuff business.

Some provision should be made in the income tax bill for the public recording of a lien by the federal government in the county where the property is located to which the lien is to attach. Failure to so record a lien should exempt real estate from the operation of the lien for unpaid income taxes. Unless some provision of this kind is made, no purchaser of real estate will be able to know whether he will become liable for a heavy income tax owing by the seller; he may even become liable for the penalties incurred by the seller for failure to report his income.

A. C. PLEYDELL,
Secy. New York Tax Reform Assn.

—The building plans filed during the first five months of this year in Manhattan represented only about one-half the total estimated cost of the buildings planned up to the first of June, last year; but in number this year's filings so far are only about eighteen per cent. less. In The Bronx the filings represented about twenty per cent. less in value of buildings, and in Brooklyn 30 per cent.

BUILDING BUREAU MAY STAY UPTOWN

Will Cost Less Than in the Municipal Building and Be Far More Convenient for the Public—The Record and Guide's Location Preferred.

THE Superintendent of Buildings for Manhattan, Rudolph P. Miller, C. E., has brought an important question in real estate and of city economy to the attention of Borough President McAneny. The city is building a vast Municipal Building for the purpose of housing departments of government now in rented quarters in the neighborhood. In the case of the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings no saving will be effected by moving its offices to the new building.

Superintendent Miller does not know what the rental value of its space will be, but doubtless as much as in the case of the average downtown office building, or $2 to $2.50 per square foot, whereas the Bureau is paying but 90 cents per square foot of net floor area. Quarters could be secured in other parts that would serve the purpose of the Bureau, Superintendent Miller says, for 75 cents to $1 a square foot, and this is one reason why he has made a suggestion to the Borough President that the Bureau be not required to move to the Municipal Building. As a second reason Mr. Miller says:

A Saving in Time and Carfare.

"I find in considering the distances our inspectors travel each day from the office to their work, that in moving from our present quarters to the Municipal Building there would be added to the average distance traveled by our inspectors in going from the office to their work 1.14 miles. This applies to 112 inspectors of this Bureau; the other inspectors having special work to do are not included, as the distances they travel are more or less uncertain.

"The total extra distance traveled each day by our inspectors would therefore be about 129 miles. The extra time consumed in going from the office to the work of the 112 inspectors may be taken at about an average of ten minutes for each man, or a total of 18 hours and 40 minutes. As this time is taken from the inspection work, it would mean that it is equivalent to about three men's time. Of course, it does not follow that we can spare three men by remaining where we are, but it means that we can get more inspections per man—that is, the inspector will have more time to give to his actual inspection work.

"To move our headquarters to a point where the minimum amount of time would be used by the inspectors in going from the office to their work would mean placing the Bureau somewhere above 59th street. This, of course, is impracticable on account of traffic conditions. To go above 59th street would mean that it would have to be at either side of Central Park, and more time would be lost on account of the traffic facilities.

The Most Convenient Location.

"In considering what might be the best location for the Bureau I have determined the geographical center of the architects who have offices in Manhattan, and find that to be somewhere along the line of 30th street. I have also determined the geographical center of the offices of the applicants doing business in Manhattan for the new building and alteration applications for the last six months of 1912 and find that to be somewhere along 39th street.

"From these considerations it would seem that to serve the public best the Bureau of Buildings should be located somewhere between 30th and 39th streets. As the section of the city between the Pennsylvania Station and the Grand Central Terminal seems to be developing into the business center of the city, and the tendency of building operations is uptown, it would seem that perhaps the best location for this Bureau would be somewhere in that section of the city. This would also seem to be the most suitable place when the traffic facilities, both present and future, are taken into consideration.

"In connection with this matter, I have had inquiries made as to the locations of buildings that would be available for our purposes at this time, taking into consideration only such as could be obtained at loft rates."

The Lewisohn Building Considered.

The superintendent has ascertained that in the Lewisohn Building at 113-119 West 40th street, from which the Record and Guide is now published, running through to West 41st street, the necessary space could be obtained on two floors below the eleventh floor. Suitable quarters could also be found in the Candler Building, 220-224 West 42d street, running through to 41st street; two floors in the lower part of this building could be had. Another suitable location in the opinion of Superintendent Miller would be the Builders' Exchange, 29-33 West 32d street, running through from 32d to 33d street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues.

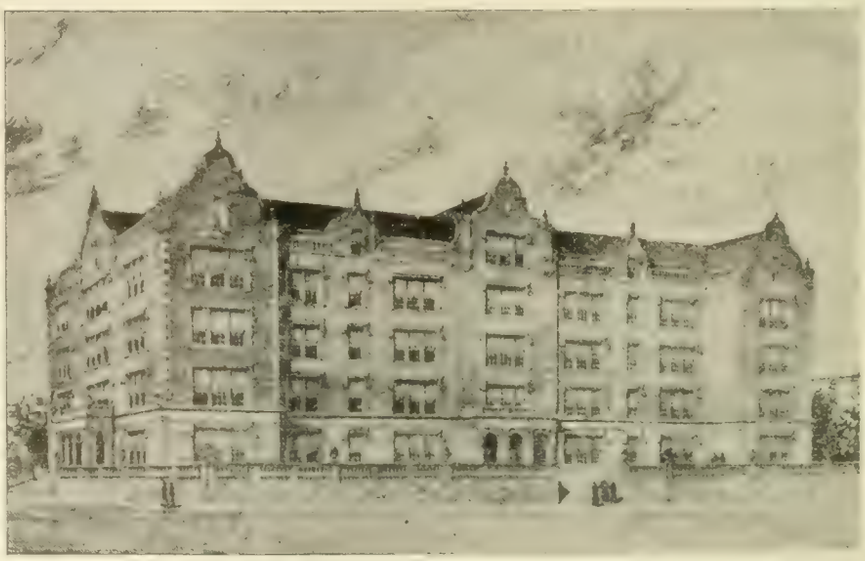
"All three of these buildings are well adapted for our purposes and are within easy reach of traffic facilities, offering good light and other satisfactory accommodations," says Mr. Miller, and he has asked the Borough President to submit the matter to the Sinking Fund.

—The present lull in big building operations is mainly technical, like the hollow between two waves.

Extravagance in City Paving.

Resolutions adopted by the North Side Board of Trade at its last meeting state that it is of paramount importance to the continued growth and prosperity of the city that there be retrenchment and economy in municipal expenditures, and that the co-operation of all civic bodies be urged to secure pledges to this effect from all parties and candidates in the municipal election this fall.

In speaking upon this motion Albert E. Davis declared that millions of dollars were squandered in the needless repaving of streets already well paved, and cited the cases of Lafayette street in Manhattan and the Southern Boulevard in The Bronx. The evidence of this waste could be found in great quantities of paving blocks and curb stones in good condition, piled up in vacant lots in various sections of The Bronx. He had been informed that a good pavement should last at least 15 years, yet there had been instances in The Bronx of repaving after four or five years. The cost of repaving came out of the city at large, and by representing to property owners that they could get a new pavement at the expense of the city, petitions for such repaving were easily secured by interested contractors. It was the general sentiment of the board as expressed by President Niles and others, that such extravagance must cease.



Bay Ridge High School.

The high school building now being erected at Bay Ridge is estimated to cost $350,000 for building alone. It will contain 84 class rooms, which will include special rooms for typewriting, drawing, sewing, cooking, music and for commercial studies. There will also be laboratories for zoological, chemical and physics work and a lecture room and library. The large assembly hall, which will be a feature, is planned to have seating accommodations for about 1,500 persons.

Other features of the building will include a roof playground, two students' lunchrooms and a teachers' lunchroom, a gymnasium, and a running track.

—The Citizens' Union estimates that the Jerome Park filtration project, which has just been enjoined, would have cost the city in one way and another $19,000,000. If they will chop out a few more things like that and then cut the tax rate in half, the "ultimate consumers" will be less sad.

—Picture theatres continue to spring up all over the city, and some that were built in inappropriate locations, as in private residential neighborhoods, have closed down for lack of patronage.

Fourth Avenue at 67th Street, Brooklyn. C. B. J. Snyder, Architect.

BAY RIDGE HIGH SCHOOL.

The cornerstone has just been laid.

CITY ECONOMY LEAGUE.

Name Adopted for the Movement in Behalf of Lower Rents and Taxes.

Important steps were taken during the week in the movement to conserve real estate interests at the coming municipal elections. A name was selected, a place rented for campaign headquarters, a brief bill of rights was adopted and the man who is to be the chief executive officer was named. Action of the most positive nature is expected from now on.

As the unanimous choice of the organization committee, Adolph Bloch has assumed the duties of chairman of the executive committee. B. Aymar Sands, Morgan J. O'Brien, Charles S. Brown and William H. English, of Manhattan, DeHart Bergen and Clarence W. Seaman, of Brooklyn, and C. E. Rickert, of Queens, all of them men who have records for doing things, have been added to the list of vice-presidents. And to the membership of the executive committee there have been added Henry Morgenthau, Abram I. Elkus, Clinton R. James, Bryan L. Kennelly, James F. Meehan, S. Stanwood Menken and Victor Weil, of Manhattan, and George A. Fleury and Charles H. Fuller, of Brooklyn. To the committee on new members has been added Elisha Sniffin, secretary of the Real Estate Board of Brokers.

A brief declaration of principles, or bill of rights, drawn up by a committee composed of Messrs. Marling, Chesebrough, Robinson and Bloch, was adopted and ordered printed at a meeting of the executive committee held this week. At the same time it was decided to adopt the name of the "City Economy League." Headquarters will be established in the U. S. Realty Building, 115 Broadway.

A committee, consisting of Messrs. De Muth, Doyle and Schnelle reported that at the direction of the league they had waited upon Alderman Curran, as chairman of the Corporate Stock Committee of the Board of Aldermen, in relation to the proposed issue of one million dollars of corporate stock for certain public improvements deemed unnecessary by the league, and as a result of the conference with Mr. Curran and of one with the Comptroller, the resolution for the appropriation had been withdrawn and a saving thereby effected.

It was decided that members of the executive committee should hereafter attend all meetings of property owners and rent payers and address them in behalf of the principles of the league. Last Monday evening Mr. Bloch addressed a meeting of the Taxpayers' Association of the Twelfth and Twenty-second Wards. Mass meetings will be held at the Real Estate Exchange in Vesey street when the campaign opens. Meanwhile the declaration is being circulated for signatures throughout the five boroughs.

A Lesson in Practical Politics.

"One thing the leaders of the Economy League must do if they hope to bring political parties to terms, and that is, make plain that it is the people generally, more than property owners, who are the real sufferers from municipal wastefulness."

So declared a prominent city official who is in touch with the political powers. "The number of voters among individual property owners is not large in proportion to the total number in Manhattan, he said; "and the political statisticians have it all figured out. They stand in far more awe of rentpayers as a class than they do of taxpayers, else the Wagner factory bills would never have been passed. A labor union counts for more with a practical politician than a property owners' association, but a rentpayers' organization would count for still more, and the Economy League will be well advised if it hurries and gets the names of thousands of union men and rentpayers to its declaration of principles.

"In Brooklyn and Queens, where the proportion of taxpayers to the total population is far larger than in Manhattan, the political party leaders have been far more tender with property interests than they have in Manhattan. In view of this, the Economy League ought to appeal strongly to the one hundred thousand building mechanics, the ten thousand real estate men, and thousands of men in the related professions, callings and trades that are affected by high rents and the depression in the real estate market."

New Bronx Playhouse to Seat 2,500.

Plans have just been completed by Shampan & Shampan, architects, 772 Broadway, Brooklyn, for a fireproof theatre, with a seating capacity of 2,500, to be erected at the southeast corner of Crotona Parkway and Elsmere Place, The Bronx, by the Crotona Parkway Amusement Company, of 20 Nassau street, owner. The building will have dimensions of 109.8x206.4 feet, will be two stories in height, with a mezzanine floor, and has been designed to stage high-class Broadway shows.

The front portion of the building facing the parkway is planned for stores, with a lobby intermediate, ornated in an Italian Renaissance style of architecture of marble, Caen stone and mirrors, and the second story above the stores and lobby will be for restaurant purposes.

The interior is designed in a modern French Renaissance style, with a dome-shaped ceiling decorated in silver gray, pink and gold. The entire front of the balcony is arranged with loggia boxes connected to the main boxes at the proscenium opening. The facade will be cream matt glazed terra cotta, marble and granite. The construction will be strictly in compliance with the regulations of the Fire and Building Departments in reference to exits and courts, thereby making the building a convenience of safety to its patrons. A modern heating, ventilating and special electric plant are to be part of the equipment. The architects estimate the cost at $400,000.

BUILDING CODE HALF DONE.

Old Buildings Must Be Made Safe—Superintendent to Have Discretion—But.

The Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen, which is now engaged in revising the Building Code, has the work about half completed. The hardest part is over, and the committee expects to complete the work tentatively before the first of July. Advance copies will be sent to the heads of municipal departments, the Bureau of Municipal Research, the Real Estate boards, architects and builders' associations and to others for criticism, in order that the code may be perfected as far as possible before it is reported in the Board of Aldermen.

The committee has given up the idea of leaving the Superintendents of Buildings entirely without discretion. Instead, discretionary power in certain channels will be conferred, but in every case where the building regulations shall be modified by a Superintendent of Buildings he must make a record of his ruling for prompt publication, and his ruling will be a precedent for the guidance of all architects and builders under like circumstances.

Asked in what other particulars the new code would differ from the present one, Chairman Herbst stated that a special effort would be made to ensure the safety of elevator traffic. It was the hope of the members of the committee and their advisers to render impossible the starting of an elevator until the door is closed. They had investigated and found a score of safety devices on the market, all designed to prevent car movements while doors are open, and they were confident provisions could be framed for the installation of safety appliances without giving a monopoly to any manufacturer.

The members of the committee were also undertaking, the chairman said, to write into the code fire-prevention measures intended to make certain classes of old buildings safer than they are now. The code would specify, for example, that elevator shafts in old-style hotels should be rebuilt with fireproof material, not necessarily in an expensive manner, but still to be so constructed as to make them unburnable. For example, thin plaster blocks and metal lath and plaster might be allowed.

They would also undertake to provide

RENTING OFFICE BUILDINGS.

Ways of Finding Tenants—Judging Your Prospects—Presenting Goods Attractively.

By LOUIS B. DAILEY.

(Manager Chas. F. Noyes Company, New York.)

THE renting and management of monster skyscrapers is a science. On approaching lower Manhattan by ferryboat or ocean liner, one is fairly staggered by the sight of the towering structures that have been erected during the last ten years. Consider the short period of time in which the really enormous buildings, such as the Hudson Terminal, Singer, Trinity, Metropolitan, Whitehall and Woolworth buildings, have gone up, and still others are being planned or built. There are few lines of business activity in which the development of the last ten or twelve years can duplicate the advance in methods and skill shown in the operation, renting and management of these giants. Much has been written on this subject in recent years; the field has been well covered, but the last word has not been said. The subject is still new in its latest development.

When one considers the tremendous sums of money invested in office buildings in this section and the imperative necessity that the buildings representing so much invested capital shall be so rented and managed that a fair return may be had, the importance of the renting man as a factor in building management is at once apparent. A little slip at the wrong moment may jeopardize a lease involving an annual return of thousands of dollars, and under present conditions, with the intense competition for desirable tenants, a ten-year lease at $10,000 a year means much to the owner.

A Proper Structure Essential.

Successfully to rent a large office building one must first have a proper structure, properly located and properly planned. The best renting manager that ever lived cannot fill a badly planned and poorly situated building. True, a good man undoubtedly can do more with a poor proposition than an indifferent one, but there have been successful buildings in New York which were well rented, not because of their management, but in spite of it; and it is equally true that there are some buildings that are successful, or reasonably so, not because of their location, but in spite of it, as the result, in great measure, of the policy of the management and the character and personality of the renting man.

It follows, therefore, that the renting campaign must be conducted by an industrious, quick-thinking executive, who will be able to keep a renting force working at top speed; who will keep in touch with all live possibilities and yet keep out of details; who will coach, encourage and stimulate his subordinates without driving them unduly, yet at the same time force the pace so that the maximum of results are achieved. Constant application is essential, for it is an easy matter for a force to go stale and cease endeavor if the watchful eye of the leader is not always covering the field. Laggards must be prodded and returns demanded, showing effort at least. This forcing is particularly required in canvassing for tenants and in "follow-ups," for there are many weary days when no real results are obtained by the man on the street, while good leases are being made at the office without a hand being turned to obtain them. Sometimes the fruits of a call do not appear for many months, and sometimes years, as we are frequently reminded by inquiring tenants, saying, "that about a year ago your Mr. —— called on me, but we were not ready then to discuss the matter."

Personality the Main Thing.

The successful renting manager, then, must have certain qualifications, the chief of which is his personality. By personality is meant those physical and mental attributes with which nature and experience have endowed him. Tact, disposition, manner, temper and character, all have a tremendous influence, not only in getting tenants, but in keeping them. His must be a positive nature, aggressive to the last degree, but founded on a base of absolute honesty and square dealing. He must be a man of conviction and decisiveness, so that his decision when made will end all deliberation, doubt or contest. He must be a good judge of men, not only with respect to the organization of his own force, but in the selection of his tenants, for frequently one must depend upon the intuitive judgment of the renting manager in the selection of tenants, as it is the applicants' personal and business reputation rather than his financial reputation which is of prime importance. Short arrearage lists in large buildings are not the result of mere accident or good fortune, but strongly indicate the wisely directed discrimination of the renting manager.

Finally, he must be a worker. There is no room in the renting game for the man who is looking for something easy. In no line is it required that a man, to succeed, shall have more persistence, patience and industry than in the search for tenants. During what is known as the renewing season, say, from December to April, the successful renting man is compelled to do some of his work by candle light, for his days are devoted to interviews and calls, and his evenings to planning layouts for possible tenants, to mapping out the next day's campaign and to the thousand and one details which require concentration and thought.

Cannot Wait for Tenants.

Having located our building on a suitable site, and having planned it properly, and having placed at the helm a live renting manager, we have now to introduce the building to the public.

This is done in a number of ways. Sometimes by large show advertisements in the daily press; by appropriate cards in periodicals and publications identified with lines to which the building ought to appeal; by letters and booklets sent through the mail and, finally, by personal solicitation.

Also by writing an occasional reminder to certain lines of business and enclosing a small attractive booklet, briefly reciting the renting points of your building. All have a distinct advantage, but must be followed up by personal calls, which brings us to the final, best and, in fact, only way really to fill a building—the personal canvass.

Must Go After Prospects.

There was a time when the renting agent could sit in his office and wait for prospective tenants, but that day has passed. Time was when he confined most of his efforts to a period of three to four months, beginning about the holidays, but that too has passed. Live renting men keep up the search for tenants in these times all the year round, and it is a noteworthy fact that many of the best and biggest leases are closed during the summer months. An empty building will be the lot of an owner who employs an agent who merely sits in his office and waits for tenants to drift in.

Some buildings are so situated and are so managed that their space is in demand. But even then, while the renting agent may get inquiries, he must be up and doing, for under competition the cheaper or less fortunately situated buildings can and do get tenants, sometimes by price, sometimes by clever salesmanship. And it does take salesmanship of the highest order to rent office space. Anybody can sell two dollars' worth of space for one dollar; it takes a salesman to get two dollars for two dollars' worth of space.

Winning His Confidence.

Goods well displayed are half sold, and a man without renting sense will lose his tenant before he has fairly started, if he has failed at the outset properly to judge his applicant. Does your tenant want de luxe space and is he able to afford it—that is, does his business warrant it? If so, show your corners. Is he accustomed to an attractive outlook? If so, offer your street side, or churchyard, or park view. Does he want area instead of outlook? Then show your court or dark space. Do not show your best space first. Start on the lower floors and always keep something back for another day, after your tenant has shown his hand. At your first interview interrogate your applicant carefully, obtain his confidence, for if he gets the impression that you are a sharp trader, a wee bit more experienced in the game than he, then he will be wary and close mouthed, and you will work more or less in the dark. Don't try to impress the applicant with your importance or your ability. Save your best arguments and your final and best efforts for the time when the applicant is wavering. Then a well made and effective argument, introduced with all the skill you possess, may close the deal.

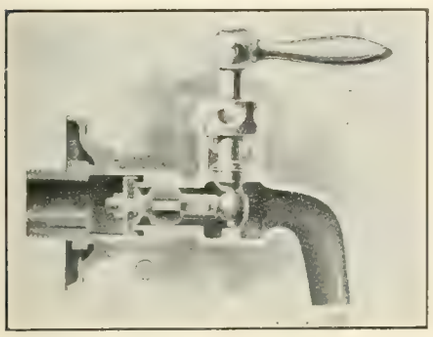
To Blue Polish Steel Without Fire.

The following formula is commonly used for bluing steel or brass: Hyposulphite of soda, one pound; acetate of lead, half pound; water, one gallon. The solution should be used at the boiling temperature and the articles immersed until the desired shade is acquired; then dry out. The surface should be coated with lacquer or oiled with linseed oil to protect the coating.

USEFUL APPLIANCES



Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.

Improved Emergency Exits.

This device is the outcome of careful study of the conditions in factories, theatres and all places of assembly in connection with the rapid emptying of buildings in case of panic. In the device manufactured by the S-A-F-E Co., of Binghamton, N. Y., which has acquired the exclusive rights for a safety appliance for exits, all of these objectionable features have been entirely eliminated, and its operation is absolutely positive, involving only two moving parts, a bar and a spiral cam knob. Five-eighths of an inch motion of the operating bar turns the knob and opens the door. Its installation is simplicity in itself. Remove the knob and substitute Pratt device. It is not only applicable to emergency exit doors, but to roof scuttles, sidewalk lifts, etc.

Faucets That Do Not Leak.

At the time of the drought last summer when the supply of water for New York dropped to an alarmingly low level considerable emphasis was made to the fact that property owners waste annually a large sum of money because they do not pay attention to the small leaks and particularly leaky faucets. This gave rise to a very definite inquiry among real estate interests regarding the availability of actual leakproof faucets that were then on the market. James B. Clow & Sons Co., 17 Battery place, has such a faucet on the market which cannot leak, cannot hammer and has fuller and quicker action and contains no rubber to rot out. The faucets have been thoroughly tried and have been tested for their longevity. A glimpse at the accompanying cut will show just how the interior mechanism of this device is arranged.

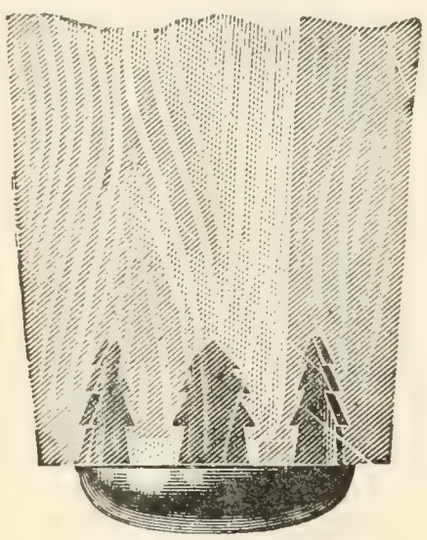
New Idea in Stokers.



The underfeed stoker is a principle in furnace firing that seems to have come to stay. One of the most important improvements in this department in the recent past has been perfected by the Sanford Riley Stoker Company, of Worcester, Mass. It consists of a moving fuel-bearing grate in place of stationary bars and moving overfeed grates extending across entire width of furnace. These moving parts carry the fuel down an incline of about 20 degrees. The positively forced feed, made up of the combined motion of a plunger in the retort and the moving grates, distributes the coal evenly. The nearly uniform thickness of fuel insures active combustion over the whole fire surface by providing a much freer and more uniform passage of air through the coal than is possible when the coal heaps in large masses with adjacent thin spots.

The discharge of the refuse is continual and automatic, which brings down fuel with it. At the lower end of the overfeed grates are noses which force the refuse slowly but continuously toward the bridge, then on and over the ash supporting plates, which are hinged together in the form of an apron. The plates of this apron hang down over the ends of a rack which control the size of the opening and is adjustable by hand power. The discharge capacity can be regulated by the amount of travel given to the pusher noses. The discharge of refuse is at such a rate that the fuel is thoroughly burned out and practically cold before discharge.

The driving mechanism of the Riley stoker is entirely visible from the outside and easily accessible, and the air space underneath the stoker may be reached through the door or through the opening in the front air plate on the side door.

A New Idea in Gliding Casters.

The Evergrip Caster Co., of 20 Warren street, has made an improvement on the rigid metallic caster of recent popularity by overcoming one of the serious objections to this device. The principle is the same as far as the gliding surface is concerned, namely, that there is a disk of highly polished hard nickel which is driven into the chair or desk leg. In the case of the Evergrip, however, the burrs are barbed so that it is impossible for the caster to work out of the chair leg and thus cause annoyance and possibly splitting of furniture legs. The cost is very low. They leave no tracks even on the softest woods. The chief advantage of this device, as far as the building manager and the office occupant is concerned, is that they do not make any dust.

Prevents Gasoline Evaporation.

The Hydraulic Petrol Storage Company, of 11 Bothwell street, Glasgow, Scotland, is introducing a novelty in the form of a system for storing gasoline or petrol that prevents evaporation and danger from explosion. The novelty of the system consists in the fact that the storage tank is always full of liquid and that no air is admitted at any time. The liquid in the tank may be of gasoline, gasoline and water, or all water. The water and gasoline do not mix and owing to the difference in specific gravity the gasoline always floats on the surface of the water. By a simple, ingenious mechanism, water is pumped into the tank to force out the gasoline when required, while the water is drained away when the space in the tank is needed for storage of gasoline. The advantages which are claimed for the system are that there can be no loss from evaporation and that no gas is forced out when the storage tank is refilled, and that gasoline will not deteriorate no matter how long it is kept in the tank.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Keeping Steel from Rusting.

Is there any way to keep iron and steel from rusting in the presence of salt water?

Answer.—If the metal surface is thoroughly cleaned and red lead and hot asphalt paint is applied the oxidation is almost entirely arrested.

A "Cord" of Stone.

Will you please tell me what a cord of stone is,

Answer.—A cord of stone corresponds to the measurement of a cord of wood, which is 128 cubic feet, or 8 feet long,, 4 feet wide and 4 feet broad. The use of this term as applied to stone is very infrequent in this day. Stone is generally figured by the cubic foot.

Heating and Ventilation Instruction.

Is there any place where heating and ventilation is taught in this city?

Answer.—On January 9th the Young Men's Christian Association (Harlem branch) opened a course for engineers, draughtsmen, mechanics and salesmen.

Practical Helps for Plumbers.

I am anxious to obtain a copy of some practical volume pertaining to hints for repairing plumbing.

Answer.—Martin L. Kaiser is the author of a book now in its second edition which is published by the David Williams Company, price 50 cents, entitled "Repair Kinks for Plumbers."

Cost of Buildings Per Cubic Foot.

Can you tell me what the approximate cost per cubic foot of an apartment house three stories high, 50 feet wide and 150 feet deep, with ornamental brickwork in front, fire-resisting floors, the whole well finished in hardwood work throughout, except a marble vestibule and hall, dumbweighters, but no elevators, metal cornices and in other words a high class suburban structure in the town of Montclair N. J.?

Answer.—Such a building may be figured as costing approximately 28 cents per cubic foot based on the present range of prices for high grade building materials.

Light Absorption of Glass.

What is the approximate loss by absorption of light through various kinds of glass in lighting fixtures?

Answer.—Clear glass, 8 to 10 per cent.; prismatic glass, 10 to 12 per cent.; light sand blasted glass, 10 to 20 per cent.; acid etched glass, 10 to 20 per cent; alabaster glass, 10 to 25 per cent.; Canary colored glass, 15 to 20 per cent; ribbed glass, 15 to 30 per cent.; ground and etched glass, 15 to 30 per cent; amber glass, 20 to 25 per cent.; opalescent glass, 20 to 40 per cent; cut and pressed glass, 20 to 40 per cent; opal glass, 25 to 60 per cent; bead glass, 30 to 60 per cent; green glass, 80 to 90 per cent.; ruby glass, 85 to 90 per cent, and blue glass, 90 to 95 per cent. Art glass usually is a mixture of the above colors and the absorption will be an average of the colors used.

Legal Working Hours.

Please inform me regarding the number of hours constituting a legal working day in Montana.

Answer: Eight hours. The law, however, does not prevent an agreement being made for a longer or shorter time.

The publication office of the Record and Guide has been removed to the twenty-second floor of the Lewisohn Building, 119 West 40th street. Our new telephone number is Bryant 4800.

Even the most mendacious Constant Reader and Old Resident is obliged to admit that he can't recall a time when the demand for Bronx lots was so lively as it has been in the last few days.

The Wisconsin trapper who, according to the newspapers, outfasted a band of eleven wolves seems to be in proper training for opening a real estate brokerage office in New York this summer.

Governor Sulzer has signed Assemblyman Daly's bill appropriating $250,000 for the New York State College of Forestry, at Syracuse University. Plans for the new building are in the hands of the State Architect, and ground will be broken early in the summer. The building will be on the western end of the university campus and, when completed, will be the largest and best equipped forestry building in the United States.

The House and Real Estate Owners' Association of the 12th and 19th Wards will have its annual banquet and outing at Donnelly's Pavilion, College Point, L. I., next Wednesday. If you have nothing else to do, better spend the afternoon at College Point and get acquainted with the members of the association. Organizations such as this are becoming numerous throughout the city because there is a real need for the sort of work they do; and we hope eventually to see them co-operate on matters of common interest through some form of federal organization, for, when all is said, they are the true "representatives of real estate."

The Principal Business Center of New York.

The most interesting recent item of real estate news is the announcement that Vantine's has followed the example of its former neighbors on Broadway south of Madison Square and will move to a site on upper Fifth avenue. After this removal has taken place, there will remain only two important stores out of the many which formerly occupied sites in this section, viz., Arnold, Constable & Co. and Brooks Bros. The removal of these two firms is only a question of time. Testimony recently produced in court proved that the business of Arnold, Constable & Co. had suffered because of the comparatively undesirable character of its location. There is no use trying to fight a dominant tendency in the selection of sites for retail stores. The reasons which over ten years ago induced farseeing business men to seek new locations for fashionable stores farther uptown were sound.

The people who patronize these stores demand that they shall be situated in a central location. They usually employ carriages or automobiles as a means of transportation; and, at a time when the streets were becoming increasingly congested, they would naturally want to diminish the distance between their homes and their favorite shops. A large proportion of them were moving their residences to the upper East Side, and the distance from Madison Square to these new residences could not be travelled without an irksome journey. Moreover, the district along the line of Broadway and Fifth avenue south of 23d street was becoming intrinsically much less advantageous for retail trade than was formerly the case. The side streets, and Fifth avenue itself, were being covered with mercantile buildings. Trucks obstructed the roadways of the streets. Factory operatives during certain times of the day began to crowd the sidewalks. The whole character of the neighborhood underwent a decided change. Under such conditions there was only one course to adopt, which was to move with the tide. Those firms which moved first obtained their new sites at the cheapest prices, and benefited most from the change.

Those firms which stuck most stubbornly to their old locations have had to pay for their obstinacy both by loss of business and by the ultimate acceptance of extremely onerous terms for the new property which they required. A store which seeks the patronage of well-to-do people must be situated in the same neighborhood as other shops of the same character. An ordinary department store is not obliged to submit to any such necessity. Shops like Bloomingdale's or Wanamaker's can thrive in locations which are remote from their competitors. But fashion is a tremendously effective centralizing agency. Just as it brings rich people from all over the country to do their shopping in New York, so it confines the area within which fashionable New York shops can be located to a comparatively small area. The southern limit of that area now consists of 34th street. The northern limit is, or soon will be, 57th street. Fashionable stores now situated south of 34th street will be obliged eventually to move. But if they do move, they will have one consolation for the additional expense which they will probably be obliged to incur in securing a new location. The boundaries of the fashionable shopping district as now marked out are likely to be durable. Business of this kind will not travel north of the southerly line of Central Park, and only a slight tendency exists for well-to-do people to build new residences farther north. It is becoming more and more general for such people to rent apartments in the many new buildings which are being erected on Park avenue from 48th street north and on the side streets in the same vicinity. Even very rich people are abandoning the practice of occupying private houses. By congregating in apartment houses they are coming to occupy a much smaller area than was formerly the case, and the location of this area must be convenient to the shops and places of amusement, because the constantly increasing congestion of street traffic makes long journeys in vehicles tedious and wasteful of time.

The Rearrangement of Park Avenue.

Surely the property owners on Park avenue who are opposing the Collis plan for regrading the intersection of 34th street and Park avenue are opposing an improvement which is manifestly demanded in the general public interest. Their real objection to the Collis plan is that it will accomplish too effectually its avowed purpose. It will remove the existing obstacle to the free flow of traffic up and down Park avenue, and will, consequently, tend to make that part of Park avenue between 34th and 40th streets less desirable for residence purposes. That the owners of residences on these streets should object to everything which would tend to make their existing surroundings noisier and busier is natural. The preservation intact of such a quiet and pleasant residential neighborhood as that which now exists between Madison and Lexington avenues, 34th and 40th streets is no doubt very desirable; but its desirability is very much diminished in case its preservation can be purchased only at the price of a genuine public inconvenience. The regrading of 34th street and Park avenue is, of course, part of a general plan to make Fourth and Park avenues available as thoroughfares for vehicular traffic. Ever since the Grand Central Station was built at 42d street, and since the street cars were run through Murray Hill in a tunnel, Park avenue has been rendered almost useless as part of the general street system of Manhattan. The admirable plan of the New York Central Railroad Company to bridge 42d street and carry street traffic by this means around its new station has given the city an opportunity to re-incorporate Park avenue into the street plan of Manhattan, and the regrading of the intersection of Park avenue and 34th street is a necessary part of this plan.

The object of this rearrangement should be to enable traffic to be moved as freely as possible. What Manhattan particularly needs just at present is the improvement of the existing means of street transportation north and south. For the most part, this improvement cannot be effected save at a prohibitory expense. The idea of cutting through new avenues is impracticable. All that can be done is to widen and extend existing avenues, wherever such changes can be effected at a moderate cost. Hence it is that the roadway of Fifth avenue has been widened by diminishing the sidewalks and revoking stoop licenses. Hence it is that the city is spending $7,000,000 to extend Seventh avenue to Varick street and widen Varick street; and hence it is that the present plans in relation to Park avenue have been proposed. The value of the opening up of Park avenue will be very great. Park avenue, like Fifth avenue, is free from trolley cars. It is a fine broad avenue, and admirably adapted to accommodate a large amount of traffic. As soon as it is opened up, it will divert thousands of vehicles from Fifth avenue, partly because it will be just as convenient for many people, and partly because its traffic will not be delayed by so many intersecting streams of traffic. The result will be to make Park avenue south of the Grand Central Station a noisy and a busy street, but the interests of the whole of the borough cannot be sacrificed for the purpose of preserving the tranquillity and seclusion which this neighborhood has hitherto enjoyed.

Those property owners on Park avenue who expect to prevent the gradual intrusion of business are cherishing an illusion. The character of the existing restrictions will delay the change for a comparatively long time; but no restrictions can affect the fact that this part of Park avenue is becoming very much more valuable for business than it is for residential purposes. No matter what steps are taken to do away with the present absurd grading of the intersection of 34th street and Park avenue, a large volume of traffic will move up and down the avenue. It will necessarily become much noisier than it is at present, and much less desirable as the location for costly residences. Its inhabitants will begin to move out; and, as they move out, it will be difficult to replace them, except with business firms. Under such conditions the restrictions will be fought in the courts, and, as is usual in such cases, they will eventually be nullified at the request of the great majority of the property owners. That this part of Park avenue will, as soon as it is freed, be rapidly transformed into a mercantile district cannot be doubted. The region near the Grand Central Station has enormous advantages as the location not merely for loft buildings but for office buildings and for certain classes of retail trade. The character of the business which has been recently occupying new buildings in this neighborhood is exceptionally high and it can afford to pay unusually large rents. In the long run, it is bound to take possession, and any arrangements now made by the city in respect to the intersection of Park avenue and 34th street should be adapted, not to Park avenue as it is, but to Park avenue as it will be.

MUNICIPAL TAXATION.

And New Sources of Revenue—The Case for Reduced Taxation of Buildings.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

It is often assumed that among real estate owners the one concern with the subject of taxation is a desire to have the tax bills upon their property as light as possible. Such an assumption does injustice to the intelligence and public spirit of at least the broader minded among real estate men. There is, perhaps, no group of citizens whose vital interests are in closer relation with the sound growth and widespread prosperity of the community. Even from strictly selfish motives men largely interested in real estate should take an interest in all well considered public improvements, and should favor a rather broad and liberal (while at the same time efficient) policy of public expenditure. That this is partly appreciated is evidenced by the extent to which real estate men are active in the scores of local boards of trade and taxpayers' associations throughout this city.

Of course, real property owners wish to have the city government freed from inefficiency and departmental graft. They are not pleased to see a dollar paid out for only fifty cents' worth of result. They are the most direct sufferers from an incompetent and wasteful administration of public affairs, just as they are the surest gainers from an administration that is honest and ably progressive. The pending subway programme will considerably increase the annual budget, yet real estate men are for it and rejoice that it is so comprehensive.

They know that scores of millions were added to land values in upper Manhattan and The Bronx by the construction of the present subway. They know that like, though more scattered, results will attend the opening of the larger system. Similarly they know that adequate schools, efficient police, and fire prevention, suitable waterfront development, parks and playgrounds are good investments. These things are all expensive. Insofar, however, as they contribute to the growth, prosperity, good health and attractiveness of the community they are reflected in a rise in land values which will usually far exceed their cost.

Furthermore, it can be shown that the city's land values as a whole are improved in proportion as prosperity is widely diffused. A comparison of population figures in New York City with land values will show that the latter increase almost automatically about $700 or $800 for every additional unit of population. Thus, if good business attracts 10,000 new residents, their presence is reflected in higher land values to the extent of more than $7,000,000. On the other hand, if wise health measures or improved housing could save 10,000 persons from preventable death, there would be a similar effect. One could go on indefinitely with illustrations to show that while honesty and efficiency in city government should be demanded by real estate men, parsimony would be directly against their interest.

Sources of City Revenue.

Most of the local budget is raised from taxation of real estate. Real estate is the easiest to get at. So far as it consists of land values (distinguished from building values), it is perhaps also the one most natural source of city revenue. For land values grow with the community and are directly increased by wise expenditure of municipal funds. There is, however, much discussion just now of possible new sources of revenue. Some of these are well worth considering. More could be obtained from franchise taxation. If money is to be paid for street privileges, such as cab stands, it should go to the city. There is logic in a demand that the city get a revenue from motor vehicles, as they are responsible for much wear and tear of pavements. Abuses in the too liberal exemption of certain real estate should be corrected. These are some of the measures just recommended by the Commission on New Sources of Revenue.

The Philadelphia Tax Commission, on the other hand, has suggested several new subjects of taxation which are much more questionable. One is a tax of about $1 per $1,000 on the output of factories. This would be putting a penalty upon the very source of Philadelphia's wealth and of her land values. Still more obstructive and stifling to progress would be the proposal to put a license tax upon the occupation by which each citizen earns his living.

The effort should rather be to free industry and enterprise in so far as feasible from tax penalties now placed upon them. The moderate land increment tax proposed by the New York Commission on New Sources of Revenue is a step in this direction. It would, to some extent, relieve the burden on industries and especially on building enterprise. A measure which would go even farther in that direction is the one which was before the State Legislature last year, known as the Sullivan-Brooks bill. This proposed to gradually reduce the rate of taxation on all buildings, throwing more of the tax levy upon land values. This has been opposed by many real estate men; but all owners of real property are not against it, and should not be. It has merits worth considering.

Outside of a few sections, such as the financial district, Times Square and Fifth avenue (where land values are extremely high) property which is improved suitably for the locality in which it is situated would have its tax bills lightened. The tax bills would be reduced on every piece of property where the improvements represent more than forty per cent. of the total value. The owner who erects a factory or other useful modern building, and who thus contributes to the progress of the community, would be less severely penalized than now for the benefit of others who allow their holdings to stand absolutely or relatively idle while waiting for the activity of others to force their values up. Many prominent business men have endorsed the plan as a measure to encourage industry and to promote New York's prosperity. Social organizations see in it a means of more rapidly building up the suburbs and of encouraging a better supply of up-to-date housing facilities throughout the city.

A QUESTION OF TITLE.

New York Central's Right of Way—Counselor Burr's Opinion Challenged.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

At the meeting of the sub-committee of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on May 27th, Assistant Corporation Counsel Burr gave a verbal opinion to the effect that the case between the railroad and the city, in the injunction suit, had settled that the railroad owned a perpetual franchise from Spuyten Duyvil Creek to St. John's Park. Mr. Burr was asked whether the injunction was not confined to prohibiting the removal of the tracks from the streets of the city, and an extract from the judgment, as entered in that suit (which referred only to the streets of the city) was read, in order to show that the affirmative side of the question was true.

Mr. Burr admitted that the extract was correct as read, but insisted that there were expressions of opinion, in the case, which went further and covered the land north of 59th street, whether it lay in the street or not, and that, in any event, Twelfth avenue, through Riverside Park was a public street.

The following extracts from the opinions in the case show that Mr. Burr was in error on this point, and that only the situation in the public streets was considered.

Referee Herrick held: "The city authorities propose to remove the tracks of the plaintiff from certain specified streets and avenues within the city of New York; the plaintiff seeks to enjoin them from so doing. Whether the plaintiff is occupying certain lands under water, outside of said streets and avenues, is not material to the issues here presented."

The opinion of Judge Ingraham, in the Appellate Term, begins as follows: "The plaintiff in this action has been awarded an injunction restraining the defendants from removing its tracks upon certain streets in the city of New York. * * * The other questions presented in this case are satisfactorily discussed in the opinion of the referee and nothing more need be said."

In the Court of Appeals, Bartlett J. Willard begins his opinion as follows: "This suit is the outcome of a notice served by the municipal authorities of the city of New York upon the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company, requiring the removal of its tracks from Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth avenues and West street. The judgment enjoins the city and its officers from removing or attempting to remove these tracks. It is based upon the legal proposition that the right thus to occupy the streets in question is derived (etc.). * * * The right or franchise to occupy the streets in controversy in this action (etc.). * * * The street franchise is granted in a different section of the statute, quite dissociated from the time limit."

The Corporation Counsel in his brief in the Court of Appeals (p. 65) argued as follows: "Defendants submitted findings on the subject of this land under water. The learned referee refused to allow such findings, and in his decision held that the occupation or right of occupation by the plaintiff of the lands under water along the easterly shore of the Hudson River, between Spuyten Duyvil and 68th street was not an issue in the case. It is not clear by what means the referee arrived at this conclusion. The plaintiff made a persistent and vigorous effort in the trial to show title to the said land but is now solicitous to prove that the occupation of the said lands under water can only be tried in an action which involves the determination of title to real property; and, moreover, that equity has no jurisdiction to try questions affecting title to land."

Marvelous Results from Advertising.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The sale of the Morris Park property, to my mind, has been the most thoroughly advertised auction I have ever known. It shows the master mind.

I consider the results thus far obtained are marvelous, considering all of the conditions which exist in the real estate market and the money market today. I believe that those people who have purchased Morris Park lots at prices quoted in the papers will surely make a handsome profit on their investment.

I assume that the streets in the Morris Park tract will be ceded to the city so no question may arise in the future in reference to highways.

Everything connected with this sale displays wonderful nerve, and I trust that both Mr. Day and Mr. Davies may reap the full reward for their labors. Far above this wish I hope and trust that there will be a large sum for those poor unfortunates who left their money in the institution, the name of which will not be remembered pleasantly.

BUILDING CODE HALF DONE.

that all classes of buildings hereafter erected should have adequate fire-escapes and exits. In fine, regulations intended to make buildings safer for their occupants in an emergency would be the most prominent new principle in the code. Certificates of occupancy would be required by the Building Bureaus under the new ordinance, so as to prevent anyone from changing a salesroom into a factory without first obtaining permission.

Wherever deemed possible by the committee, said Mr. Herbst, the maximum requirements for loads and stresses were being reduced with the object of reducing the cost of construction, and except for the alterations that would be required in old buildings it might be that building costs under the new code would be less than under the existing one.

—It is reported that there will be another large auction sale of lots in the Morris Park section this summer, and that still another large auction of Bronx lots will be held at the Real Estate Exchange in Vesey street.

—Broadway will have another playhouse, at the northeast corner of 37th street, where the Times Square Improvement Company has cleared the site and commenced excavating. On the main frontage will be a building for offices and salesrooms.

—The Morris Park sale disclosed surprising buying power in the northeastern part of the city, where they have not had in years such another opportunity for speculation and investment. A good many of the lots were bought by outsiders, who may not improve them; but it seemed that the greater number were falling to men of the kind who will not be long in building on them.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

RECORD AND GUIDE WILL HEREAFTER REPORT HUDSON RIVER COMMON BRICK TRANSACTIONS AND MARKET CONDITIONS UP TO THE EVE OF GOING TO PRESS—AN AID TO SPECIFIERS, DEALERS AND MANUFACTURERS.

A Survey of the Lime Market in the Light of Tariff Revision by H. A. Brocas—Wire Prices Slightly Lower. New Low Level in Brick Sales.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made by the Record and Guide whereby consumers, dealers and manufacturers of common brick may receive in this department an official report every Saturday morning of the transactions in and the condition of the Hudson River wholesale common brick market throughout the metropolitan district for the current week—practically up to press time. This is the first time in the history of the local brick market that such a report has been given. The new service, which begins today, gives the number of barges of brick received in the current week, the number of barges sold, the high and low prices per thousand obtained for this brick, and the number of barge loads available at the wholesale docks. In addition to that, the weekly report will show the total number of barges of brick arriving and sold each month and the number of barges arrived and sold since the first of January, with comparisons for the corresponding periods in the year preceding. This is an entirely new feature in the Record and Guide's brick reports.

The developments of the building material market this week chiefly centered in a new low sales record for June in brick sales and in the drop of a dollar a ton in steel wire. Structural steel orders fell off about 20,000 tons a day in May, and the June orders do not so far indicate any improvement in demand. At the present rate of receipt of new contracts the unfilled tonnage for June will drop approximately 500,000 tons.

NEW LOW BRICK SALES RECORD.

Only Thirty-four Cargoes Sold Week Ending May 31.

COMMON brick reached a new low record for building season sales in the wholesale market last Saturday when a total of only thirty-four cargoes were reported sold. This was due to a surfeited market combined with a light call for building brick owing to a disposition among dealers and consumers to await the arrival of new brick before coming heavily into the market.

It is probable, however, that manufacturers will not act in concert with reference to shipments of their 1913 product into this market with the buyers maintaining their present attitude despite the fact that there is about 35,000,000 brick in dealers hands, 19,600,000 still unsold at the wholesale docks, 50,000,000 in transit between this city and kilns up the river and approximately 100,000,000 still in sheds between Yonkers and Mechanicsville still to be shipped. In a normal June or July approximately 75,000,000 brick are consumed each month. It is, therefore, probable that by the latter part of July when the new brick will be coming into this market in full quantities, the 200,000,000 brick now available will have been reduced to at least 50,000,000 which is generally considered a fair "hangover."

Owing to improvements inaugurated this week in the official brick market reports it was necessary to quote the brick movements for the last three weeks simultaneously. In addition to the tables showing arrivals, sales and number of left over cargoes, there will be found a summary showing the total number of brick cargoes that have arrived and been sold from January 1 with comparisons for a corresponding period last year and also comparative monthly movements up to Friday morning of the week of issue.

WIRE PRICES LOWER.

Leading Producers Try To Overcome Timidity Among Consumers.

IN an attempt to bring out some of the business that is being held back by consumers of wire, which includes reinforcement, rope, etc. Some of the leading manufacturers made a reduction of $1 a ton in some steel wire products prices, including quotations for most of the wire and wire nails products in most common use. New prices are $1.75 per 100 pounds for wire and $1.80 for nails.

LIME AND THE TARIFF.

Inequality of Imposts Expected To Be Adjusted.

By H. A. BROCAS.

Sales Manager The Kelley Island Lime & Transport Co.

A BARREL of lime has, until recently, been almost a dispised commodity in this market. This condition came about because lime was packed in both new and second-hand containers of weights varying from 175 pounds to 350 pounds and much of the lime packed in old barrels was very low in efficiency and hardly worth any price.

Strange as it may seem the consumers of lime, the masons or plasterers paid little or no heed to the weights of the barreise or the quality of the lime it contained. Their only stipulation was that the cost per barrel be small.

About three years ago the principle shippers of lime into this market realized that it was time to call a halt in the marketing of poor lime packed in barrels of miscellaneous weight. In order to determine just what weight of package would be most suitabie for use in this market, they canvassed the masons, plasterers and dealers in building material, for their opinions on this point. The result of this canvass showed every one interested in lime to be in favor of a three hundred pound gross package. The members of the Lime Manufacturers' Association of New York now place their product on the market weighing three hundred pounds gross and in new barrels packed at the kilns. The weight is always plainly marked on the barrel.

As long as a user of lime purchases goods bearing the label of a member of the Lime Manufacturers' Association of New York, he is sure to get a three hundred pound gross barrel. The lime it contains will be composed of not less than 85 per cent. combined oxides.

Oddly enough it required a great deal of urging on the part of the lime manufacturers to convince the users of lime that their interests were identical and that this movement to standardize the lime package and its contents was a movement for the betterment of conditions.

That this movement serves as a great protection to the buyer of lime is obvious. On August 2 there will go into effect a new law relating to various commodities sold in the state of New York, which will make it compulsory to place the correct weight of a barrel of lime on the barrel in figures easily seen. This law, of course, will greatly help the lime manufacturers of New York compelling all shippers of lime to give to their customers a square deal.

The production of lime in the United States of America has been practically at a standstill for the last three or four years. The larger use of certain gypsum plasters and the low price of Portland cement possibly had something to do with this. Of late the producers of lime have been casting about for a means to check these inroads, and the marketing of their product in the form of a dry powder (hydrated lime) has proved an effectual counteractant. In this form, lime makes a wall which reduces the transmission of sound almost completely. Furthermore hydrated lime is easier to apply and does not set up quickly, thus permitting thorough working.

The production of lime in 1912 will undoubtedly show an increase over that of any previous year. This result is, of course, gratifying to the producers and to the marketing of lime in hydrated form this increase can largely be credited.

I have gone into considerable detail in reference to the lime market of the past because it has a distinct bearing upon the question you have asked me, whether I think the tariff will seriously cramp the lime market if it passes in its present form.

You must remember that the whole eastern lime situation has undergone a wonderful change that borders closely upon a revolution. From chaos has come order, system and a return to confidence as between the buyer and the manufacturer. At the same time new factors, notably hydrated lime, has come forward to help to emancipate lime from the unsavory reception it had until the last three years in the building markets of this country. Lime has had to fight for its commercial position as a building commodity just as the brick interests have had to fight against Portland cement. Lime today has very definite uses which, before the day of hydrated lime, were at least limited, and the shift was toward rival products in the field. Now comes the tariff which more or less unsettles prospective business in many lines, and your question is a very natural one and one which doubtless many architects, contractors and builders, not to mention supply men have been very anxious to have answered.

What do I think of the effect the proposed tariff bill would have upon the lime market of the immediate future?

Today conditions in the lime business in the Metropolitan district are better than they ever have been. The Lime Manufacturers' Association of New York has already taken steps to eliminate bad debts and long time, profit-eating, credits. It has given a standard package and a standard of quality to its commodity. The new idea has caught on, we are regaining the business that slipped away from us a decade ago and, as far as the east is concerned, the tariff, no matter how radical it may be, cannot disturb that condition.

THE HOUSE AND REAL ESTATE OWNERS' ASS'N of the 12th and 19th Wards of the City of New York, to celebrate the 25th anniversary of their organization, will hold an outing and banquet at Donnelly's Grove, College Point, L. I., on June 11. The President of the association is George H. Beck, of 1515 First av.

WILLIAM M. BENJAMIN CO. reports having recently placed the following loans: $150,000 at 4½% on 142-54 East 32d st and 139-47 East 31st st; $100,000 at 4½% on 109-11 East 40th st; $50,000 at 5% on 156-62 Eldridge st; $25,000 at 4½% on 120 East 79th st, and in conjunction with A. B. Ashforth a loan of $85,000 at 5% on the southwest corner of Canal and Elizabeth sts.

CHARLES C. STELLE was the broker in the sale of 564-566-568 and 570 Pacific st, adjoining the Library, southeast corner of Pacific st and 4th av. These houses are to be torn down and a 6-sty elevator apartment house built on the plot, which is 70x100. Mr. Stelle says this is only a forerunner of what will have to come in this section and now is the opportunity for builders to buy plots at reasonable prices.

THE COMMUNICATION of N. Taylor Phillips, Attorney for the Crex Realty Co., offering on behalf of said client to sell to the city certain property situated at Lexington av, 131st st and Harlem River, known as Parcels Nos. 1 and 2, at $18,000 for Parcel No. 1 and at $100 a front foot for Parcel No. 2, for the acquisition of which property condemnation proceedings have been instituted by the Public Service Commission, in connection with rapid transit railway construction, was referred by the Board of Estimate, on Thursday, to the Comptroller.

ANOTHER of the Henry Corn properties is to go under the hammer, the latest sale involving Nos. 474½ and 476 Broadway, through to 38 Crosby st, which is to be sold in an action brought by William M. Barrett as president of the Adams Express Co. The property consists of an 11-sty loft building fronting 49.10 ft. on Broadway and 25 ft. on Crosby st, with a depth of 199.7 ft. The sale will be held under the direction of Edward H. Chids, as special master, on Friday, June 27, at 11 a. m., at the County Courthouse.

THE M. MORGENTHAU, JR., CO. has negotiated a second mortgage of $27,500 for the Helenita Realty Co. (J. J. Hearn and A. M. Cohen) on the property known as 65-7-9 West 46th st, three 4-sty and basement dwellings on plot 56.2x100.5, located on the north side of 46th st, 109 ft. east of 6th av. In connection with the negotiations it was necessary to secure a release of the restrictions on this and the adjoining property which was all originally restricted to private dwelling buildings. The Helenita Realty Co. also owns the 20-ft. building adjoining on the east known as 63 West 46th st, giving it a total plot of 76.2x100.5, which will ultimately be improved with a store and loft building.

ONE OF THE LARGEST title searching jobs ever put through in Suffolk County was concluded recently by Raymond V. Humphrey of Riverhead, L. I. The property covered is a large tract on the ocean beach, Southampton, and extending westward to join the property of Judge Wauhope Lynn. It is said the tract is worth more than $300,000, and, in fact, it is that sum that it is insured for by Mr. Humphrey in the New York Title Insurance Co. Title is taken by Fred Ingraham and wife, of Manhattan, and by him deeded to the Southampton Beach Co., which company will improve it and put it on the market. Dozens of descendants of the old Southampton "proprietors' held title to the tract. It was Mr. Humphrey's job to search the old records for a century or so back and see that all of the recent owners could give valid deeds to the new owners. Taken altogether, it was an unusually large and intricate piece of work to get in such shape that it would be insured by a title company.

Cutting Down Municipal Expenditures.

The city administration has heard the cry of the overburdened taxpayer and will refrain from carrying out a number of contemplated improvements which it believes can be dispensed with at this time. The Corporate Stock Committee of the Board of Estimate has recommended that appropriations of corporate stock heretofore made be rescinded in the following cases:

City's share of the estimated cost of extending Seventh avenue and widening Varick street, $3,000,000. This improvement is to be made, but the cost will be spread in a different way than was intended when the sum here mentioned was set aside. Extension to the Henry Hudson memorial viaduct, $200,000; extension of Irving place, $100,000; bridge over the Bronx River and the railroad tracks at Gunhill road, $170,000; Grand Boulevard and Concourse, transverse road at 161st street, $225,000; construction of the foundation and walls of the wings of the new Aquarium Building in Battery Park, $170,900; completion of the Shore road, between First avenue and Fort Hamilton avenue, Brooklyn, $1,130,000; new Bellevue Hospital, $250,000, out of a total appropriation of $2,050,000; Reformatory for Misdemeanants, for the erection of new buildings, $495,000; for exterminating mosquitoes, $59,925, and for repairs to the Brooklyn Borough Hall, $16,800.

Land Reverts to North Shore Towns.

Land valued at close to a million dollars, which prominent residents of Long Island have thought they owned under State Land Commission grants, in reality belongs to the town in which it is located, according to decisions handed down Tuesday by the Court of Appeals.

One deision sustains the claim of the Town of North Hempstead to water front land in Roslyn valued at $150,000, for which a grant was made many years ago to Rudolph Oelsner. The town won the suit, which began five years ago in the Supreme Court and in the Appellate Division to which it was appealed by the Oelsner Estate.

The other decision gives the town of Oyster Bay land claimed under similar conditions from L. C. Tiffany at Cold Spring Harbor, valued at $85,000. In both instances the towns based their claims upon patents issued in the seventh century.

Tax Payments in May.

All those whose taxes for the first half of the year were not settled by June 1 will have to pay a penalty of 7 per cent. More than $55,700,000 in taxes for 1913 was collected in May. Last Saturday there was a great scurrying to get in before the gate closed. Of the total amount collected $39,756,000 represents taxes for the first half of the year and $15,957,512 represents payments for the entire year. By a provision of the law a rebate is given on the taxes for the second half if paid with those of the first half. The total tax levy is $151,607,084.55.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES.

$15,000,000 for Aqueduct Lands—Owners Will Get $8,500,000—Fees and Interest Will Take the Rest.

New York City will pay approximately $11,000,000 in fees, court expenses and interest, for land to be used for the new aqueduct which is to bring the water from the new Ashokan reservoir in the Catskill Mountains to the Metropolis.

This aqueduct extends through Ulster, Orange, Putnam and Westchester counties. The expenses connected with the acquiring of this narrow strip, less than 100 miles in length, is about two and one-half times the cost of the land itself. They comprise fees for condemnation commissioners, fees for lawyers and for experts called to testify as to the values of the land, and salaries of stenographers and incidentals.

The Board of Water Supply will report to Mayor Gaynor within the next few days, placing the cost of the land at approximately $15,000,000. The actual value of the land is, no doubt, less than one-third of this total, but allowances must be made by condemnation commissioners for hardships and deprivations to owners following from the taking away of their means of livelihood.

Of the $14,000,000 so far authorized, $3,000,000 goes for fees, $8,500,000 to owners and $1,500,000 in interest on the amounts awarded.

Another $1,000,000 was paid out in court proceedings for stenographic reports of the hearings and other details.

The proceedings for the acquisition of this land began in 1905, with the appointment of more than a score of condemnation commissions of three members each, who received a fee of $50 a day for their services.

The Jamaica Hillcrest Sale.

The result of the Jamaica-Hillcrest auction sale of lots last Friday and Saturday, conducted by William P. Rae & Co., of Brooklyn, as auctioneers, was the disposal of 251 lots for a total of $103,878, or an average of $412 a lot. At the opening of the sale bidding was sluggish, but this was due to the fact that prospective purchasers were not sure just which lots were being offered. The auctioneer adopted the method of selling direct from the specific plot to be sold, and then the bidding became spirited.

Briarwood road inside lots brought $350 to $440 each, and corners $510, under spirited bidding. Briarwood road has city improvements installed.

Saturday's offerings included lots on Hillside av where the average price was $1,300; on Highland av, where the average price was $1,000 a lot, and on Briarwood rd, where inside lots sold for $350 to $430 and corners for $510.

Among the buyers were F. W. Hawkins, Alfred J. Eno, Thomas Doyle, Jacob Bahr, Daniel Nashin, J. O'Sullivan, H. C. Kuch C. Sprague, W. E. Yuger, J. F. Herriman, William Bauer, H. W. Koopman, J. L. Cummings, J. F. McGuire, H. A. Silverman and L. F. Smith, J. L. Cunningham, J. F. Herman, Mary Rorke, F. W. Palmer, J. G. Quinn, J. F. McGuire, J. E. Tennis, James L. Brady, Henry Meyer, F. F. Jordan, Joseph Cooper, J. T. Crane, Guy Nichols, E. L. Matthews, G. R. Hawkins, William Steckler, D. Marsland, A. Duncan and John Barnes.

Queens Boulevard Opening.

Rapid progress is being made in the condemnation of property for the widening of Queens Boulevard and it is expected to have the entire work completed by November next.

This is the largest street opening proceeding ever undertaken in Greater New York, taking in to consideration the length of the highway, the amount of land taken and the number of parcels involved.

The length of the highway to be widened is 8½ miles, from Queensboro Bridge Plaza to Jamaica, and a strip varying from 100 to 125 feet in width is to be taken. Owing to the magnitude of the undertaking, the work was divided into seven sections.

The first hearing was taken December 21, and the claimants' side of the case has been finished on the first two of the seven sections, carrying the work from the Bridge Plaza to Fisk avenue, Winfield, over two miles.

Testimony has been completed as to 350 damage parcels. The aggregate amount of claims for damages made by property owners for the first section, as far as Greenpoint avenue, is $900,000, and for the second section, from that avenue to Fisk avenue, is $1,102,776. At the same rate $5,000,000 will be needed to acquire all the lands.

New Route for Queens.

The Public Service Commission gave a hearing on Wednesday afternoon to a delegation of property owners and residents of the Third Ward of Queens who are opposed to the Amity street route for the extension of the Corona rapid transit line to Flushing.

The delegation came from Whitestone, College Point and other places in that vicinity, the citizens of which feel that their locality should be served by the proposed extension of the Corona line. Instead of the Amity street route they propose that a terminal or distributing point should be established at or near the junction of Broadway and Lawrence street, Flushing, where it would connect with trolleys from College Point, Flushing, Jamaica, Bayside, Murray Hill and Whitestone. With the Amity street route, it is pointed out, only one of these lines would connect. The new plan, it is stated, will obviate the expense of subway construction in Amity street, as the road could be built entirely as an elevated structure.

Protection of Floor Openings.

When the so-called fireproof buildings which are now being designated as "fire resisting" or "fire resistive" buildings, were built, the architects and general public felt that the so-called fireproof construction was such a step in advance and such a great improvement over the old wooden beam construction, that little or no thought was given to the protection of floor openings.

As fire resisting buildings grew larger in area and taller in height, with the consequent increased amount of valuable contents, attention began to be directed toward the spread of fire from one part of the building to the other.

Fully twenty years ago this principle was admitted by architects, and loft buildings in the City of New York were built with enclosed fireproof stairs, and elevators with solid doors. Sometimes these doors were of wood for the staircases and open grille work for the elevators.

Shortly thereafter the doors for the stairs and elevators began to be made fireproof, and the vent shaft openings that pierce these also had fireproof windows and wireglass provided, and at the present time for tall buildings, with a view of preventing the spread of fire from one part of the building to another, it is not only important to protect all openings, either horizontal or vertical, that communicate with parts above or adjoining, but also to construct the exterior windows with metal and wire glass so that the fire will not communicate from one floor to the other by the outside of the buildings. —Julius Franke in "Insurance Engineering."

Foreclosure of Mortgage.

An error in a mortgage and in the complaint in an action to foreclose it describing one of the lines of the premises as running "southwesterly" instead of "southeasterly" will not relieve the purchaser at the foreclosure sale from completing his purchase, according to a decision of the New York State Court of Appeals, in the case of Downes vs. Wenniger, just printed in the Law Journal.

But failure of the plaintiff to make the tenants in possession of the property parties to the action will relieve the purchaser from completing his title, whether they occupied by the month or by the year. The purchaser is not bound to incur the expense of independent proceedings to oust the occupants of the land whatever may be the character of their tenancy.

Prevailing Rate of Wages.

The Court of Appeals, in a decision handed down recently holds that a subcontractor doing the granite work on a municipal building in the City of New York was not required by the Labor Law to pay to his quarrymen and stonecutters getting out materials for the building in the State of Maine the prevailing rate of wages in New York City. Such quarrymen and stonecutters are not employed "on, about or upon" the construction of the building within the intent of the act.

The Thompson-Starrett Co sublet the granite work to the Mount Waldo Granite Works, a Maine corporation. The work of quarrying, cutting, dressing and trimming the granite was done in the State of Maine, and the workmen were paid $3 per day, the prevailing rate of wages there. The prevailing rate of wages for the same class of work in the City of New York is $4.50 per day. Wherefore it charged that Section 3 of the Labor Law was violated. The contractor and the subcontractor both agreed to comply with the provisions of the New York Labor Law.

The court said the statute was not designed to increase the wages paid to workmen in Maine.

Real Estate Bonds.

Holders of bonds will be interested in a decision handed down by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in a suit of the estate of Peter Decker against the New York Realty Owners to recover the face value of profit-sharing debenture certificates worth $12,000.

The defence was that the holders of such certificates have no right to claim payment until the dissolution of the company, and that to compel the company to redeem these certificates at their value before that time would cause the company to go into the hands of a receiver.

The Appellate Division upheld the Realty Owners' plea, but Justice Hotchkiss said: "If the decision about to be made is good law, then thousands of holders of various forms of income bonds and of bonds providing for fixed rates of interest . . . will be in jeopardy of having what they bought for obligations being turned into mere certificates of interest."

We invite inspection of our show rooms. Write or 'phone for colored art catalogue or our representative to call with full details.

EVERYBODY SEES THE DECORATIONS

Outward appearances make the first and deepest impression. Up-to-date builders and contractors are making a business asset of this important fact. They find that a richly decorated building is quickly tenanted or sold.

"Makes Stained Glass out of Plain Glass"

It gives the largest and richest decoration that you can get because of its fine color which is reflected over the dining room, library, bedroom and bathroom, just like expensive stained glass.

It is applied to windows, doors and partitions. It shuts out ugly views, gives privacy to bathrooms and air-shafts, imparting a general feeling of comfort throughout the entire home.

Our staff of experts is at your service with helpful suggestions and thousands of designs and will estimate on contract work. Will be pleased to consult with you without any obligation on your part.

Many a Building Has Been Quickly Rented or Sold Because of Its Attractive Decoration.

To avoid imitations, look for trade-mark, Windowphanie

Modern Improvements

Isn't it true that ofttimes some small modern improvement goes a long way towards selling and renting your houses?

Take for example the plan that has recently been adopted by some builders of placing in newly built apartment houses electric washing machines and outlets in the kitchen for electric ironing and cooking.

Does any one doubt, all other things being equal, that these apartments are the ones that will be sold or rented first?

Families of today are educated to demand the comforts and conveniences of electric service, and they are quick to see the advantage of living in an apartment that will minimize the drudgery of housekeeping.

We have other ideas along these same lines. Drop us a line and we will talk them over with you.

BUREAU OF BUILDINGS.
City of New York.

May 28, 1913.

Note—The following communications have been sent out from the office of Rudolph P. Miller, Superintendent of Buildings, relative to specifications for steel structures promulgated by the American Bridge Company as recently published in the Record and Guide, including one to the Hon. Abram Herbst, hairman of the Committee on Buildings, Board of Aldermen, relative to steel specifications. They are published in full for the benefit of architects of the metropolitan district.—Ed.

Bureau of Buildings,
City of New York, May 28 1913.

American Bridge Company,
30 Church street,
New York City.

Dear Sirs: While we have no desire to question the high standard of these specifications or the justification of the practices to be established by them, your attention is, however, called to the discrepancies between certain provisions of your specifications and the requirements of the New York Building Code, in the following partiulars:

	Building Code.	American Bridge Co.
Extreme fibre stress (bending):
Built girders	14,000	16,000
Pins	20,000	24,000
Shear, shop rivets and pins..	10,000	12,000
Shear field rivets	8,000	10,000
Shear bolts	7,000	10,000
Shear, webs of plate girders.	9,000	10,000
Bearing pressure on shop rivets with connection angle on each side of web...	20,000	30,000
Bearing pressure on shop rivets with connection angle on one side of web ..	20,000	24,000

According to the column formula of the American Bridge Company's specifications, Columbus having a ratio of slenderness between 40 and 90, have a greater capacity than that allowed by the Building Code. There is also a difference in the assumptions to be made in figuring the stresses due to wind.

The purpose in speaking of these differences is merely to caution against the use of these specifications for work in New York, without at the same time considering the requirements of the Building Code. If advantage is taken in structural work in Manhattan of the high stresses provided in these specifications, the plans for the same are likely to be disapproved as not being in accordance with the requirements of the Building Code.

Yours truly,
Rudolph P. Miller,
Superintendent of Buildings.

	Building Code.	Amer. Bridge Co.	Amer. Ry.Eng. Assn.
Bearing pressure on shop rivets with connection angle on each side of web..	20,000	30,000	.....
Bearing pressure on shop rivets with connection angle on one side of web.....	20,000	24,000	24,000
Bearing on field rivets and turned bolts.	15,000 (?)	20,000	20,000
Bearing on rough bolts	15,000 (?)	16,000	.....

In connection with the design of plate girders, there is a further limitation that when the unsupported length (1) of the compressive flange exceeds ten times its width (b), the stress per square inch shall not exceed 19,000 – 300 1/r.

It is to be noted that the unit bearing pressure of 30,000 lbs. per sq. inch for shop rivets is to be used for beam connections consisting of an angle on each side of the web. This high value was arrived at as a result of tests (not published) and is merely an attempt to discount the friction developed between the web and the connection angles.

According to the Building Code, wind pressure shall be taken at 30 lbs. per sq. ft. on the exposed surface, but the permissible working stress may be 50 per cent. greater than is allowed for stresses due to dead and live loads. This is equivalent to a wind pressure of twenty per square foot, using the same working stress as for dead and live loads.

The specifications of the American Bridge Co. require a pressure of 30 lbs. per sq. ft. for buildings in process of construction, and 20 lbs. per sq. ft. for finished buildings, allowing an increase of 25 per cent in the working stresses for "bracing and combined stresses due to wind and other loading, provided the section thus found is not less than that required by the dead and live loads alone." In other words, where the wind stress does not exceed 25 per cent. of the stress due to other loading, it may be disregarded.

The requirements of the specification relating to details of construction and workmanship have long been recognized as standard, and are usually included in all specifications for high class work.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) H. I. OSER.

May 27, 1913.

Hon. Abram Herbst,
Chairman Com. on Buildings,
Board of Aldermen,
51 Chambers St., City.

Dear Sir: In connection with your revision of the Building Code, it might be worth while to take into consideration the differences existing between the recent specifications for structural steel of the Amerian Bridge Company and the requirements of the Building Code, as indicated in a recent report of one of the engineers of this Bureau, copy of which is enclosed.

From the report you will see that this Bureau does not feel that the American Bridge Company's specifications are improper or unreasonable, except in certain particulars noted in the report. The only serious objection raised on the part of this Bureau in this respect, is the use of a unit bearing pressure of 30,000 pounds per square inch for shop rivets to be used for beam connections. The present figures of the Building Code should be adhered to in this respect.

Yours truly,
Rudolph P. Miller,
Superintendent of Buildings.

AN INDEX FOR ALL 1912 DECISIONS OF THE BOARD OF EXAMINERS

Compiled by Mrs. M. M. D. Clark, For Twenty Years Secretary of the Board.

THE Record and Guide herewith publishes a complete index of all decisions (as well as appeals withdrawn) that have been handed down by the Board of (Building) Examiners of the City of New York during 1912. This is the first time such an index has been published. It is a ready reference for architects who may be desirous at any time of quickly obtaining information regarding building precedents, giving, as it does, the number of the appeal, the Bureau number, the classification of objection, who the appellants were, and the decision of the Board at a glance. The index covers four boroughs, Manhattan, Brooklyn, Bronx and Queens and gives subject of objection.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Including Contemplated Construction, Bids Wanted, Contracts Awarded, Plans Filed and Government, State and Municipal Work

Altman Addition to Cost $2,500,000.

Marc Eidlitz & Son, 489 Fifth avenue, received the general contract on Wednesday to erect the twelve-story addition to the Fifth avenue department store of Benjamin Altman, and operations will be under way by July first. When the new addition is completed, the building will occupy the whole block bounded by Fifth and Madison avenues, 34th and 35th streets. The new section will cover the entire block front on Madison avenue, from 34th to 35th street, and will add to the length of the present building 95 feet in 35th street and 145 feet in 34th street. On the Madison avenue front the building will be twelve, and possibly sixteen, stories in height. The present Fifth avenue front is but eight stories. The construction will be in Italian Renaissance, conforming with the present building. Trowbridge & Livingston, 527 Fifth avenue, the architects, estimate the cost of the new addition at about $2,500,000.

Shape & Bready to Plan $4,000,000 Hotel.

Shape & Bready, 220 West 42d street, Manhattan, have been selected architects for a ten-story hotel, 225x225 feet, to be erected at Montreal, Canada, on the block known as the St. George's Church property. Edward C. Fogg and P. G. S. Hooke, managers of the Hotel Belmont, Park avenue and 42d street, Manhattan, are the owners, and George Ross, of Montreal, has been retained as consulting architect. Owing to the Canadian law governing church properties, the new owners will not get possession of the site before next June, 1914, when operations will be started. The plot contains 55,000 square feet, and the cost of the building is placed at $4,000,000.

Plans for "Professional Building."

Plans are still in progress for the thirty-story "Professional Building" which the 262 West 72d Street Company, of 258 Broadway, J. L. Waldenburg, E. B. Lyon and J. Kooperstein, directors, are to erect at the southeast corner of West End avenue and 72d street, on a plot 100x88 feet. Francis H. Kimball, 71 Broadway, is architect. No contracts have yet been awarded. The building is intended principally for the use of physicians, surgeons, dentists, chemists, oculists, architects and other specialists.

Another Riverside Drive House.

Nathan Wilson, Southern Boulevard and 163d street, who recently purchased the plot at the north side of Riverside Drive, through to 160th street, 102x100 feet, contemplates the erection of a twelve-story apartment house on the site, but no plans have yet been prepared.

Bloomingdale's Not to Build Branch.

Samuel J. Bloomingdale, dry goods, 59th street and Third avenue, denies the report that he will erect a branch store on property which he has just purchased at Thompson avenue and Fitting street, Long Island City. He may erect a taxpayer there, but not for his own occupancy.

Plans for 81st Street Apartment.

The McMorrow Engineering & Construction Co., 271 West 125th street, owner and general contractor, will be ready to receive estimates on all subcontracts about June 18 for the twelve-story apartment house, 75x92 feet, to be erected in the north side of 81st street, 225 feet east of Columbus avenue, at a cost of $450,000. Neville & Bagge, 215 West 125th street, are completing the plans. The old buildings occupying the site are now being demolished.

NEW GURNEY ELEVATOR FACTORY. Plant at Honesdale, Pa., Required to Handle Increasing Business.

On a site covering six acres in Honesdale, Pa., there has arisen within the last few months one of the largest establishments devoted to the manufacture of electric elevators. The plant, just completed, cost more than $200,000, and its equipment consists entirely of the most modern devices and appliances that the market affords for producing the high grade of elevators that has been responsible for the rapid rise in this market of the popularity of the lifts bearing the name of Gurney.

The extension of the company's manufacturing plant was made not only to meet the heavier drains upon the company's producing capacity, but to keep the cost of its products down to the minimum commensurate with high-grade workmanship and reliability. Standing, as it does, beside the tracks of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, something like $30,000 a year alone will be saved in haulage, and this means greater elevator efficiency without corresponding cost to the consumer. Throughout the entire new plant, this idea has been carried out, namely, to cut down cost of production and at the same time provide for even greater perfection in elevator construction and operation.

The new plant includes a foundry, casting cleaning department, casting storage department, pattern storage house, heavy machine shop, light machine shop, electrical department, assembling department, woodworking department, forge shop, structural shop, storeroom, finished machine storage, shipping department, heating plant, business offices and draughting rooms, and operating office. All these departments have been laid out with a view to extending all or any individual part of the plant as the company's business expands.

Conspicuous among the plant's features is a tower, approximately six stories high. Here is where all Gurney electric elevators are tested before being sent out in every way that an elevator in actual service would be subjected to, plus maximum usage. Weight, wrenching, safeties, control and emergency stopping devices—all receive a severe test in this tower before the cars are packed for destination.

The plant is built of brick, laid around steel framework; the window sashes are of metal, and even the roof is laid over a steel frame. In addition to these fire-retarding structural features, the building is thoroughly equipped with every modern fire-fighting device, so as to protect at all times not only the workmen, but the high quality materials that have done their share to make the Gurney electric elevator earn the reputation for service the officers, H. F. Gurney, E. K. Little, W. D. McQuesten and W. L. O'Connell, president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, respectively, have insisted must always be the paramount point of Gurney Electric Elevator Company's policy.

Concrete House in Colors.

The May Bulletin of the Universal Portland Cement Co. contains an illustrated article showing a residence in Evanston, Ill., built with concrete blocks of three distinct colors and textures obtained at a very slight additional cost over plain blocks. The house is one of creditable architecture, costing in the neighborhood of $7,000, and typical of a great majority of suburban homes, with a garage built in the basement and generous porches on both floors. That as attractive a building as this appears to be, is possible with concrete blocks is proof that the material is susceptible of much wider treatment than has been accorded by the average block maker and equally good results may be obtained by many architects if they understand what may be expected in this rather new material.

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no offcial designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1913.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instance names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page, is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

A REVIEW OF THE NEW FACTORY LAWS

Property Owners and Business Proprietors May be Arrested for Violations, but Factory Operatives Are Immune—Some of the Fire Commissioner's Powers Taken Away.

DURING the last session of the Legislature thirty bills were introduced at the instance of the Wagner Factory Investigating Commission, of which only five failed to become laws. A number of these measures relate exclusively to rural industries, such as the canning of fruits and vegetables, but several others make radical changes in the law governing the employment of women and children in industrial and mercantile establishments, the plain purpose of which is to promote the safety, health and comfort of the operatives, especially those who may have been the helpless victims of rapacious employers.

All for Employees.

The striking peculiarity of all this factory legislation is that, while it bristles with demands and restrictions upon property owners and business proprietors (for disregard of which they may be punished criminally), factory workers remain substantially immune from statutory exactions and criminal prosecutions. They may refuse, with impunity, to heed fire alarm signals or to participate in fire drills.

No punishment is provided for meddlers who tamper with fire extinguishers or for employees who carelessly or wilfully throw inflammable materials upon floors, instead of depositing them in refuse receptacles. Indeed, employees may disregard every provision of the laws relating to the general safety and well-being of their fellows—including all sanitary regulations and fire precautions of every description—without risking fine or imprisonment. The only exception to this general condition is that smoking in a factory is punishable as a misdemeanor, whatever the status of the offender may be.

A State Board of Factory Control.

From a governmental standpoint, the most important of the new laws are Chapters 145 and 695 of the Laws of 1913. The first of these provides for a thorough reorganization of the State Department of Labor and a widely ramifying extension of its jurisdiction, which is achieved, in the main, by the creation therein of an inquisitorial and legislative body—the Industrial Board. This board is to consist of the Commissioner of Labor and four associate members, who are to be appointed by the Governor, subject to the approval of the Senate.

The Legislature has conferred upon the new body the broadest and most sweeping powers concerning the construction of factory buildings and the regulation of industries therein, including the authority to enact what may be termed industrial ordinances, that are to have the force of law. Violations of provisions of the industrial code, or of the regulations or orders of the board, are declared to be misdemeanors and are to be punishable as are offenses against the labor law itself.

Powers of the Industrial Board.

An idea of the scope of the legislative jurisdiction, which has been delegated to this new arm of the Labor Department, may be gathered from the following quotation from the new law:

"§ 51. The board shall have power * * *

4. To make, alter, amend or repeal rules and regulations for guarding against and minimizing fire hazards, personal injuries and disease, with respect to

(a) The construction, alteration, equipment and maintenance of factories, factory buildings, mercantile establishments and other places to which this chapter is applicable, including the conversion of structures into factories and factory buildings;

(b) The arrangement and the guarding of the machinery and the storing and keeping of property and articles in factories, factory buildings and mercantile establishments;

(c) The places where and the methods and operations by which trades and occupations may be conducted and the conduct of employers, employees, and other persons in and about factories, factory buildings and mercantile establishments; * * *"

Fire Commissioner Loses Powers.

By the other measure (Chapter 695), which amends the Fire Prevention Law, the Fire Commissioner, after October 1, 1913, will be stripped of the more important of his powers and duties in respect of factories and factory buildings, including particularly his control of the means of egress therefrom.

Apparently, the new statute expressly excepts factories from the jurisdiction of the commissioner to require the remedying of dangerous conditions existing in such places, in violation of any law or ordinance respecting fires or the prevention of fires. Doubtless it was the intention of the draftsmen of the statute merely to relieve the Fire Commissioner of control of the means and adequacy of exit from factories; for Section 774 of the Charter, as amended by the new act, provides: "The Fire Commissioner shall enforce all laws and ordinances and the rules and the regulations of the Industrial Board of the Department of Labor in respect of (1) the prevention of fires."

But this general authority concerning the control of fire perils in factories seems to be curtailed by an amendment of the following section of the Charter, which was effected by the same act, namely:

"§ 775. Powers of the (Fire) Commissioner. The commissioner is empowered to * * *

"2. Order, in writing, the remedying of any condition found to exist in, on or about any building structure, * * * place or premises, except tenement houses, and except factories as defined by the labor law, in violation of any law or ordinance in respect to fires or to the prevention of fires, except the tenement house law."

Under the circumstances, it is more than likely that local jurisdiction of fire conditions in factories has been reduced to the control of fire alarm installations, fire extinguishing equipments and fire drills. This seems to be a relapse to the condition of divided responsibility for the protection of factory workers against fire perils, which is generally believed to have made possible the Asch Building disaster.

"Home Rule" Sacrificed.

So, too, the jurisdiction of the local Board of Health is seriously encroached upon by a number of laws providing amendments to the labor law concerning the lighting, ventilating, plumbing, cleanliness and general sanitary conditions of factories, including bakeries. Another of the laws makes drastic changes in the regulations concerning industries carried on in tenement houses, and possibly conflicts, in some degree, with the tenement house law and the general jurisdiction of the Tenement House Department.

Wholesale Transference of Functions.

Whether or not the wholesale transfers of functions from local officers and boards to a new State body and to the Commissioner of Labor, attempted by the new factory laws, properly harmonize with the "home rule" provisions of the Constitution remains to be determined by the courts. However this may be, many of the new amendments to the labor law seem to be repugnant to the spirit, if not to the letter, of the so-called "home rule law" (Chapter 247, Laws of 1913), the avowed purpose of which is to give to the cities of the State a larger measure of control of their purely local affairs and interests. The apparent conflict of these new statutes will not add to the security of factory workers, any more than it will promote the interest of taxpayers and business proprietors.

The Cost.

The financial demands the new factory acts will make upon property owners and manufacturers will be numerous and, in some instances, burdensome. They will bear more severely, however, upon those who may hereafter erect factory buildings. The original bill of the Factory Commission, relating to the construction and the allowable number of occupants of factory buildings, would have been utterly ruinous to the owners of loft buildings of the older type, for it would have caused a general closing up or tearing down of all such structures, particularly in the section below 14th street.

By intelligent and persistent effort, however, the measure was pruned of its most confiscatory provisions respecting existing buildings; nevertheless, as enacted, it contains several causes for worry to owners of such structures. Other laws requiring expensive changes in plumbing and ventilation, the installation of fire alarm equipment, and material structural alterations will not appeal to the sense of humor of property owners in the old loft districts.

Divided Responsibility.

It remains to be seen whether or not the good results, which may be expected from the operation of many of the salutary provisions of the new industrial laws, will offset the dangers and disadvantages that will probably arise from a return to the policy of divided responsibility concerning factory conditions, and particularly fire perils. In this connection it should be recalled that under the present administration of the New York Fire Department, covering a period of two years, there has not been a single instance of a factory fire in which more than one of the work people of the building perished. There have been individual fatalities, due to minor explosions or to carelessness or unavoidable accidents, but there has been no disaster of any consequence during the period that the entire responsibility for safeguarding factory workers against fire perils has been centered in our Fire Department. It is to be hoped that another frightful industrial tragedy will not be awaited to demonstrate the unwisdom of departing from the policy of single, competent, local control of fire dangers in the factories of New York City.

Laws Should Be Studied.

The new laws sponsored by the Factory Commission should receive the careful and immediate consideration of all owners and lessees of factory buildings. Many of these measures particularly concern architects and builders interested in loft building construction. Copies of any of them may be obtained, without cost, upon application to the Secretary of State, at Albany, mentioning the number and subject thereof as follows:

A Surprise in the Fire Law.

What is believed to be only an "inadvertence," just discovered in the fire prevention law, will have the effect of curtailing the powers of the Bureau of Fire Prevention in the Fire Department until a correction can be made by the Legislature. It is the understanding of the Corporation Counsel's office that the Governor will be asked to permit the introduction of remedial legislation at the special session to be called.

An act passed at the last session was intended to lay upon the Fire Commissioner the duty of enforcing "the rules and regulations of the Industrial Board of the Department of Labor," as well as all laws and ordinances in respect of (1) the prevention of fires, (2) the storage, sale and transportation of combustibles, (3) the installation and maintenance of fire alarm systems and fire extinguishing equipment, (4) the means and adequacy of exits, and (5) the investigation of the cause, circumstances and origin of fires, and the suppression of arson.

One other change the Legislative Factory Investigating Committee wished also to make in the jurisdiction of the Fire Commissioner, so as to relieve him of the supervision over exits in factories and assign that duty to the Department of Labor. Senator Wagner, therefore, caused an amendment to be inserted which made the provision read as follows (new matter in quotation marks):

> (4) The means and adequacy of exit, in case of fire, from all buildings, structures, enclosures, vessels, places and premises in which numbers of persons work, live, or congregate from time to time for any purpose, except tenement houses "and except factories as defined by the labor law."

Through a clerical inadvertence the same additional words were inserted in Subdivision 2 of Section 775, making it read as follows:

> (2) Order, in writing, the remedying of any condition found to exist in, on or about any building, structure, enclosure, vessel, place or premises, except tenement houses, "and except factories as defined by the labor law," in violation of any law or ordinance in respect to fires or to the prevention of fires, except the tenement house law.

As to the consequence of this unintentional change in the law, authorities differ. Some claim that the only power taken away is contained in the phrase, "as defined by the Labor Law," and that the labor law referred to is Chapter 194 of the Laws of 1913, which prohibits smoking in factories.

Commissioner Johnson holds that the new law takes factory inspection for the most part out of his hands, and this he gives as a reason for not appointing women as inspectors in the Fire Prevention Bureau. In particular terms he says:

"In this amended law the factories are excepted from the fire prevention law in exactly the same sense as tenement houses. The Tenement House Department does its own inspections as to the fire peril, and it is the evident intention of this law that the Industrial Board of the Department of Labor make its own inspections as to factory conditions."

Boards of Survey.

The attention of owners, lessees and occupants is called to a further amendment in the same act which changes the make-up of the Boards of Survey. If one who has been served with a violation order questions its validity and reasonableness he may make a written demand for a survey of the premises affected by the order within forty-eight hours. Upon the receipt of a demand for a survey the commissioner shall immediately issue an order for the same, naming three persons to act as surveyors.

Under the amendment referred to one of the surveyors shall be an architect or builder selected by the person demanding the survey. This gives the owner a representative on the board. Another surveyor is to be selected by the commissioner from the Bureau of Fire Prevention and a third from a list furnished by New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, or by the Brooklyn Chapter, or by the New York Society of Architects, or by the American Institute of Consulting Engineers. Under the previous law the Board of Fire Underwriters nominated one of the surveyors.

A Better Chance for the Owner.

Other matter added to the law is quoted in full:

"The date and hour when the survey shall be made shall be stated in the order therefor. A copy of such order shall be served upon the person demanding the survey at least twenty-four hours before the hour fixed in the order for the holding of such survey, and he shall have the right to be present and be heard at the same in person, or by agent or attorney; provided that such copy of an order of survey may be served as provided generally in respect of service of orders of the department, by section seven hundred and seventy-five of this act. If the person demanding the survey neglects or refuses to appoint such surveyor, the other two surveyors may make such survey; and in case of disagreement of the latter they may appoint a third person to take part in such survey who shall also be an architect or builder of at least ten years' experience."

CENTERS OF SPECULATION IN TENEMENTS

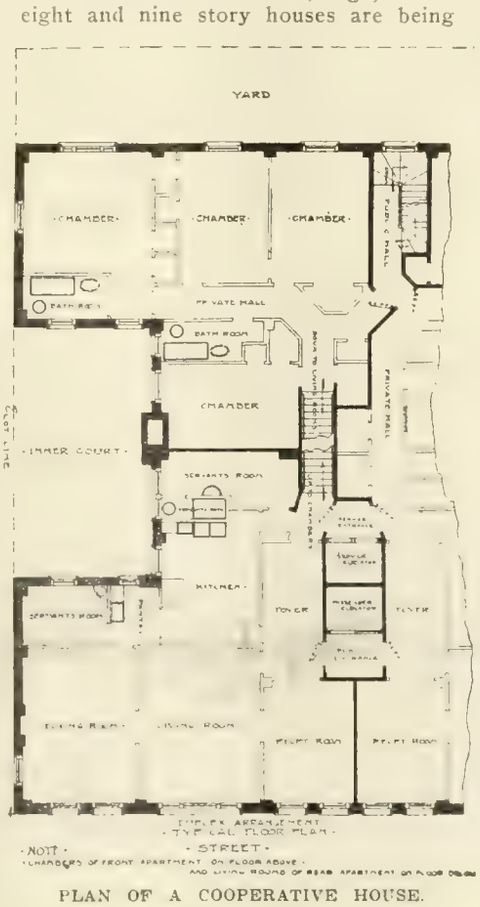
Number of Houses Lessening Every Year—Average Costs in the Different Boroughs—Corner Lots Compared With Interior Lots—Dimensions of Buildings.

NUMERICALLY, Manhattan building construction is rounding its perihelion. In actual numbers there are fewer buildings in the borough than a year ago. For apartment houses and tenements the exact extent of the decrease is known, but for other buildings it can only be estimated. A count of all the buildings in the city is being made at the present time by the Tax Department, and the result will appear in the annual report soon to be issued. In Greater New York the number of buildings will steadily increase for many years to come, but for the central borough every passing year will record a decrease.

Of buildings in the tenement classification there were 232 less in Manhattan on January 1st of this year than a year ago, and 830 less in the city at large. The explanation is that old houses are being demolished in large numbers to make way for larger buildings, which may be either apartment houses or business buildings. More houses of the tenement class were actually erected during the last calendar year than in the preceding one, but no less than 2,367 old tenements were either demolished or otherwise removed from the list during this one year in the five boroughs. In Manhattan alone the disappearances numbered 441, in The Bronx, 72; in Brooklyn, 1,624. Queens was the only borough in the city which increased the number of its tenements.

Ocean Avenue, at Beverly Road. Cohen Bros., Architects.

BROOKLYN'S APARTMENTS BELONG TO A DISTINCT TYPE.



Fifteen Thousand More Apartments.

The total number of apartment or tenement houses completed in the whole city last year was apparently 1,432. This figure is deduced from statistical tables of the Tenement House Department which have been compiled for the past year and forwarded to Mayor Gaynor, by Commissioner John J. Murphy. After the construction of this number of new houses and the elimination of 2,367 old ones, there remained a net increase for the year of 830 houses containing 15,326 apartments or suites of rooms, or the equivalent of accommodations for about 60,000 more people.

The number of buildings for which plans were actually filed in the five boroughs last year was 1,875, of which Brooklyn erected 838, The Bronx, 605, Queens, 250, and Manhattan, 179.

These new houses would have represented 12,434 more apartments in The Bronx, 9,547 in Brooklyn, 65,398 in Manhattan, 1,736 in Queens, 39 in Richmond and 30,154 in the whole city, had there been no deductions on account of old buildings demolished. In each borough the new work presents a different aspect. The prevailing Manhattan type, which for many years was a five-story building, was long ago superseded by the six-story semi-fireproof elevator apartment house, but now one almost dares to say that the big twelve-story fireproof house has become the prevailing type. Surely it is the prevailing one on the broad avenues of older sections of the borough, while eight and nine story houses are being erected in the lateral streets of the best residential sections. South of Cathedral Parkway the six-story elevator house, considered so fashionable a few years ago, can scarcely be counted among the "four hundred" now. Private apartment houses, which are sometimes "cooperative," and are most prevalent on Madison and Park avenues, held the premier position for several years, but are not now being produced numerously. Indications there are that the apartment-hotel type, broadened and beautified beyond the old model, and without the odors from the cuisine permeating it as of old, will meet the ideals of a large section of well-to-do New Yorkers better than any other type of house, though it will never be the one preferred by the most exclusive families.

Brooklyn apartment houses oftentimes have a prettiness and quality all their own, to distinguish them from their fellows on the opposite side of the river. The latest Bronx houses are closely related architecturally to Manhattan houses. When not children of the same parents, they are at least cousins. Brooklyn's new houses, on the other hand, are not even distant relatives, so individualistic is their appearance.

PLAN OF A COOPERATIVE HOUSE.

Total and Average Costs.

Each year brings some changes in centers of activity upon which experienced operators base their judgment of speculative tendencies. For number of operations, as well as for the number of buildings planned Brooklyn leads, but for total estimated expenditure Manhattan has first place, with The Bronx second. Brooklyn planned last year 838 tenement houses of all grades, containing 40,532 apartments and estimated to cost $15,828,900; The Bronx planned 605 houses containing 12,434 apartments and estimated to cost $24,890,051; and Manhattan 179 houses with 6,398 rooms estimated to cost $31,225,000.

From the foregoing totals it can be figured that the average Manhattan apartment house costs $174,000, the average Bronx apartment house, $41,000 and the average Brooklyn apartment house, $18,000

Most Active Centers.

In Manhattan the most active center both last year and the year before was north of 155th street, or more particularly the Fort Washington section. But only 56 houses were planned for this center in 1912, as against 81 in the year 1911. Morningside Heights was comparatively inactive last year, and as the section is nearly all built over, it will never again occupy the prominent place in the plans of the speculative builder that it did for the first ten years of the present century.

The section between 72d and Cathedral Parkway on the West Side, once called the "West End," started 27 big houses last year as against 19 the year before. South of 72d street to 59th street on the West Side only 5 houses were started, and south of 59th street to 14th only 9.

Only 40 of the 179 houses in the tenement classification which were planned in the entire borough last year were situated on the East Side, and only 32 of the borough's total of 203 in 1911. In brief, the sections wherein the finest apartment houses in the whole city are being created are at the West End and along Park avenue on the East Side. The new houses on Washington Heights are principally of the six-story type.

In The Bronx, building activity in tenement houses was confined last year to three principal sections: (1) south of 170th street and west of Bronx river, (2) north of 170th street and west of Bronx river, and (3) north of 170th street and east of Bronx river.

In Brooklyn the principal centers of speculative activity in tenement houses are, in the order named, East New York, Bedford, South Brooklyn, Brownsville and Flatbush. There is comparatively little doing in apartment houses on Park Slope, Greenpoint, Williamsburg and Bushwick.

Gaetano Ajello, Architect.

ON RIVERSIDE DRIVE AT 114TH STREET.

Ridgewood has been the busiest section of Queens Borough in past years but was less active last year than in 1911.

Sixty-one of the 179 apartment houses of all grades planned in Manhattan Borough during the year 1912 were over six stories in height, 62 were of the height of six stories, 51 of five stories and only five of four stories, none being of less height. Thirty-four houses had a frontage of more than one hundred feet each, 18 were from 90 to 100 feet wide, 9 between 75 and 90 feet in width and 32 between 50 and 65 feet. Seventy were erected on corner lots and 109 on interior lots.

In The Bronx 139 tenements were built on corner lots and 466 on interior lots, and in Brooklyn 111 were built on corner lots and 727 on interior lots.

More four-room apartments were built in Manhattan last year than of any other size, 1,691; of three-room apartments there were produced 1,426, and of five-room apartments, 1,165.

The subways for which operating contracts have just been signed by the city authorities are expected to give point and direction to speculative building for a period of years, but just when the movements will begin depends on local needs and conditions. Tenement house work is not likely to anticipate the completion of new transit facilities by as wide an interim of time as private-house construction.

PAYMENT OF ASSESSMENTS.

How the Total Sum Can Be Divided and Paid in Instalments.

Attention is called again to the provisions of Section 1019 of the Charter of the City of New York which allows the payment of assessments for local improvements in sums of fifty dollars or multiples thereof; also to Chapter 684 of the Laws of 1913 amending Section 1019a of the Charter, which provides that the owner of any parcel of real property upon which an assessment for a local improvement has been confirmed after January 1, 1908, may pay such assessment in instalments if the assessment exceeds three per cent. of the assessed valuation of the parcel made in the actual valuation for the purposes of taxation in the calendar year next preceding such confirmation.

First Make Application.

An application in writing must be made by the owner to the Collector of Assessments and Arrears, who must divide the assessment into ten parts as nearly equal as may be. One part thereof in any event shall be due and payable and as many more such instalments shall be due and payable as years have elapsed since the entry of such assessment for collection.

Such instalments as are due with interest at seven per cent. on the amount of the assessment unpaid shall be paid within ten days after such division. The remaining instalments shall not be liens upon the real estate, except one annually.

One of the remaining instalments with interest at five per cent. shall become a lien and be payable annually on the date of the entry of the assessment. If they remain unpaid when due, they will bear interest at seven per cent. annually and the property may be sold for non-payment as if the whole assessment had been a lien from the beginning and had not been divided.

An Example.

For example, if the assessed value of the piece of property is $3,000 and the assessment is more than $90, so that it exceeds three per cent. of the valuation, it may be divided into ten instalments, one due at once and one every year. The instalments which are not due will not be liens on the property until they become due. The instalments not due bear interest at five per cent. After they are due, they bear interest at seven per cent., until paid. The instalments not due, with interest at five per cent., may be paid at any time.

If the property is condemned by the city for public uses, the instalments shall become due as of the date of confirmation of the report of the commissioners in the condemnation proceeding and shall be set off against any award that may be made for the property acquired. When an award for damages shall accrue to the same person who was liable at the time of the confirmation of the assessment for an assessment for benefit on the abutting property, only the portion of the assessment in excess of such award may be considered in making such division into instalments.

THE WEST SIDE WATERFRONT CHANGES

Where the 1200-Foot Piers Will Be Built, the Lands to Be Taken and the Nature of the Ultimate Rearrangement of Terminal Facilities.

PERHAPS it is not generally understood that the two long piers to be constructed on the Hudson River between 44th and 46th streets will in reality be the beginning of the great West Side terminal improvements that the city is undertaking. They will be part and parcel of the reorganized harbor facilities, although brought into being as a separate work and in advance of a full determination of the general scheme. They will be followed eventually by other piers of similar construction, to be built between 47th and 59th streets, with the exception that the basin at the foot of West 52d street, which has been set apart by the city charter as a landing place for Hudson River freight boats, will not be molested, at least until other docking facilities for this particular market can be provided, with the approval of the Legislature and the consent of the building material interests.

FOOT WEST 44TH-46TH STREETS, NEW YORK CITY.

This is a photograph of the pier at the foot of West 44th street now used by the French Line. The remainder of the territory needs no description; it conclusively shows the unimproved locality which is in a dilapidated condition, and official figures show that the return to the city from this territory in its present condition is not as much by considerable as the cost for its maintenance. It represents a loss to the city as it now exists.

Lands to Be Taken.

A photograph of the site for the two new piers shows land of far more value and importance to the public than its appearance would indicate. At present it is used for domestic commerce, but the city wishes to give it over to the foreign steamship lines, which can afford to pay higher rentals into the city treasury than the owners of the small boats which bring our local supplies of brick, cement, coal, stone and lumber. As the piers will be 1,200 feet in length, they will cut back into the land about five hundred feet from the present bulkhead line, or to within four hundred and fifty feet of Eleventh avenue. Beginning thirty-five feet north of the north line of 44th street, the lands needed for the improvement extend to the center line of the block between 47th and 48th streets.

On the immediate waterfront the land is occupied by coal pockets, building material yards and small shops. The two blocks bounded by Eleventh and Twelfth avenues are occupied principally by the Consolidated Gas Company and in part by the Standard Oil Company. No map of the lands to be taken has yet been approved officially, and no condemnation commissioners have been appointed.

The piers will adjoin the French line pier on the north and will be used by the gigantic new steamships now being built on the other side. According to present understanding, as set forth in the report of the Terminal Committee of the Board of Estimate, the New York Central Railroad Company will be permitted to construct, at its own expense, a four-track subway through what is now private property from 59th street to 45th street, the railroad right of way to leave the 60th street yards at the corner of Twelfth avenue and 59th street, immediately west of the westerly curve of the Interborough's present power house, to curve thence eastwardly through private property to a point sufficiently distant from the waterfront to permit of the construction of 1,200-foot piers with appropriate bulkhead space, to pass southwardly through private property at a grade identical with that of Twelfth avenue as it exists today, to a point on the southerly line of 44th street, at which point the railroad right of way will curve back to Twelfth avenue.

A New Twelfth Avenue.

Between 59th and 44th streets it is proposed that the railroad company construct at its own expense a roof over its entire right of way, 100 feet in width, which will constitute the surface of a new Twelfth avenue or marginal way between 59th and 44th streets. It is further proposed that the railroad company, entirely at its own expense, both as to construction cost and grade damages, change the grade of each side street between 59th and 43d streets to conform to the new grade of the new marginal way as laid out over the roof structure covering the railroad tracks.

This access at two levels will mean that all side streets west of Eleventh avenue will be carried out to the new marginal way over the railroad tracks at practically a level grade, and that access for street traffic to the new piers to be constructed within this region will be at two levels, the upper level being that of the side streets and giving access to the second story of the new piers, the lower level being that of the bulkhead on the same grade as the railroad tracks and corresponding to the present level of Twelfth avenue, and being reached by ramps down from the new marginal way to be constructed at points shown upon the plans. This lower pier level can be reached also at the present grade by traffic moving northward along the bulkhead from 42d street.

Access at Two Levels.

This plan for access at the two levels to the new double-deck 1,200-foot piers has been submitted to representatives of all the principal steamship companies, and has received their unqualified approval. The Chief Engineer of the Board of Estimate, one of the members of the Terminal Committee, has expressed the opinion that the proposed plan would create within the limits named the best, most convenient, and the most sightly waterfront plan found anywhere in the city of New York.

The only element of cost to the city entailed is a cost which the city would be compelled to bear whether this plan were adopted or not, namely, that of acquiring the land necessary for the new marginal way and the land lying between the new marginal way and the present Twelfth avenue. This land the city would have to acquire in any event in order to permit of the construction of the 1,200-foot piers. As far as the railroad's plan for a subway between these points is concerned, the entire cost, direct and consequential, will be borne by the railroad company.

PROPOSED WEST SIDE DOCK IMPROVEMENT.

This is an illustration of how the territory north of 46th street may be improved, gradually, to meet the demand of commerce and to be continued, relatively, with the city's financial ability to do so, by which the city may preserve its supremacy as the first port of the world. The principal object of this illustration is to conclusively show the wisdom of the policy of the present Administration in relocating Twelfth avenue sufficiently far inland to make this steamship terminal possible and at the same time to protect all interests whether they be landowners, manufacturers or commercial enterprises. To permit Twelfth avenue to remain where it is would ruin this location for all time to come for a modern steamship terminal, in the opinion of the Dock Department. It would not permit the building of piers longer than those now existing at the Chelsea section.

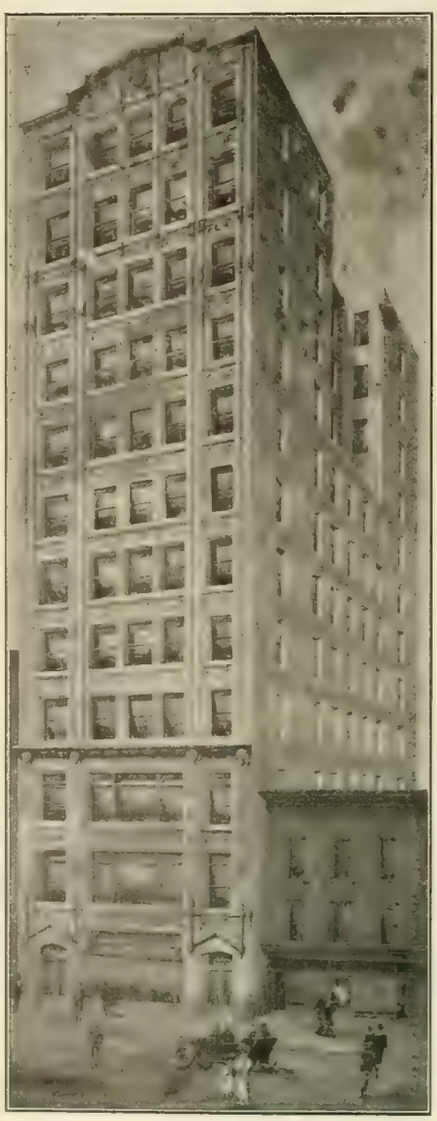
At the southerly side of 44th street, where the railroad right of way curves back to Twelfth avenue, it is proposed that the railroad be permitted to begin to rise upon an elevated approach structure, which will be carried southward along Twelfth avenue to a point opposite the railroad's present 30th street yard, to permit of access to that yard at the upper level as hereinbefore described.

The Terminal Committee, while reluctant to consent to the construction of even as small a section of elevated approach as that proposed, came to the conclusion that there was little reason for a refusal on its part to consent to this device or approach to the yard as far as the district between 30th street and the southerly line of 42d street is concerned, since in this region the elevated approach would be flanked on one side by railroad yards, and on the other side by railroad piers. The only disadvantage in the plan which presented itself to the committee was the elevated crossing at 42d street.

Latest Fourth Avenue Showrooms.

The Polo Construction Company, owner and builder, will proceed at once with the erection of the twelve-story office and showroom building at 329-331 Fourth avenue, between 24th and 25th streets, in the heart of the silk and dry goods trade. The entire front will be of granite, limestone and terra cotta to the roof. The steel construcion has been so designed as to show no interior columns and obstructions of any kind. There will be two electric elevators with all safety devices, and the best sanitary improvements. The cost is estimated at about $200,000.



Henry Villanme, 151 West 30th street, is president, and C. J. Jeppesen, Inc., 62 West 45th street, engineer. The Alfred E. Norton Company, 105 West 40th street, has the structural steel contract; New York Terra Cotta Company, 1170 Broadway, terra cotta. The wrecking was done by Gerson Greene & Company, 89 Clinton street. The building will be ready for occupancy about November, 1913.

BIG OUTING OF TAXPAYERS.

House and Real Estate Owners at College Point Hear City Economy League Extolled.

An ideal day, excellent attendance, and good speakers served to make the annual banquet and outing on Wednesday, of the House and Real Estate Owners' Association of the 12th and 19th Wards, at Donnelly's Grove, College Point, L. I., one of the most successful that the prosperous organization has ever enjoyed. The outing this year marked the completion of a quarter of a century of activity of the association, which may be called the oldest and largest taxpayers' alliance in the country. It was founded in 1889 by Conrad Harres, who was one of the guests of honor on this occasion.

329-331 FOURTH AVE.

To appropriately commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of its existence, two surprises were sprung. Henry Bloch, the vice-president, presented Mark Goldberg, the local assemblyman, with a written testimonial signed by the members of the association, to show their appreciation of the successful termination of his long fight in the Legislature for "free transfers" in various parts of the city.

Adolph Bloch, counsel of the association for many years, was presented with a gold watch, as a token of the esteem in which he is held by the members for the work he has performed in behalf of the organization. He was the principal "after dinner" speaker and unqualifiedly endorsed the new big Taxpayers' Movement, now known as the "City Economy League," and with which he is associated as chairman of the executive committee. He said in part:

"A critical point has been reached in the financial status of the city when its indebtedness has increased 250 per cent. in the past ten years, while the population has increased but 40 per cent. If such large expenditures continue the situation will become very serious. While the city will not go bankrupt, yet it is nearing the constitutional limit of indebtedness, 10 per cent. of the assessed valuation of its real estate. The Board of Estimate has been beset by probably well meaning people, who in the guise of charity have secured vast sums of money for expenditures which were not of comparatively great importance.

"Property today is generally over-assessed, and yet it bears 96 per cent. of the total municipal income. Now is the time for taxpayers to come forward and assert their rights."

Carefully avoiding the casting of aspersions at the members of the Board of Estimate, whom he considered a fine body of men, he pointed out how much money had been recently expended and how much more was to be spent, particularly criticising the recent purchase of the forty-four acres at Neponsit,

A MADISON AVENUE CHANGE.

An Instance of the Tendency to Prefer Apartments to Dwellings.

At the northwest corner of Madison avenue and 68th street, there is nearing completion an apartment house which is a unique enterprise in some respects. In the first place, it is built on the site of the residence of Henry G. Marquand, which, not long ago, was considered one of the very finest residences in New York. The fact that any commercial development should be planned that would contemplate the tearing down of a magnificent residence in order to get the choice of several comparatively equal sites shows how readily apartments of the finer class are taking the place of our more majestic homes.

Not only was the Marquand residence demolished, but two others almost equally as fine on Madison avenue, of similar architecture, were also included in the site and wrecked. There are today quite a number of unimproved corners of suitable size for large apartment houses in the section of Madison avenue between 59th and 72d streets, and that this particular site should be chosen presents some unusual aspects.

No Demand for the Residence.

The most notable is that there was no demand for a private residence of the finer class, as the Marquand house had been vacant ever since the death of its owner, and probably would have remained vacant for very many years to come. That a residence which was far from uninhabitable, which was dignified, and the architecture of which would still appeal to modern taste, should have been torn down together with its neighbors, and a house put up to accommodate not the four families which the residences would have accommodated but approximately forty, and that the originators of this enterprise should have expected to compete with the great number of very superior apartments which have been erected on Park avenue, on Madison avenue, and on the side streets between those avenues, shows that the absorbent power of the market is continuous; and not only that, but the buying power of the public has not decreased, but is able to make successful a house with rentals as high as $7,200 a year. This is not considered an extravagant rental for the better class of apartments, and shows that the better class of tenant prefers an apartment at a rental of from six to eight thousand dollars rental in preference to a private house with its maintenance charges and rent or carrying charges which as a rule would not equal these amounts.

No Duplex Apartments.

A notable point of Marquand House and of some of the latest developments on the upper East Side is that there are no duplex apartments in these houses. Another feature of Marquand House, in which it represents the increasing demand and increasing culture of the class of tenant which it is designed to accommodate, is in the absolute simplicity of its architecture. The day of over-elaboration of apartment house architecture is apparently passed, and in Marquand House the materials—almost entirely a grayish-buff brick—carry out the great simplicity of the design of the facades. It is to be seen, therefore, that the expense of building may be reduced to a minimum without any sacrifice of rentals.

The suites in this house will run from six rooms and two baths to thirteen rooms and four baths, and the rentals asked from $1,600 for the very small suites on the ground floor to $7,200 for the larger ones on the upper floors. The interior courts are small, and the main light court is on the 68th street side of the building running out to the street, giving street frontage to the rear apartments on each floor. There are seven bay windows on each floor divided among the apartments according to the various floor plans, a feature which has not been emphasized in the more recent apartment house architecture.

The architect, Herbert Lucas, who was also the designer of the house on the site of the Poor residence at Gramercy Park and Lexington avenue, laid the entire emphasis on the homelike character of the apartments rather than an expensive ornamentation of the building, which has produced a certain atmosphere that is well worth paying for. A photograph of the house will be found in the Record and Guide of Dec. 28, 1912.

Widening of 42d Street.

A special meeting of the 42d Street Association was held on Friday at the Manhattan Hotel in order that the property owners, taxpayers, tenants and rentpayers might take action regarding the removal of the kiosks at the subway entrances on 42d street on the east side of Madison avenue. This work was proposed and has been pending for over a year, but has been continually delayed owing to a difference concerning the cost between the transit company and the city authorities. The removal of the kiosks and the placing of the subway entrances back at the side of the buildings, for which plans have been prepared, would permit of the widening of 42d street up to Madison avenue, which has also been left uncompleted, pending the removal of the kiosks.

At the meeting attention was called to the fact that there are six different entrances, three on each side of 42d street, to the subway station. One entrance in the new 42d Street Building, one on the southeast corner of 42d street, where the unsightly kiosk exists, and also an entrance in the Belmont Hotel. On the opposite side of the street there is an entrance at the Grand Central Station, and entrance on the northeast corner of 42d street and Madison avenue, where the other objectionable kiosk exists and is a source of danger to pedestrians.

TRANSIT CELEBRATION.

Chairman McCall Carries Important News to Queens Citizens.

The controlling element at the Queens rapid transit celebration last Saturday at Long Island City was the downpour of rain, and next to that the announcement by Chairman Edward E. McCall of the Public Service Commission that the Steinway tunnel would become the property of the city within fifteen days, was the most important incident. The announcement was received with applause, which was renewed when he added that within four months from the day on which the city took title to the tunnel, trains would be running through it between Fourth street, Long Island City, and the Grand Central station in Manhattan.

Among those who occupied seats on the platform were Borough President McAneny of Manhattan, President Miller of The Bronx, ex-Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission, William H. Williams, Walter I. Willis. Commissioner Leavitt was the chairman. The new Queens flag was raised alongside the national emblem. The rain dispersed the assemblage, but as many as could get in fled to the Queens Chamber of Commerce, where Judge McCall continued his speech.

Preliminary to the luncheon and the speechmaking, several hundred visitors to Queens were taken in automobiles over the Astoria and the Roosevelt Avenue-Corona routes of the subway. Workers were engaged along both routes in digging excavations for the pillars of the elevated structure. Bronze medals were given as souvenirs.

A stop was made at Elmhurst where the Queensboro Corporation had raised a tent for patrons and friends and where a special celebration was held.

Educational Trips of the Bureau of Buildings, New York City.

The members of the Engineering Division of the Bureau of Buildings, Borough of Manhattan, recently made a trip of inspection to the National Fireproof Company's Raritan, Standard and Perth Amboy terra cotta mills. This is the second trip of the engineers of the bureau, the former trip having been taken to the Vulcanite and Alpha cement mills at Easton, Pa. The purpose of these trips is to bring the engineering staff in closer touch with the processes of manufacture and the properties of the building materials with which they deal. The superintendent, Rudolph P. Miller, has set aside occasional Saturdays throughout the year to be devoted to this phase of the bureau's work.

New Neighbor in Madison Square.

Plans have been completed for the new building to be occupied by the Lincoln Trust Company, on property facing Madison Square, being 204 Fifth avenue, and running through to 1124 Broadway. The building is 28 feet wide and will be three stories in height, the banking room being 26 feet high, with a mezzanine floor at each end. The basement will be fitted up in the most approved manner for the safe deposit company, and the facades on Fifth avenue and Broadway will be of limestone. The building will be thoroughly fireproof and equipped with all up-to-date conveniences. Present building on the site will be torn down immediately, and the erection of the new structure will be hastened as rapidly as possible. The architect will receive estimates in about a week, no contracts having yet been awarded.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Company.

THE PART OF THE MANAGER IN RENTING.

PART TWO.

By LOUIS B. DAILEY.

(Member Chas. F. Noyes Co., New York.)

A WORD here with respect to the necessity for careful preparation for important interviews: Collect your facts and arrange your arguments so that they may be best applied to the tenant under immediate consideration. In emphasis of this point, I recall a lease made several years ago. My chief had been demanding that we make an inroad on a certain line which would be of undoubted benefit to the building if we could start a movement our way. The difficulty was to get the first tenant, and almost invariably our first interrogation was, "What firm in our line has taken space in your building?"

Convincing Your Man.

Finally, however, the opportunity came, rather unexpectedly and through a broker who happened to be a strong personal friend of one of the three partners. The line-up was as follows: One partner favored our building, one was neutral with a conservative tendency toward remaining in the building which had been their home for sixteen years, and the third and senior was strongly opposed to moving. The negotiations continued over a period of several weeks with little or no progress, the senior delaying while his landlord had time to frame up new propositions which could compare with the physical layouts we were able to offer and which our competitor could duplicate only subject to existing leases.

Four Hours' Preparation of a Three Minute Talk.

A final interview was arranged between the three partners, the broker and his partner, the vice-president of our company and the writer. We met in the directors' room, and for upward of an hour examined various layouts on different floors, analyzed the different propositions, our own and our competitors', and rehashed and repeated the various arguments we had been making for several weeks, but without getting anywhere. At last the senior partner announced that he had heard enough, thanked us for the trouble we had taken and stated that his final judgment was that it would be unwise and impolitic for them to move from a building with which they had been identified for so many years.

Apparently we had lost, and as the brokers sought their hats and prepared to depart our vice-president, who up to this time had taken a more or less passive attitude, and had participated in the conference in a desultory way, jumped to his feet and said he would like to answer that one argument. The psychological moment had arrived. It was the time for action, and for the next few minutes there was action. His manner and opening sentence demanded and obtained complete attention, and the skill with which he stated his arguments, their orderly and logical presentation, and the complete conviction which seemed to sway him, carried the day.

He contended that he had completely answered the argument and demanded a reversal of the judgment on the basis of his answer. And he got it instantly. A verbal acceptance was given, and in five minutes we were filing out of the office victors instead of vanquished. Within thirty minutes we were subsequently informed their landlord came forward with a new proposition, having all the physical advantages offered by our lease; and had the deal gone over to another day, a lease with us would not have been possible. Within six weeks seven leases were made, directly traceable to the first.

As we were returning to our office I remarked to our vice-president, who has charge of a dozen buildings, and who might be excused if he did not have at his tongue's end all the arguments for a particular building, upon the completeness of his answer. And he replied, "I spent just about four solid hours preparing that little three-minute speech. When you are hunting bear have your gun loaded."

Let Your Prospect Do His Own Renting.

This incident, recited at possibly too great length, emphasizes still another point. Don't talk too much. Don't waste your ammunition. Let your prospect talk; find out what it is—to him—your weak spot and meet it by a new suite on another floor or in a new location. Do not feel that you must be talking all the time and ramble vaguely through a list of good points only to scatter your fire and make no impression whatever. Remember that a vigorous, incisive, effective argument at the right moment is what usually does the trick. Help your applicant to find what he is looking for at a price approximating his present rental, if possible, and if your space is more expensive, show him wherein it is more valuable. Do not try to rent him something he does not want and will not be satisfied with by glossing over its defects or misrepresenting the facts, or in carefully concealing serious objections which will appear at once with occupancy. A traveling salesman can sell goods in this fashion and get away with it, for he comes today and goes tomorrow, but you have to live with your tenant. It may take him some time, but he will even up the score, and if you have not been frank and fair in your negotiations you alone are the ultimate loser.

Organization of the Renting Office.

Much depends upon the organization of the renting force and the conduct of the building office. In the first place, the renting office should be nicely appointed, with attractive space and, when possible, in a convenient location. It is a mistake to place the office to which your prospective tenants must come in a dark, gloomy place, for the tenant at once receives a bad impression, against which you must thereafter contend. Vacant space which perforce you must show your tenant is never attractive, and your prospect's observations in your own suite do much towards creating a favorable impression.

A strictly business-like attitude must at all times be observed by office employees. No lounging, gossiping, smoking or reading should be allowed and courtesy must be the watchword. Employees whose duty it is to receive visitors and learn their business should be instructed carefully as to their method of interrogation, so that the name of the visitor and nature of the business can be obtained without unnecessary questioning. The great improvement noticeable in telephone service of recent years has been due in part to the rigid rules adopted by the telephone company in requiring operators to observe certain carefully studied forms of questions and answers from which they may not depart.

A Way to Soothe the Savage Tenant.

The wise renting manager when organizing his force will search the town over for an assistant of the opposite sex. A clever woman in the office of the building is a distinct asset. A building containing 4,500 occupants, a city in itself, is peopled with a mass of ever shifting, assorted humanity, hailing from the four quarters of the globe, with different standards of judgment and of different temperaments, training and ideals. The office of the building is the central station to which all their inquiries and complaints are directed, and infinite patience and tact is required to maintain harmony and peace in such a household. If your esteemed tenant's table has not been dusted and there are other visible evidences of a cleaner's neglect, what happens? Why Mr. Tenant cannot get to the telephone quick enough and he is prepared to give Mr. Manager a raking over the coals.

In a towering rage he asks for the manager, but a soft voice sweetly informs him that Mr. Manager is not in, and can she do anything for him? Already his anger has started to subside, and when he is pleasantly informed that the cleaner for his suite was ill that morning and that the forewoman would be right up to correct any neglect, he is about ready to believe that the building is not so badly managed after all. But let him get hold of Mr. Manager, and we will hear that the tenant is in the worst managed building in the city, run by first-class ignoramuses who do not understand the first principles of management. There is one building in lower New York with a capable woman of this type, who knows the vacant space as well as the renting men, and not infrequently in the absence of the regulars has shown space and with such cleverness that a high percentage of prospects has been ultimately leased.

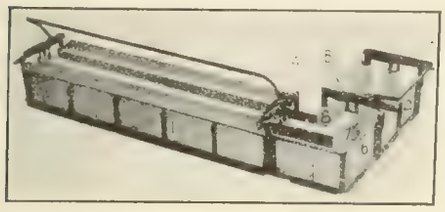
Mortgages as Security.

If the mail order business houses can sell 7 per cent. preferred stock at a premium on original subscription, then a first mortgage at 50 per cent. valuation, on a good farm paying 6 per cent. interest ought to be worth $300 for every $100 invested. The security of basic dirt over a postage stamp business ought to be worth the difference.—Real Estate Board's Bulletin.

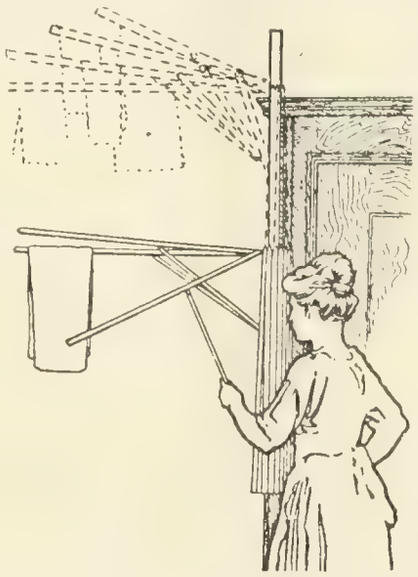


USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.

Machine for Making Hollow Walls.

An innovation in hollow concrete wall construction is being introduced by the Von Guilder Hollow Wall Co., of 718 Chamber of Commerce Building, Rochester, N. Y. It consists of a series of adjustable, metal forms, permitting the casting of hollow wall in the solid piece with one or more continuous air spaces. The distinctive feature of the system lies in the fact that the concrete is tamped and laid in the wall direct, thus doing away with the loss of setting virtue, very frequently experienced when concrete is mixed at a distance. This system makes use of freshly made concrete, just sufficiently wet to crystallize all of the cement, with the result that remarkably strong walls are said to be obtained.



The accompanying illustration shows one 5-foot and one 2-foot straight machines coupled together to construct a corner of a building. This is accomplished as follows: First the wall chambers are adjusted to the desired thickness and then the outside corner door 6 is adjusted by lengthening, if the walls are to be thicker, or by shortening, if the walls are to be thinner than four inches. Then the edges are coupled to the two straight edges. The machines, having been set up on a floor or level surface, are then attached to the outside corner door 6, then the core 7 is placed, and if the machine is set for 24-inch walls the iron plates will rest on the projections. If the inside wall is to be more than 4 inches thick the core 7 is adjusted by removing the iron plates on the top and screw pieces of wood to each end of the core to make it fit the machine. This is then set in position between the machine and put on iron plates again so they will engage with the air chamber. If the outside wall is to be more than 7 inches thick each side of the corner door 6 is let out so that they may be coupled to the machine. In the illustration, Figures A and B represent the locking plates of the corner mold, and Figure 2 shows the 2-foot machine, and Figure 1 the 5-foot machine. Figure 8 is the inside wall.

Builders who have used this device speak very highly of its efficiency, and some go so far as to say that this system represents not only something new in concrete wall construction, but a system which may develop revolutionary tendencies.

An Improved Clothes Dryer.

Persons having in charge the equipment of apartment houses will be interested in the new device being introduced by the Universal Clothes Dryer Co., Newark, N. J. The distinctive features of this device are that it can be attached to the wall or casement, may be easily removed and contains thirty feet of drying surface. Furthermore, it can be raised to the ceiling as shown in the accompanying illustration, thus utilizing space which the ordinary dryer would take up. For drying blueprints and wash drawings or for displaying drawings of different details of buildings for perusal of contractors in architects' offices, this device seems to have a special application, because undoubtedly it meets a need which has long been felt not only in kitchens but in offices because it can be hoisted out of the way. The cost of this device is remarkably low.

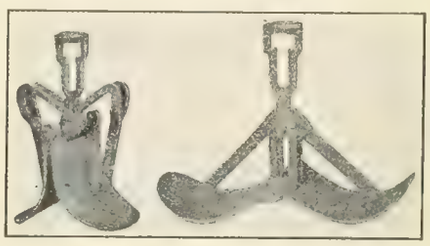
A Cold Drawn Steel Union.

The Mark Manufacturing Co., of Chicago, is putting on the market a pipe union, which differs radically from others on the market, although there are already numerous forms and types from which to choose. The difference lies in the fact that it is made of cold drawn steel throughout.

These cold drawn pipe unions are made from flat strip steel by the cold drawing process, making a fitting that is seamless and free from structural defects. The Mark union consists of the usual three main parts, male and female ends, joined by a coupling nut. All of these parts, as well as the brass seat ring, are drawn cold from flat stock, each piece subjected to a series of operations, of which we illustrate four stages in the manufacture of the male member.



The Mark union is threaded to Briggs Standard for pipe threads, and so carries the same taper as the pipe. In this respect it is different from most unions on the market, which are tapped straight through. Another feature is that it is made of the same material as used in wrought steel pipe, which makes the expansion of steel unions under heat the same as the expansion of the pipe.

The contraction when cooled is also the same, thus there is no tendency to stretch a Mark union, as in the case of malleable unions, which do not expand as much, and to which the expanding pipe gives a permanent set. A booklet describing this product will be sent from the Mark Manufacturing Co., Post Office Box "G," Chicago.

A New Type of Anchor.

The problem of obtaining an anchor that will meet a continued pull in soils that are liable to become loosened through heavy rains or leaks in water pipes, and especially in foundation work where springs are liable to weaken substrata, has become an important one in recent years. Subsurface conditions in New York City are very peculiar, ranging from hard granite down through mica-schist, sand, quicksand and silt, and for that reason our readers may find in an anchor of novel design being manufactured by the Alyea Manufacturing Co., of West Washington street, Chicago, Ill., a device which may meet some of their requirements. The anchor has a special merit when used in soft earth or loose rock, because it enters the ground in a closed position and the harder the pull the firmer it takes hold by reason of the expanding qualities of its flukes. It is made in such a way as to be non-destructible, and salt water seepage cannot affect its longevity.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

"A Cord of Stone."

The query in relation to a cord of stone appearing in this department recently has brought forth the following statement from the Picton Island Red Granite Company of 320 Fifth avenue.

Answer: From the book by Austin T. Byrne, published in New York, 1911, by John Wiley & Sons, entitled "Inspection of the Materials and Workmanship employed in Construction," we find, on page 462 that a cord of stone is 99 cubic feet, or 4 perches, and a perch is given as 24.75 cu. ft.

The Strength of Granite.

Can you advise me regarding the weight and strength of granite and any other facts regarding its qualities of which you may know?

Answer.—Granite is two and two-thirds times as heavy as water; its specific gravity is 2.663. A cubic yard of granite weighs exactly three-quarters of a ton. The strength of granite is tremendous, although the different granites vary greatly. Poor granites will withstand a pressure of 18,000 pounds to the square inch. Good, close-grained granite will withstand 30,000 pounds; but certain Wisconsin granites have withstood a crushing pressure of 43,973 pounds to the square inch.

The publication office of the Record and Guide has been removed to the twenty-second floor of the Lewisohn Building, 119 West 40th street. Our new telephone number is Bryant 4800.

The next article in Mr. Bruere's series will appear on June 21. It deals with the practical measures that may be adopted for obtaining efficiency and economy in the city administration. In a notable way it fulfills the promise of its suggestive title, "Obvious Next Steps for Taxpayers," by laying down a constructive program.

The Yale Club this week closed the lease of the site at Vanderbilt avenue and 44th street which it has had under negotiation for some time with the New York Central Railroad Company, and it is understood that the work on the new twenty-two-story clubhouse will be started shortly. With two such structures as the Biltmore, erected over the Incoming Station, and the Yale Club, Vanderbilt avenue will be one of the busiest places in the city at all hours of the day or night, despite its apparent insignificance on the map.

The Windsor Land and Improvement Company reports that it sold $596,778 worth of lots during the spring months of April and May. Some of the lots were in Queens, but the majority were in Nassau County. From the results obtained so far this month, the company's June sales are expected to reach or extend beyond the $200,000 mark. This record, coupled with the showing at the Morris Park auction and the recent lot sale at Jamaica, is extremely interesting, in view of present conditions in the market for city real estate and in other investment markets. How do you account for it?

The Brooklyn Waterfront Negotiations.

The report made by the committee of the Board of Estimate on the Brooklyn waterfront rounds out one of the ablest and most successful pieces of constructive business negotiation ever undertaken by the municipal authorities of this city. When the present administration came into power it was confronted by two problems of supreme importance—the problem of providing the city with adequate means of transit and of providing an adequate machinery for transacting the growing business of the past. The first two years and a half of its life was occupied with the settlement of the subway question—which was more complicated, both from the technical and scientific points of view than that of any other American city. After many vicissitudes a really adequate solution was finally reached to which many men contributed, but which owed more to the Borough President of Manhattan, Mr. McAneny, than to any other individual.

During the past year an equally earnest and careful consideration has been bestowed upon the problem of the development of the port of New York, and in this almost equally important work, the former President of the Board of Aldermen, John Purroy Mitchel, has accomplished more than any one of his colleagues on the committee. He has given a prolonged and patient consideration to the question involved, and the city owes a great deal to him for the ability with which he has served its interests.

The solution of the problem of port development was complicated by the fact that the city had strained its financial resources in providing for new subways, and that it could not contribute much money or credit to the support of any plan of port improvement. It was obliged to enter into negotiations with existing transportation companies and use them for the purpose of financing and operating the new machinery. Of course the same policy has been adopted in the case of the subways, but in that instance the social necessities of the city dictated the construction of so many lines all at once, that the city had to guarantee the operating lines against loss and assume a very heavy contingent responsibility. In the case of the plan of port development, on the other hand, any arrangement made with the transportation companies had to be self-supporting from the start; and this condition made the attainment of many highly desirable objects impossible for the present. But the business interests of New York have no reason to complain about the result. It reflects credit upon the negotiators on both sides that, in spite of this condition so much has been accomplished. The proposed contracts retain all essential safeguards. The waterfront of the city and its necessary fixtures remain or become municipal property and subject eventually to the control of the municipal authority. The railroad corporations become tenants of the city property, and agents of the city in the essential business of handling its vast amounts of incoming and outgoing freight. This status has its advantages for the companies, because it relieves them of a certain amount of taxation, to which they would otherwise be subject, but on the other hand it places them in the situation of a servant of the city, who performs a certain service for a certain specific compensation. In the case of these contracts the service will be adequately performed, and the compensation will not be excessive.

The proposed contract with the New York Central company has been rightly criticized in some of its details, and it will have to be modified before it can be finally adopted; but there can be no doubt that it is essentially satisfactory and right. The New York Central is the one transportation company with an interest in the improvement of the machinery for handling freight coming into or going out of Manhattan. It already has a secure legal position along the Manhattan waterfront, from which it cannot be dislodged, even if it were desirable to do so. But it is not desirable to do so. That corporation must necessarily be the most effective agent, which can be used for the handling of Manhattan freight. The New Jersey corporations transact an enormous business with Manhattan receivers and shippers; but they are not ready to build into Manhattan for the sake of handling their business, and this fact makes it impossible for them to serve that particular borough as effectively as can the New York Central. The most important of the New Jersey roads is much more interested in the business development of Brooklyn and Queens than in that of Manhattan. The proposed contract with the Central recognized this underlying condition. It bestows additional franchises on the railroad which will enable it to ship freight into and out of Manhattan, in a most economical and efficient manner. The railroad supplies almost all the money for these improvements, and its compensation for so doing will be sufficient, but can never be excessive. A better example could not be afforded of the skillful employment by a big public corporation of a big private corporation as its agent for certain purposes under mutually advantageous conditions.

The proposed contract governing the Brooklyn waterfront applies the same principles to a somewhat different set of conditions. The city acquires the highly developed properties belonging to existing terminal and dock companies, which are leased to the transportation companies upon terms which will make the securities issued self-supporting from the start. When the work is completed and the Brooklyn waterfront connected with New England by the new bridge and with the West, it will be supplied with all the essential machinery of a thoroughly modern port; and a period of still more rapid industrial and commercial development will set in. What with the new barge canal and the improved means of handling railroad freight, the city will be far better equipped than ever before to transact in an efficient manner an enormous volume of business; and this development will take place just at the time when the completion of the Panama canal will improve the relative commercial position of New York and other Atlantic ports as compared with the large interior cities.

Graded Business Licenses as a New Source of Revenue.

It is an interesting fact that one of the first specific proposals in the direction of securing municipal revenue from sources other than real estate comes from the Progressive party. The county committee of that party recently unanimously adopted a resolution instituting an investigation into the whole subject. The preamble to this resolution emphasized the fact that the recent Mayor's commission, instead of seeking new sources of revenue from business or commercial sources, recommended a further burden on real estate. It pointed out in the following words the present grievances of the New York property owner:

"Well-informed and competent people believe that improved New York City real estate is already in many cases actually over-assessed and otherwise bears an utterly disproportionate percentage of taxation as compared with other business," and consequently is obliged to pay an unjust proportion of the burden of the city government."

It goes on to suggest that practically all lines of lucrative trade and business, which benefit from their situation in New York, do not contribute sufficiently to the burdens of taxation, and finally it points out that other American cities derive a large income from business license taxes, and that New York might well do the same. The new taxpayers' association might well adopt a resolution, supplementary to that of the Progressive county committees, providing for an exhaustive investigation of this matter of graded business licenses. Such an investigation should bring out the amount of income derived from this source, the effect of such licenses upon business, and how far this effect depends upon the amount of the license. The problem to be investigated—that is, is how much of a license could be imposed without doing more harm than good by driving business out of the city.

A Solution for the Sewage Problem.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The following plan is offered for your consideration as a true solution for the most troublesome and expensive problem confronting the city of New York at the present time.

The sewage pollution of the waters of our rivers and harbor has become a menace to the health of the community, the officials having the matter in charge have evolved a series of plans, which call for the expenditure of from one to two hundred millions of dollars, for the construction and equipment of a system of disposal works. When built and equipped, the cost for operation of the works will, with the interest charges, be a heavy added burden to the city's budget of yearly expense.

In explanation of the necessity for the disposal works it is stated that the action of the tides, flood and ebb, is so nearly equal that the matter emptied in the rivers drifts back and forth for weeks, and in consequence a large part settles to the bottom and becomes a menace to the health of the entire metropolitan area.

The writer does not believe it necessary for the city to go in for a system of artificial disposal works at this time, and in support of such belief offers the following plan, whereby so large a measure of control over the tides can be had that the water of the rivers and harbor can be replaced by a clean supply every day.

To control the tides it is only necessary to construct a large canal (equipped with water gates) across Long Island, from the ocean to the point of lowest pressure on Long Island Sound, which is where the tides coming in from both ends of Long Island meet, the gates of the canal to be open only for the passage of flood tide water, the canal furnishing as it would a short cut and line of least resistance for the flood waters would be in effect, a tide race through which millions of tons of the clean water of the ocean would pass daily.

The gates being closed to the ebb, the water would flow down East River and the Narrows to the ocean, driving before it the sewage polluted waters of the river and harbor. During the flood period East River would be held motionless, the canal would be filling the hole now filled by the river and creating a pressure at its upper end equal to that exerted on the lower end by New York Bay.

What would the canal cost? To begin with, the cost would properly be divided between the city, the state and the national governments. The city is most vitally concerned, and is in a position to make such good use of the material excavated in constructing the canal that it would not be an expensive work when completed.

There are thousands of acres of tide flats and salt marsh lands in the vicinity of Westchester Creek, Pelham Bay Park, Harts and City Islands which could be reclaimed at comparatively small expense. With the more healthful conditions that would prevail because of the elimination of the swamp conditions, and the improvement of boating, bathing and fishing because of the canal, the land reclaimed would be greatly enhanced in value and would go a long way in paying for the canal.

The entire work of constructing the canal could be done at a great saving by the use of electricity, generated by the Long Island Railroad or some other company having a power plant within economical transmission distance.

The location of the canal would be governed by the desire to obtain the conditions for East River that have been mentioned. It seems as though the desired result could be obtained by connecting Hempstead Harbor and Jones Inlet at the east end of Long Beach. In conclusion, it can be said of the plan herein placed before you that there is nothing problematic about it, there are no engineering difficulties to be overcome and it will work out in the way that has been outlined.

THE MORRIS PARK SALE.

Brought to Light Unsuspected Investment Conditions.

At the time of this writing, fewer than 200 lots remain to be sold of the 3,019 comprised in the old Morris Park race track; and it looks as if the total realized at the big auction will exceed $3,500,000, or an average price of more than $1,200 a lot. The sale, when finished, will have continued nearly two weeks, and will take its place as the largest auction sale of lots on record, in point of both duration and number of parcels disposed of.

In view of the circumstances under which the sale took place, these are, perhaps, the questions that are likely to be most frequently asked concerning it: Do the results of the auction vindicate the business judgment of its promoters? What sort of prices were obtained? Has the sale any significance as regards investment conditions?

It is no secret that J. Clarence Davies and Joseph P. Day had a hard job to convince the State Banking Department of the possibility of successfully liquidating the property at this time; and, although Mr. Davies's word on matters pertaining to The Bronx goes a long way, indeed, there were many disinterested observers who doubted the outcome of the enterprise when it was publicly announced. Yet the sale is now admitted to have been an unqualified success from every essential point of view, not least so from the point of view of those immediately concerned with the liquidation of the property; and it is but fair to emphasize the circumstance that success was risked and achieved on what was distinctly a minority judgment.

As to the prices obtained, it must be conceded that they were remarkably good, except, of course, in comparison with boom times. Auction prices are generally, and for valid reasons, lower than those at private sale. Yet the bids at this auction were in many instances higher than the valuation at which adjacent lots were appraised before the dual subway plans were adopted. Meanwhile, there is no question but that the present buyers have received splendid value for their money. The sale, as a matter of fact, has changed entirely the prospects of all lots in the vicinity, because the distribution of some 3,000 lots among hundreds of purchasers must result in a building movement that will add new values not merely to the Morris Park sites but also to adjacent property.

If there were any doubt on this score, it has been removed by the announcement of Messrs. Davies and Day that the new owners are to be organized under the name of the Morris Park Estate Taxpayers' Association to insure the prompt introduction of such subsurface and other street improvements as will promote the rapid building up of the tract. By the way, it is something new in real estate auctioneering for the managers of a sale to lend their service to buyers after the auction commission has been earned. The idea, so far as is known, was first put into practice after the Van Cortlandt estate sale.

Before leaving the subject of values, the Record and Guide wishes to correct an error which got into its last week's report of the sale. Its representative understood Mr. Day to say in one of his "asides" on the stand that the Fidelity Development Company had paid $1,000 an acre for the property, and used that figure, although what Mr. Day actually said was $10,000 an acre.

There can be no doubt that the real estate situation looks a good deal better now, after the big sale, than it did before. The sale has demonstrated two important things: (1) that real estate, under favorable conditions, enjoys the unabated confidence of the classes from which it normally recruits investors, and (2) that these classes have accumulated savings of ready capital in considerable amount, despite the very indifferent prosperity of general industry in recent years. It may be true that the savings were brought out through an exceptionally able advertising campaign, but the significant fact, so far as the market is concerned, is that the savings did exist and that their owners were willing to act on a promising offer.

Later.—On Friday afternoon 113 lots were sold for $188,875, or at an average of $1,671 per lot, making a total for the entire sale of $3,781,700, or an average of $1,241 per lot.

"Taxes Greater Than Property Owners Can or Should Bear."

With this concise pronouncement a small but earnest gathering of taxpayers and boards of trade voiced a determination to exercise their best efforts to arouse property owners in Greater New York to concerted action for relief, on Tuesday night, June 9, at the quarters of the 24th Ward Board of Trade.

The meeting had been called by a committee from that body named to confer with taxpayers and taxpaying organizations. C. C. Hackett presided. Frank H. Tyler, in behalf of the City Economy League, spoke of the work and aims of that body, pledged its hearty support and solicited in exchange the support of the taxpayers of Brooklyn for the work of the League; he also distributed a pamphlet showing in what straits were the financial affairs of the city and what action was needed to bring about a remedy.

Magistrate Hylan of the Allied Boards of Trade complimented the 24th Ward Board of Trade for taking the present action and cited numerous instances of city wastefulness and poor financiering.

Messrs. Donohue and Bick of the Bedford and Park Avenue Board of Trade, Dr. DeWalthoff and Mr. J. Johnston, representing the West End Board of Trade, Mr. Binninger of the Midwood Park Association, Mr. Woodenbury of the Fulton Street Board of Trade, Mr. Fox of the Realty Associates, Mr. Dalmasse, Mr. J. Dumproff and Mr. McMehon all took part in the debate, and in conclusion the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, It is the sense of this meeting that the burden of taxation upon real estate in Greater New York is greater than property owners can or should bear."

That the chairman of this meeting be authorized to appoint a committee representing each body present with power to add to their numbers an equal number of their own selection, which committee shall consider ways and means to secure lower taxes on real estate in Greater New York, and shall arrange for a mass meeting of property owners on or before July 1, 1913, at which meeting the said committee will submit a plan to obtain the aforesaid object.

PAYMENT OF ASSESSMENTS.

May 24, of this year, Borough President Cyrus C. Miller, of The Bronx, says:

"While the law may be excellent because it allows owners to pay for the development of their properties by degrees, great care must be taken by the purchaser of property in localities where the assessments are not paid. Sometimes the physical improvements, such as regulating, grading, paving, etc., have been completed but the assessments have not been levied or paid. If a man purchases such property without inquiry as to which of the assessments have become liens and which have not become liens, he may be saddled in the future with a very serious debt and have his investment destroyed.

"Inquiries concerning such assessments should be made to the Bureau of Information, Borough Hall, 177th street and Third avenue."

TAXPAYERS' BIG OUTING.

which cost $1,200,000. He pointed out that the $225,000,000 in the subway building operation, Manhattan was asked to contribute the most to what is its own destruction, since the outlying districts which are to be benefited will shift values from the city proper to those sections.

"The aqueduct," he said, "is costing almost as much as the Panama Canal to build. The Board of Estimate has a difficult duty to perform, and it is for that reason that this new movement has been inaugurated. The Declaration of Principles, its hearty endorsement by many of the most influential citizens of New York City, and its wonderful growth, all tend to show the importance of the movement and this to be the psychological moment for action."

Assistant Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien also spoke. At the guests' table were Senator Boylan, Assemblymen Goldberg, Carroll and McCue, Aldermen Pouker and Riordan, Assistant Corporation Counsel O'Brien, Conrad Harres, Dr. A. Korn, Adolph Bloch and Henry Bloch. George H. Beck presided and acted as toastmaster. Handsome silver souvenirs were distributed.

The officers are George H. Beck, president; Henry Bloch, first vice-president; Frank Eberhart, second vice-president; George H. Heddesheimer, treasurer; Arthur G. Muhlker, recording secretary, and Charles H. Schnelle, financial secretary.

—The period of 1911-12 was the most notable for heavy construction in the history of the city, but no one can expect to maintain that gait all the time.

—The nine-story apartment house seems to be the new standard form of construction for improving inside lots in the Bloomingdale or West End sections. Under recent amendments to the tenement house law it is not technically difficult to bring nine stories within the legal bounds on a sixty-foot street. The Princeton Construction Company, of which Isaac Polstein is president, will erect two of this size in West 87th street east of Amsterdam avenue, to take the place of nine dwellings. Until now nine-story houses have preferred the section west of Broadway, but it is only a question of time when all the choice sixty-foot streets up there will be improved to the limit, both east and west of Broadway. This is the prediction of the local agents. On the lateral streets one hundred feet wide, twelve-story houses will be the rule. Somehow the renting population in non-elevator houses will adapt themselves to the higher rates required by the new houses.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

INDIVIDUALS IN GREATER NEW YORK BRICK CASE MAY ESCAPE CRIMINAL PROSECUTION BY AGREEMENT OF DISTRICT ATTORNEY AND COUNSEL—CASE UP AGAIN ON THURSDAY, JUNE 19, AT 10:30.

Efforts of Prosecutor and Complainants Will Be Toward Dissolution of the Gnybco Interests.

THE announcement from Washington that Secretary McAdoo, of the Treasury Department, was prepared to release $500,000,000 in emergency currency under the provisions of the Aldrich-Vreeland act came too late in the week to permit of a comprehensive survey of its full effect upon construction and building material markets or upon that part of the securities market upon which depends the strength or weakness of future building projects.

But the recovery on the Stock Exchange, which was especially noticeable in view of the very severe slump of a few days before, incidental to the receipt of the Minnesota railway rate decision, the improved tone noted among building material manufacturers and dealers on the floor of the Building Material Exchange, the signs of early easing of the money market—all showed the presence of a stimulating influence, and Secretary McAdoo was generally accredited with having brought the improved conditions about.

The building material and construction interests of the metropolitan district had just about reached the point of maximum tension, and the time was ripe for just such a pacifying influence as emanated from Washington to forestall the harmful effects that were sure to result when the West began to call for Eastern money with which to move crops. It was this contingency, more than tariff legislation or other causes, that worried building loan institutions, and the result was that everybody gripped their money bags tightly and held aloof from even gilt-edged building investments that would have been gobbled up in short order at any other time.

Then came the big Morris Park tract sale. This further tightened the money market, when savings banks of the city were heavily raided by depositors to take advantage of the forced sale. Naturally the savings banks were not as keen for mortgage money when their coffers were liable to feel the ebb of deposits in the direction of The Bronx. But even that was not all.

Owing to the fact that the Greater New York Brick Company and its twenty-four officers and directors were before the bar on criminal charges, few building material men were willing to contract very far into the future for brick, the staple of New York building materials, when they had no assurance as to whether the big selling organization would be in a legal position to guarantee execution.

They recalled without much trouble the conditions that brought about $12 brick in this district some years ago, and with these directors and officers serving possible prison terms they could not help but wonder what would become of the brick manufacturing plants that supply this market. It is small wonder, therefore, that with the promise of financial help from Washington to keep the securities market steady in the crop moving crisis and a prospective change of attitude on the part of prosecutor and complainants in the brick case that a firmer tone developed in the building material market as the week closed.

FRONT BRICK FIRMS MERGE.

E. M. Houghtaling Joins Forces With Fredenburg & Lounsbury.

TWO of the most prominent front brick distributors in this city will merge on July first and will be known thereafter as Fredenburg, Lounsbury & Houghtaling, with main offices at 381 Fourth avenue. The new company has been incorporated at $60,000 in Albany with William O. Fredenburg, Herbert D. Lounsbury and Edwin M. Houghtaling, formerly of the firm of Houghtaling & Wittpenn, as directors.

H. Otto Wittpenn, who retires from the widely known brick house, is Mayor of Jersey City and is an active candidate before the electorate of New Jersey for the office of Governor, which may account for his withdrawal from business. The attorneys in the incorporation proceedings were Phillips & Lavery of 41 Park row.

Mr. Lounsbury stated this week that the new arrangement would involve the selling agencies for front brick only and would not include the cement and other interests controlled by the old house of Fredenburg & Lounsbury.

BRICK SALES FIRM.

Volume Seasonable On Sales and Arrivals —Contracts Light.

WHILE contracts for future supply of Hudson River common brick are moderate in size and restricted in number, there is, nevertheless, a fair seasonable movement in barge quantities at the wholesale docks. Prices are without change, both in Hudson and Raritan River products. The tone of the market was much easier as regards future contracts, probably reflecting the possible change in line of procedure of the Greater New York Brick case.

The following are official Hudson River brick transactions covering the week ending Thursday night, with comparisons for a corresponding period last year:

HARDWARE FIRM ABSORBED.

Yale & Towne Take Up Patents and Business of the Joseph Bardsley Mfg. Co.

THE YALE & TOWNE MFG. CO. announce the purchase by it of the patents and business thereunder of the Joseph Bardsley Mfg. Co. The trade has been advised that the Joseph Bardsley Mfg. Co. will render bills for all shipments made prior to June 2 and will collect all amounts due on transactions prior to that date. It will also be responsible for the payments of all bills for materials and supplies delivered to it prior to June 2.

Hereafter the business will be conducted by The Yale & Towne Mfg. Co. in its own name and for its own account. It will accept delivery of all materials and supplies heretofore ordered by the Joseph Bardsley Mfg. Co., and will make due payment therefor, provided that it is notified in writing prior to June 16 of each such outstanding order.

The business consists in the manufacture and sale under the Bardsley patents of liquid door checks, liquid double acting and single acting checking floor hinges, screen door checks, wood knobs, etc. This consolidation of the two lines of product probably constitutes the most extensive group of door checking devices made by any manufacturer in the world.

WOULD DISSOLVE BRICK COMPANY.

District Attorney May Decide Not To Prosecute Criminally Its Directors.

TWO years ago to a day that the Greater New York Brick Company was organized—June 11, 1911—its officers and directors, 24 in number, figuratively stood before the criminal bar charged with combining to restrain trade in the manufacture and sale of common brick in New York City and vicinity.

But the coincidence was marked less by the irony of fate than in a happy suggestion that instead of trying criminally to prosecute the individual directors and officers of the defendant company, that the complainants concentrate upon an endeavor to force the dissolution of the big selling organization that represents the outlet for more than 600,000,000 brick a year in this market alone. To this suggestion former Deputy Police Commissioner Bert Hanson, of 42 Broadway, associate counsel with John DeWitt Warner, representing the complainants, Francis M. Weeks and others; Frank M. Patterson, who will be associated with John B. Stanchfield, the corporation lawyer, of 11 Pine street, as counsel for the defendant corporation, and Assistant District Attorney Platt, who will be associated with Assistant District Attorney Millard H. Ellison consented to participate in a conference to which Magistrate John J. Freschi may be invited.

At all events, the case will be moved for trial at 10.30 next Thursday morning in the Eighth District Magistrates Court in Westchester Village. As many witnesses as possible will be examined and adjournment may then be taken until the latter part of July, when one, or possibly two sessions may be called. Then adjournment will be taken until some time in the latter part of August, when several sessions will be devoted to the case. In September, a short session may be called and that carried over into October.

The reason for these delays was explained by Magistrate Freschi as being due to his various assignments. For twenty days in July he will be in the Third District, which is the busiest in the whole city; and twenty days after that he will be in the Sixth District and in the interim he will be in the night courts. He is therefore willing to hear the examination as fully as possible on Thursday and to this end he expressed a willingness to sit until 4 p. m.

When the case came up on Thursday morning only the counsel and Assistant District Attorney Platt were present to represent the principals although N. John Haines and several interested in the case, were among the spectators. Most of the session was taken up by an informal conference between the Court, counsel and Assistant District Attorney. The defense desired to have the case put over until later in view of the Magistrate's crowded calendar while Mr. Hanson, for the complainants, insisted that since now is the time when summer and winter contracts were being made, that it seemed to him to be allowing the other side an advantage to be allowed to continue to make contracts ahead while the case was being put over. He urged that the case go ahead at an early date.

Here the court pointed out his assignments and by way of illustrating how busy the Third District court was, said that he averaged 350 cases a day while the present city clean-up was in progress so that at best he could only give the brick case an hour and a half at the most at any session if it was carried into that district. Obviously, it was impracticable to take the sessions into the night courts and in the Jefferson market district counsel would find conditions but little changed from the Third district and for that reason the Magistrate suggested that the case be heard in the Westchester district, where practically all day could be given to the examinations.

Counsel for the defence wanted to have the court assure him of the privilege of cross-examining the complainants' witnesses, who may be brought to court from districts outside of the jurisdiction of the magistrate, just as the complainants would have the right to cross-examine the defendant's witnesses on the stand. The court thought counsel could agree on this matter.

It was at this stage that the suggestion was made that a conference be arranged between the District Attorney and counsel in the case. It was pointed out that unlike either the poultry or the ice trust cases, that in this issue there has not been any evidence to show that any of the defendant directors had knowledge or intent to violate the Connelly anti-monopoly law. (Since the alleged offense was committed within the borders of New York state, the Sherman anti-trust law does not apply.) Furthermore, it has been shown that the officers and directors of the defendant corporation obtained highly competent counsel and were advised by him that they were proceeding entirely within their rights and within the law to conduct the sale of common brick in this market along the lines as laid down by counsel which, it appears, has been religiously followed. In fact, the testimony now in brief in exparte-proceedings shows that the officers and directors of the defendant corporation had only

THE WEEK'S REAL ESTATE NEWS

Brokerage Sales, Auctions, Foreclosure Suits, Building Loans, etc., Together With Brief Personal Items.

The Brooklyn Market was the Most Active This Week.

Signs of summer apathy were evident in the week's trading, which was very light. The sales were few and unimportant. The most important deal was a trade of five West Side lots for a downtown loft structure. The Brooklyn market was encouraging for this time of year.

The total number of sales in Manhattan this week was 21.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 7, against 5 last week and 5 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 14, compared with 22 last week and 14 a year ago.

From The Bronx 12 sales at private contract were reported, against 9 last week and 10 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $3,549,164, compared with $912,661 last week, making a total since January 1 of $29,052,346. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $2,471,383, making the total since January 1, 1912, $27,633,073.

Loans on Concrete

Conservatism is the only plausible reason why investors should hesitate to loan money on a concrete warehouse, factory or loft building.

Concrete has proved itself the modern, economical and practical form of construction for industrial buildings.

Conservatism should not limit loans because even the "gray beards of the building game" admit that Turner buildings stand the test.

The real cost to you, of an ownership service, lies in its errors.

Each error costs youanywhere from $1.00 to $1000, in lost time and opportunity. We can furnish you with an almost perfect system. A really good service is very expensive to prepare and we cater only to those who want the BEST.

Write for seven exclusive features in the Real Estate Directory, any one of which is worth the full subscription price—more complete than ever. You should examine a copy at once.

the advice of counsel to guide them as there is no precedent covering exactly the situation as presented in this case. Even the Poultry and Ice trust cases do not apply in every detail.

In extenuation of the plan to change the nature of the proceedings it was suggested that in the case of the Greater New York Brick Company, the directors and officers were men who are in every single instance highly regarded in the communities in which they live and do business. Many have served with honor and distinction in public office without bearing a scar of disrepute. Others are heads of great industries whose prosperity is also largely the prosperity of not one but half a hundred towns and villages between this city and Cohoes on either side of the Hudson river. It would be an easy matter to go before the Grand Jury, which bears but one side, and ask it to indict men of this stamp and then drag the case through the courts for years. Many of these men are well along in years now. One has already died with the stigma of being identified with a criminal (?) corporation. As the case now stands, with the directors and officers of this corporation facing a criminal bar of justice, the sudden demise of any one of them would leave a biotch on their family name that even an ultimate acquittal of those who may survive the long prosecution could not efface.

It was suggested that the complainants in this case did not really intend to urge the prosecution to any such extreme as this; that the primary object of the complainants was to punish the corporation, as a corporation, for combining in a possible effort to control the brick market of New York City, and not to force independent competitors to come in or suffer commercial strangulation. The best interests of the People of New York would be wholly conserved by the dissolution of the offending company, if it can be shown that it is not operating within the law, and to this end, that of agreeing upon which the prosecution shall be limited to that point, the conference will be held.

If the conference results in such a decision, the counsel for the defendant company probably will waive examination and consent to go to trial at once and co-operate in carrying the case right through to completion. There are fifty witnesses to be examined whose testimony was taken in the original proceedings, but this number may be added to by either side and with cross examination the case, at best, will be ready to close before the fall building season is practically over, if then.

GRANITE WORKERS ON STRIKE.
Question of Equal Wage Scale in Quarries and City

FAILING in their attempts to obtain from the granite employers of New York the adoption of a wage scale they had previously submitted, all of the union cutters laid down their tools this week. The extent of the strike is variously stated, but so far as building operations are concerned, the industry is not entirely tied up. Many of the plants put non-union men at work this morning and the employers say that work has not been seriously interrupted. The workers say that about seventy per cent. of all the building and monument cutters are out, more than fifty per cent. representing membership in the organization.

The question at issue on the side of the men is the adoption of an equal wage scale in this city and at the quarries. At present the quarry cutters receive less than New York cutters. They demand an increase of from $4.50 to $5 a day of eight hours which the employers say they cannot pay and live in the face of the severe competition they have to face with the quarries who have their own cutting plants here. The average quarry pays $3.25 although there are some where the $4 rate under recent contracts prevails.

OWNERS ADVISED TO ACT NOW.

Instead of the Tariff Bearing the Brick Market, Higher Prices May Rule.

By WRIGHT D. GOSS,
President Empire Brick & Supply Co.

BUSINESS in the building material markets of the Metropolitan District is at the present time more or less unsatisfactory and inactive, but the condition is largely seasonable. Each year at this time a dull period is noticeable, when old work has been completed and new work is not fairly under way. This period is of longer duration and the condition is more pronounced this year than usual owing to the fact that the weather during the past winter was exceptionally favorable for carrying on structural work to completion. There was no interruption in the transporting or handling of building materials as is usual and there were but a few days when workmen were not employed in the building trades. Building operations that under normal conditions would be active during the spring months were completed some weeks earlier than expected. The inactivity usualy incident to the winter months is apparent in the increased spring dullness.

Up to the present time I believe that the tariff agitation has not had any appreciable affect upon the building material business, but the prolonged discussion by Congress of the tariff and financial legislation will doubtless have a disturbing effect upon all business. What is needed is some speedy decision regarding these matters so that business men everywhere may have some fixed chart to steer by. There is much force in the remarks recently attributed to a prominent railroad man and financier, "If legislatures could be adjourned for a period of ten years, business would have time to recover its breath."

It is local conditions that most intimately affect the building material markets. It has often been that when general business was lagging, building was most active in the Metropolitan District. There are indications that there will be within a short time an increase in the demands for building supplies.

Prices have held firm during the past few months in the principal articles. The difficulty experienced by manufacturers of both brick and cement in securing sufficient labor to properly equip and run their plants, together with the increased cost of the necessary supplies, is making for a higher cost of production, which will be reflected in the higher selling price of the finished products. The cost of production has steadily advanced for a series of years.

Buyers have withheld the placing of their orders for building materials until actually needed, evidently expecting to find prices more favorable. This attitude, I believe, will be found to be a mistake. Every indication is that if any change should take place in the prices of the principal building supplies, such as brick, cement and lumber, it would be to higher rather than lower levels.

Investors and owners of real estate who wish to improve their properties, will, I think, wait for some time for a more favorable period in which they may carry on their operations, so far as supplies and labor conditions in the skilled trades are factors.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Yale Club to Break Ground.

The Yale Club will break ground by July for its new twenty-story clubhouse to be erected at the northwest corner of Vanderbilt avenue and 44th street, on a plot 90x100 feet, but to this date no building contracts have been issued. There are many details in connection with the plans yet to be worked out. The entrance hall, a visitors' room and coatrooms will be on the ground floor. On the second floor will be a cafe and a large lounging room. On the third floor billiard, card and other clubrooms will be installed, and on the next floor the library, with the assembly rooms on the fifth floor. It is probable that the floors above will be made up of bedrooms, with eighteen rooms on a floor. Provision also will be made for a gymnasium, squash courts, a swimming pool, and for several private dining rooms, besides a large club dining room. The exterior will be of marble and limestone. James Gamble Rogers, 11 East 24th street, the architect, estimates the cost at $1,000,000. (For a list of the committee in charge see issue May 4, 1912.)

All other contracts will be awarded promptly as required. D. H. Burnham & Company, 80 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., the architects, estimate the cost of the building at $8,000,000. THE TEST OF FLAMES.

The Blanchard Building at Long Island City Saved by Wire Glass and Sprinklers.

Fire-resisting construction and equipment were put to a severe test last Sunday morning in the fire which destroyed the plant of the Columbia Paper Bag Company at 3d street and Van Alst avenue, Long Island City, and did damage estimated at between $350,000 and $400,-000.

Besides the loss incurred by the paper bag company, which the president of the concern thinks will easily foot up to $250,000, the American Druggist Syndicate's big plant and stock were damaged to the extent of $75,000 or $100,000. The Pratt & Lambert Varnish works got scorched to the tune of about $10,-000, and the Kershan Renovating Company, on the top floor of the Blanchard building, which building is now owned by the A. D. S., sustained a loss.

According to local report, the damage might easily have reached a round million dollars had it not been for the efficiency of the automatic sprinkler system installed in the A. D. S. plant. That the big seven-story building and the four-story warehouse which adjoins it, both of which were just across the street from the paper bag plant and in the path of the flames, were not completely destroyed is largely due to the heat resisting qualities of the wire-glass windows and the protective showers which the sprinkler system turned loose on every floor when the heat became great enough to open the thermostatic valves.

Roof Sprinkler Effective.

On the roof of the A. D. S. plant are sprinkling devices whereby water can be sprayed all over its surface from a standpipe operated by pumps in the engine room. John Goldner, the chief engineer of the plant, got his pumps to working as soon as he realized the gravity of the situation and the roof was so effectually flooded that the burning embers that landed on it never had a chance to start a blaze.

When President Goddard, of the A. D. S., got to the scene Sunday he was highly gratified that the fire protective facilities that have been installed at the plant had so well proven their worth and utility. The Blanchard Building was erected by J. F. Blanchard, a manufacturer of metal-covered trim.

Flooring Resist 80,000,000 Feet.

When a prominent firm of architects in this city wanted to prove to their own satisfaction the wearing qualities of one of the 1,001 different flooring materials on the market, they laid a strip in a human run-way, where in the course of a year approximately 80,000,000 feet would pass over it, some scuffling, some digging sharp heels into the fabric, some scraping ice and snow, and others running, with a sliding, rubbing movement.

Then it was examined. The wear was shown to have been almost negligible. The natural resiliency was still retained and, in other words, the floor was practically in the same condition as when it was originally laid.

It was the Dreadnought Interlocking Flooring, a compound of cork and other materials, that is odorless and non-absorbent. The place was the temporary station of the Grand Central Terminal.

This system of flooring, which has proved a success in steamships and offices, is now being manufactured for use under any condition in the home, in the office and in places of public assembly. It is manufactured by the Dreadnought Flooring Co., of New York, which is issuing a very attractive booklet, that tells the whole story of Dreadnought flooring in a single printed page and backs up what it says in that two minutes of reading matter with a number of photographs showing the application of this type of interlocking flooring in many kinds of buildings, including hospitals, offices, public building hallways, kitchens, steamship dining-rooms, banks and barber shops. The offices of the company are at 30 East 42d street.

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1913.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instance names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page, is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

OBVIOUS NEXT STEPS FOR TAXPAYERS

City's Charges For Privileges, Franchises and Concessions Should Be Developed—Technical Administration Should Be Improved—Taxpayers Should Lead in Municipal Service.

———Article IV.———

By HENRY BRUERE, Director, Bureau of Municipal Research.

ON APRIL 18, 1912, Comptroller Prendergast introduced, and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment adopted, a resolution asking the Board of Aldermen to authorize an appropriation of $50,000 to conduct "studies of the efficiency of methods of administration employed by the various departments in the conduct of city work, with a view to establishing uniform methods of efficiency so far as it is practicable." In adopting this resolution, the board approved a report submitted by the Comptroller outlining an efficiency program.

A Seven-Track Program.

This program provided for six lines of effort, several of which had already been begun. The work was to be done through a Bureau of Efficiency, established as a part of the organization of the Board of Estimate.

The Comptroller proposed:

(1) Completion of standardization of supplies.

(2) Beginning of standardization of salaries.

(3) Standardizing purchasing and storekeeping methods.

(4) Standardizing office practice, including methods of contract preparation, filing of records and correspondence, organization of clerical service, etc.

(5) Standardizing departmental reports, begun and partially completed by the Mayor's office in co-operation with the Bureau of Municipal Research.

(6) Standardizing work methods by adopting a uniform plan for organizing and supervising labor forces and providing uniformly efficient equipment.

The Board of Estimate Propose—the Aldermen Dispose.

Needless to say, the Board of Aldermen declined to make the appropriation (although it was recommended by their Finance Committee). Six months later, at the request of President Mitchel, the Board of Aldermen approved an appropriation of $56,600, put in the 1913 budget for the efficiency studies by the Board of Estimate. To carry out the plan, an efficiency and budget advisory staff was to be organized under the Board of Estimate. More than five months have elapsed since this appropriation became effective, but the staff has not yet commenced its work. On June 12, 1913, as this article was being written, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment adopted the Comptroller's resolution authorizing the appointment of the efficiency and budget advisory staff of the board, consisting of eight efficiency experts, at an annual salary cost of $25,200. Except for standardization of supplies, salaries and reports, the program outlined a year ago is still to be begun. Had it been effectively undertaken in April, 1912, as planned by the Comptroller, or begun promptly on January 1 as the 1913 budget provided, taxpayers would be able to reap a substantial dividend in the 1914 budget. This is an excellent illustration of the effect of divided responsibility for the city's administration, part of which is governed by responsibility, not to the public, but to the plainly visible vizier of our "invisible government."

What "Might Have Been."

The purpose of this program was to establish as quickly as possible in every department the same control over stores and supplies which has effected economies in the Bridge Commissioner's and the Water Commissioner's departments; the same reorganization of labor gangs that has cut down the cost of paving and sewer-cleaning work in Manhattan: the same effective practices which have increased the efficiency of the Bureau of Water Register. In other words, the purpose was to make available to every departmental bureau information of what other departments and bureaus have done, and by means of experts to teach them how to do likewise.

This equalizing of administrative methods is an obvious and fairly simple thing to do. As an obvious next step to take, it need not await the next administration. Funds have been provided for it, a plan for the efficiency bureau has been prepared, and the staff has just been provided.

No member of the Board of Estimate in favor of pressing this efficiency program will say that the six months' delay in starting the efficiency bureau was justified. If the program which it was to execute was sound in April, 1912, and was sound on January 1, 1913, it is sounder now. Further postponement of its execution will cost taxpayers thousands of dollars each month.

Questions Without Answers.

A querulous taxpayer is less effective in forcing economies than is an inquisitive taxpayer. An obvious thing for taxpayers to do immediately is to organize about a persistent, intelligent question mark until they learn, at least, whether the present cost of government is the gross cost or the net cost after readily available economy measures have been adopted.

The following are some of the questions that would help diagnose the city's economy condition:

If a mechanical device is feasible for payroll writing in the Water Department and cuts down the cost of payroll preparation, is it not feasible for every department of the city government? Do taxpayers know how many departments are still writing payrolls in long hand, and how many have followed the example of the Water Department? How many, if any, of the Board of Estimate members know?

At the beginning of the present administration a great to-do was made over extending the working day from 4 to 5 P. M. When summer came in the first year, the departments were permitted to close at 4 P. M. on the theory that working until 5 P. M. was undue exertion. How many departments have returned to a 9 to 5 o'clock basis? Do taxpayers know?

Payroll Fluctuations.

The Comptroller submitted to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for each month during 1910 and for the first three-quarters of 1911 a statement showing the total payroll cost by departments of the city. Every department was supposed to be giving its attention to eliminating unnecessary jobs, wiping out soft snaps and squeezing the water generally out of payrolls. No statement has been submitted since December, 1911. Do city officials know and do taxpayers know whether payrolls reduced in 1910 were subsequently increased, and how much? Does anyone know by how much the total payroll cost for 1913 is greater than 1910, where the increases have occurred, where offsetting decreases have occurred, and what are the explanations for both?

In the budget for 1913 appropriations were made for the Bureaus of Highways, Sewers, and Street Cleaning in the Bor-

Economy and Progress

Some of the progressive, socially-minded members of our community seem to regard economy as inconsistent with a liberal concern for public welfare. This view is fallacious, of course, but its fallacy will be difficult to point out convincingly so long as taxpayers permit their representatives to oppose blindly every extension of city service aimed to improve social conditions. One after another, advancing civilization will bring to light opportunities for social improvement. Non-essentials of today become indispensables tomorrow. This is the result of the forging ahead of civilization, which will continue to forge ahead whether taxpayers wish it or not. The question is whether civilization is to advance with taxpayers or over taxpayers.

HENRY BRUÈRE.

ough of Richmond on a so-called cost data basis. These appropriations authorize the Borough President to carry out a pre-arranged program stated in units of work at an average cost per unit. The Borough President was required to submit quarterly reports to the Board of Estimate, showing the amount of work done and the unit cost thereof.

The cost data budget is supposed to grant departments wider latitude in expenditures than is given by the present segregated form of budget, while at the same time controlling both total expenditures and quantities of work performed.

Since January 1, when the new plan went into operation, the Borough President has not submitted any reports nor has the Board of Estimate made any investigation of the operation of the new budget plan.

Do taxpayers know whether this plan is promoting economy? Will they be prepared at the next budget-making time to advocate or oppose its extension to all departments?

The Borough resident of Manhattan states that he has recovered during his term from hitherto unrecorded and unauthorized vaults under sidewalks a sufficient sum to pay the total engineering cost to date of widening the streets of Manhattan by removing encroachments. In how many boroughs are there unauthorized vaults for which payment should be made to the city treasury? Taxpayers know. Will they tell?

Land Condemnation.

The last barricaded stronghold of political graft is land condemnation. From fifteen to twenty million dollars a year is spent by the city for land. If taxpayers, city officials and supreme court justices combine on a plan for condemnation that will compel expedition and encourage honesty instead of dishonesty in proceedings for taking land, one of the largest leaks in city expenditures will be checked. The Court House Site Commission has shown what can be done even under the present law when commissioners are more concerned with taking land than with taking fees.

Lax condemnation methods are not only a source of profligate waste themselves, but standing as a hopeless alternative to private purchase they often warrant over-generous purchase settlements when land is bought for city purposes.

A number of investigations have been made, official and unofficial, of condemnation graft. One made under Comptroller Grout showed beyond a question that the present system was bad. Several years later, Comptroller Metz brought to light the continuance of the old evils because no effective remedy had been taken. No effective remedy has yet been taken, but several sound suggestions have been made, among them the establishment of a separate land condemnation court.

What are taxpayers prepared to do about condemnation graft?

Street and Park Improvements.

Joined with the problem of land condemnation is the whole question of street and park improvement. Increasingly there is a tendency to make the city at large pay a part or all the cost of large improvements. This is proper where the benefit is clearly city-wide. The propriety of this practice would be unquestioned if the city's benefit were more tangible than it is now. Proof of general benefit to the city would be easy were "excess condemnation" permissible.

The Comptroller has recently made a study of the financial condition of assessment funds, showing that a considerable surplus has accumulated in them at the expense of local property owners. Taxpayers have paid excessive prices for improvements because of delays in preparing assessment maps and in condemning land after title has vested. These delays have added unnecessary interest to assessment charges. More scientific administration of assessment work would make it easier for the city to withstand pressure from local taxpayers to make local improvements general city charges.

A study should be made of the present street and park improvement practice so that a clear policy may be agreed upon for guidance in determining what are to be local and what general charges.

Follow up the Proposed Survey.

In the preceding article a "survey" of all city departments was suggested as a means of informing taxpayers of existing and comparative administrative methods used by the city government. If taxpayers really wish to stop playing blind man's buff with tax spenders they will need the information that a survey would produce. Having the information will be useless, however, unless a continuous follow-up program is adopted. A desirable, but perhaps to taxpayers not a wholly obvious next step, is to provide a fund of $100,000 a year to keep public spirited taxpayers' organizations in touch with, up with, and ahead of the city government.

An effective taxpayers' follow-up program would have three divisions. One division would have as its objective the proper development and control of all city revenue and would seek to insure both wise appropriation of money and spending only according to the terms of appropriations.

A second division would provide for continuous, expert assistance in improving administrative methods, in bringing about economy and in calling attention to official neglect.

A third division would plan new activities for the city or extension of present activities to meet the advancing needs of the community.

As a part of each division of this program and supplementing it, there should be conducted a consecutive campaign of popular education in the facts of city government.

There are four results now apparent that would follow from a program of the kind suggested:

1. New York would be, as it should be, in advance of all the great cities of the world in the serviceability of its government. In consequence, its reputation would be enhanced everywhere and, with its reputation, its growth and prosperity.

2. Revenue due the city would be collected, and sources of revenue now inadequately developed, such as charges for privileges, franchises and concessions, would be extended.

3. The technical administration of the city would be continuously improved, and city employees encouraged to give efficient service.

4. The influence of taxpayers would be increased, because taxpayers would take leadership in promoting the growth of the municipal service for the general good, instead of playing, as they now too often do, a dog-in-the-manger role.

Economy and Progress.

Some of the progressive, socially-minded members of our community seem to regard economy as inconsistent with a liberal concern for public welfare. This view is fallacious, of course, but its fallacy will be difficult to point out convincingly so long as taxpayers permit their representatives to oppose blindly every extension of city service aimed to improve social conditions. One after another, advancing civilization will bring to light opportunities for social improvement. Non-essentials of today become indispensables tomorrow. This is the result of the forging ahead of civilization, which will continue to forge ahead whether taxpayers wish it or not. The question is whether civilization is to advance with taxpayers or over taxpayers.

Next week I shall discuss some of the non-administrative obstacles to efficiency and economy, and suggest further obvious next steps for progressive taxpayers.

Widening of 165th Street.

Chief Engineer Lewis has reported unfavorably upon the Local Board's plan to place a large part of the cost of the West 165th street widening upon other than a local area. In 1909 a map was adopted providing for laying out an unnamed street between Audubon avenue and Amsterdam avenue, and also arranging a public park to include the triangular area between this street and West 165th street. Proceedings for acquiring title to the street and to the park were authorized in the same year with provision for placing the entire expense upon a large local area, the improvement being treated as one which would remove conditions prejudicial to the suitable development of the locality.

In 1911, at the request of thirty-four petitioners, the proceeding was discontinued upon payment to the city of the sum of $6,595.33, which was estimated to be the expense incurred by the City up to that date in advancing it. At this time it was shown that the awards aggregated about $120,000, of which about $18,000 related to an improved parcel on the northerly side of the street. Since this date the city has been compelled to pay claims presented under section 1000 of the Charter by reason of the discontinuance of the proceeding aggregating over $3,400, to which will have to be added an allowance for one claim not yet adjusted.

A plan now presented by the Local Board differs from the one adopted in 1909 by including the proposed park within the street system and by excluding from the street area the improved parcel on the northerly side. One of the petitioners for the map change has already been paid more than $1,500 as a result of the discontinuance of the original proceeding.

It would therefore appear, Chief Engineer Lewis says, that this project is to all intents and purposes a revival of the original proposition, but with provision for placing a large part of the cost upon other than a local area. But in his opinion the improvement is one involving a strictly local benefit and not one in which either the borough or the city could share.

Talked of High Buildings.

George T. Mortimer, vice president of the United States Realty and Improvement Company, of New York City, made a few remarks during a general discussion at the Cincinnati Convention on the subject of skyscrapers. He said "that the indiscriminate development of the high building in the city of New York should be retarded, or at least controlled, has for some time been acknowledged by almost every one familiar with the situation. On this point the mind of the public is in accord, but what is not clear is how to limit the height of buildings sufficiently to accomplish results with the least possible harm to owners of land and to taxable values."

—The Public Service Commission, after a rehearing, has refused to modify the order for the double-tracking of the Castleton avenue street railroad on Staten Island, as requested by the Richmond Light & Railway Company.

THE MOST CENTRAL SECTION—WHICH IS IT?

The Decision of the Manhattan Superintendent of Buildings Variously Viewed By Real Estate Interests—Rival Claims For Midtown and Downtown Locations

FOR reasons of accessibility, which is the most central and convenient section of Manhattan Island? Superintendent Miller of the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings had occasion to make an extended investigation of the question recently and he reached a conclusion not only of importance in his own work but of importance to real estate interests of the entire city. Into almost every real estate transaction this question enters, either directly or indirectly. According as premises are situated near centers of interest, traffic, finance, trade or fashion their values are rated.

Superintendent Miller found that the geographical center for architects who have offices in Manhattan is at some point in the latitude of 30th street. The geographical center of the offices of those who were applicants for building permits during the last six months of 1912, he found to be somewhere along 39th street. The inspectors of his bureau having specified distances to travel would save on the average 1.14 miles in going from the bureau to their work, if the bureau were permitted to stay in midtown.

From these considerations it seemed to Supt. Miller that in order to serve the public best the Bureau of Buildings should be situated somewhere between 30th and 39th streets. And as the section between the Pennsylvania Station and the Grand Central Station "seems to be developing into the business center of the city, and the tendency of building operations is uptown, perhaps the best location for this bureau would be somewhere in that section," said Mr. Miller in a communication which he has made to the Borough President suggesting that for reasons of economy and convenience the bureau be allowed to remain uptown, instead of becoming a tenant of the Municipal Building.

In view of the bearing which the conclusion of the Superintendent has upon the real estate market, the Record and Guide was requested to interview representative men and see how far their views would coincide with it. A contrariety of opinion has been found to exist on the question which it will be interesting to note in the remarks quoted below:

Favors the Builders' Exchange.

Mr. C. P. H. Gilbert, architect, of 1123 Broadway, said:

"By all means the Building Bureau should stay uptown. I think that the Builders' Exchange in 32d street, between Fifth avenue and Broadway, which has been suggested, is an excellent location, and would be easily reached from all parts of the city, especially so when the new subway lines are in operation."

Keep All Together.

William A. White & Sons, real estate, of 62 Cedar street, said:

"We think the requirements of the general public are best met by having all departments in one building, it being often necessary to consult several departments or bureaus in connection with a given subject.

"It seems to us that the convenience of the taxpayer and those having occasion to consult the Manhattan Building Bureau is of more consequence than the question of time consumed by the inspectors."

The Northward Tendency.

George & Edward Blum, architects, of 505 Fifth avenue, said:

"In our judgment the location of this bureau in the Municipal Building would work a grave hardship on practically all the architects practising in New York City.

"The whole tendency of the profession seems to be to centralize in the 42d street district, and, therefore, the nearer the bureau is located to that center the better, from our point of view.

"Mr. Miller's argument as to the saving of time for the bureau inspectors is certainly pertinent, as without doubt, the center of future operations is fast moving uptown."

Superintendent Deserving of Credit.

Charles Buek, architect and builder, of 5 East 42d street, said:

"I think that Superintendent Miller deserves credit for considering the convenience of that part of the public which has to deal with his bureau, a consideration usually the very last in the mind of a public official. Either one of the locations which he suggests would unquestionably be more convenient to the great bulk of the architects and builders than the Municipal Building downtown.

"Whether there will be any actual saving of rent I have no means of knowing, as the city of course is not obliged to obtain the same rentals in its building that a private owner would be, and should, wherever practicable, be its own landlord. As I understand it, no part of the Municipal Building is to be rented out, and there might be some advantage in having all the departments with which builders deal under one roof, which would compensate for the extra distance to be traveled."

The Great Center of the Future.

Douglas L. Elliman, real estate, of 421 Madison avenue, said:

"It would seem to me that the 'Building Bureau' of the Borough of Manhattan should be as near the center geographically as good transportation will permit. To the student of present conditions there is no doubt that the vicinity of 42d street, between Broadway and Fourth avenue, is to be the great center of the city, as it is most conveniently reached from the greatest number of points at the present time, and with the new subways and the Steinway Tunnel, it will be even more so.

"There is already a gathering together of all real estate interests, including those formerly situated in the lower part of the city, in this new center, and this movement will surely grow."

A Vote for Downtown.

Dodge & Morrison, architects, of 135 Front street, corner of Pine, said there was room for the bureau in the Municipal Building, and the city should have all departments possible housed in that building.

Herbert V. Dike, of O. D. & H. V. Dike, real estate, of 220 West 42d street:

"To lease space at loft prices, as Superintendent Miller suggests, adjacent to the great up-town traffic centre at

J. B. Snook's Sons, Architects.
STERN'S STORE, ONE OF THE NEW OPERATIONS IN 42D STREET.

42d street, would unquestionably work economy in the Building Bureau, not only in money but in time, and I believe that most architects, builders and owners, having to do with this department would welcome it as a great convenience."

Stockton Beekman Colt, of Barney & Colt, architects, of 40 West 38th street, said the public could best be served by having the Bureau of Buildings for Manhattan located somewhere in the section recommended by Mr. Miller.

Might Upset Calculations.

D'Oench & Yost, architects, of 105 West 40th street, said:

"Superintendent Miller's points are well taken and the locations he cites strike us as desirable. Architects, contractors and those interested in building operations would, taken all in all, be better satisfied than if they had to travel to City Hall.

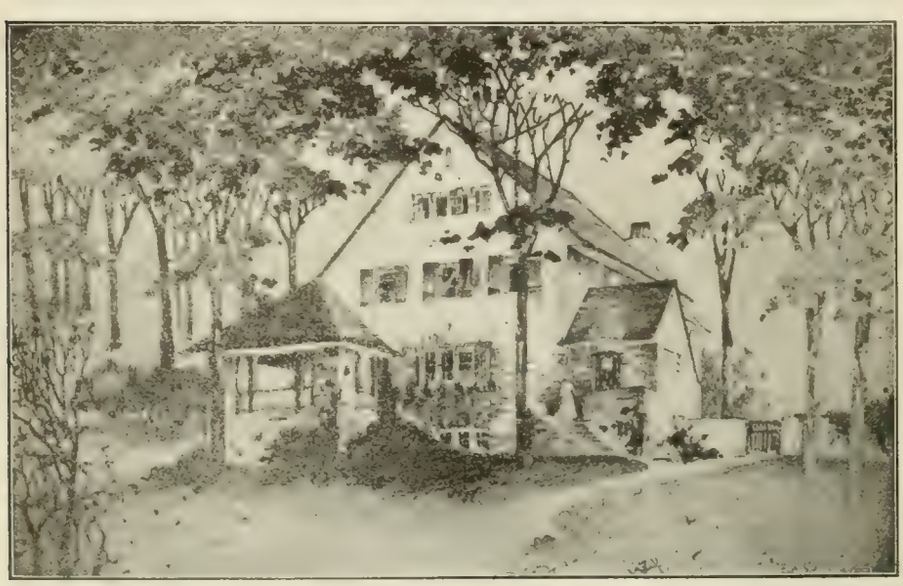
"Whether a saving would result to the city we are not prepared to say. The Municipal Building having been especially constructed with the idea of housing economically certain departments and bureaus, a change from this plan would upset, we should think, a scheme that must have been worked out in detail before the great building operation was undertaken."

A Strong Case for Municipal Building.

Charles F. Noyes, of the Charles F. Noyes Company, 92 William street, real estate:

"Possibly our vision may be somewhat clouded because we are primarily downtown real estate brokers with an abundance of faith and confidence in the stability of the downtown district. In any event, we are firmly of the conviction that it is desirable for the Bureau of Buildings to locate in the Municipal Building, now being completed. It is not because we feel the department should move from uptown so much as the fact that we have always strongly favored the general scheme of the erection of a municipal building that would do New York justice, and in which building could be housed all of the important city departments.

"With the County Court House, City Hall, and Municipal Building located in one section, and with the strong probability that this now called Civic Centre will increase in scope until it will include the State Departments as well as our municipal departments, we feel that by all means a bureau as important as the Building Bureau should be included with the others. Then again, the location of the Municipal Building is a most convenient point. A desirable location is not always judged by a central geographical location. All subways, present and proposed, will practically lead to City Hall, and as these subway stations at or near City Hall are express stops, it is practically as quick to reach this point as it is any point in the vicinity of 34th street to 42d street, provided that point is three or four blocks distant from the express subway stations.



"No large undertaking in the matter of housing a vast business organization with many diversified heads will be perfect for every executive department, but no better municipal scheme has ever been thought of than one Civic Centre to look out for all municipal and State departments located in New York, and the great advantage of this undertaking which is now being finally worked out is the fact that all departments will be together.

"In the matter of the uptown buildings that are mentioned in your article, there is no question but what the Lewisohn Building, at Nos. 113-19 West 40th street, through to 41st street, would be an ideal building for the department if it located in that neighborhood. Mr. Lewisohn has built one of the finest buildings in New York City, and any tenant that can use the space that he offers to advantage is to be congratulated on being able to get into the building. It is for this reason that Mr. Lewisohn has been able to carefully select his tenants with the result that he is getting the best tenants available."

A Logical Argument for Midtown.

Ewing & Chappell, architects, of 101 Park avenue:

"When I first learned that the Building Bureau was to go down town I felt that a great mistake was being made, and the more I consider the matter the more certain I am that my first impression was correct. The building centre of New York is without question today located in the neighborhood of Grand Central Station. Not only are the large majority of the architects located there, but the builders and material houses have also come to the neighborhood. The building business today realizes the advantages of concentration. By being in the same neighborhood the architects, builders and material men can save each other a considerable amount of time and the only thing necessary to complete this concentration is that the building bureau should also be located there. This neighborhood has been selected because of its unparalleled offering of transit conveniences. It is the center from which every section of the town can be reached in the shortest space of time, and it seems to me to follow logically that the neighborhood which is found most convenient to architects and builders for quickly reaching their various pieces of work would be equally the most convenient section for the location of the Building Bureau. I trust that the recommendation of Superintendent Miller will be accepted, as anything else would be an economic mistake."

Developing the Fieldston Section.

A new map relating to the territory bounded by West 238th street, Fieldston road, West 244th street and Waldo avenue, has been approved with some modifications by the consulting engineers of the Board of Estimate. The previous map was referred back to the Borough President on April 18, 1912, with the recommendation that provision should be made for decreasing the grades then proposed for West 240th street and Dash place, these ranging up to a maximum of over 13 per cent., and for the discontinuance of portions of a public park heretofore acquired between West 242d street and West 244th street, which were not to be retained for park use.

The plan now presented meets the former objection by decreasing the gradients to a maximum of 10 per cent., and also provides for extending Dash place one block northwardly to West 244th street. No provision is made for bounding streets for the park area between Dash place and Waldo avenue.

The approval of the plan has been recommended by the consulting engineers of the Board of Estimate after a public hearing, but with the suggestion that the attention of the Borough President be again directed to the desirability of either discontinuing the public park last referred to or of modifying the plan by laying out steps in the vicinity of the northerly and southerly boundaries, in order to separate this reservation from property devoted to private use. A public hearing will be held July 10. Durin gthe last two years this beautiful suburban section, which proceedings affect, has shown increased activity.

NEW BUILDING CODE.

Tentative Report Completed and Ordered Printed.—Advisory Committee Will Have Copies By July 10.

The manuscript copy of a new building code as prepared under the direction of the Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen, of which Alderman A. W. Herbst is chairman, has been completed and sent to the printer's. When the copies are received they will be the subject of careful study by the members of the advisory committee in executive session. When the tentative draft has been corrected and reprinted it will be ready for the public, and Chairman Herbst expects that by July 10 there will be a limited number of copies for distribution to representative interests.

It is expected that a special meeting of the Board of Aldermen will be held on July 15 or 22, at which the report of the committee will be submitted, and it is hoped and expected by the committee that by that time the code will have been so perfected that no great opposition will appear.

—The Queens section of the new rapid transit system will be ready in two years, according to official belief. Steinway tunnel will be ready in October, when Corona will be twenty minutes from Grand Central Station.

DAMAGE MAP FOR SEVENTH AVE. EXTENSION

Receives Official Approval—Proceedings May Be Amended Hereafter to Take in the Land Gores Left After Cutting the Avenue Through.

RULE and damage maps for the extension of Seventh avenue were approved by the Board of Estimate this week. The maps will be used in the proceeding for acquiring title to lands needed for the extension of the avenue from Greenwich avenue to Carmine street, for the widening of Varick street from Carmine to Franklin and for the extension of Varick street from Franklin to West Broadway.

The maps submitted indicate that a net area of 306,526 square feet is to be acquired, and that 260 buildings encroach, of which number 194 will be totally destroyed and 40 more or less seriously damaged. A large number of parcels will be seriously gored, with the result that the damage claims will here probably represent the entire value of the property. In a few of these instances the gores might be included in the street system by the introduction of flares in the street lines the engineer says.

With the understanding that the attention of the Borough President will be called to the suggestion concerning the modification of the street plan to include any gores which might properly be incorporated within the street area and that the proceeding will be amended in such a way as to include all gores in case the way is cleared for excess condemnation, Chief Engineer Lewis recommended that the maps be approved.

A long campaign for better facilities through the Greenwich section and the middle West Side, has been virtually consummated, so far as the efforts of the local residents to promote it are concerned. The present movement had its origin nine years ago. No doubt the extension of Seventh avenue southward through the village was a subject that had received some consideration long before, but only of late years has the greatest American city been equal to carrying forward a street improvement of so costly a nature.

When the movement was started, small public interest was attracted, because few believed the avenue would ever be cut through. This was the state of mind which C. C. Hickok, the man who circulated the first petition, found to prevail when he began making his rounds in November, 1904.

"I was frequently advised," said Mr. Hickok this week, "to give up the project, because it was said I was losing time. Nevertheless I kept on canvassing and recanvassing over the same ground until the petition acquired a business-like appearance, and then it was easier to get signatures. Altogether I obtained signatures representing seventy per cent. of the valuation of the real estate on the avenue.

Owners Widely Scattered.

"This took more time than I had anticipated, because the owners were scattered. Some were up the State, and others in New Jersey and Connecticut, and even in Chicago. I arranged by correspondence to meet outside owners when they came to the city.

"Next I sought the endorsement of associations to strengthen the demand for the improvement of the avenue, as well as to prove the popularity of the project, and among the associations which signed was the Merchants, the largest commercial body in the United States. Then I began to ask men prominent in the city affairs to write to the Mayor in favor of the extension, and I also canvassed the bank presidents and big merchants.

C. C. HICKOK.
Active in Promoting the Improvement.

"The Mayor handed the matter over to Chief Engineer Nelson P. Lewis of the Board of Estimate in June, 1906, for a report, which proved in the main to be favorable to the project, except that the report recommended that the widening of Varick street stop at Canal and that Carmine street be widened instead of extending Sixth avenue to connect with Varick street and Broom."

But the plans did not get through on that tide, for the reason, according to Mr. Hickok, that the Fourth avenue subway in Brooklyn diverted the funds the city had originally intended for Seventh avenue. When the next administration had been seated for a month, the claims of Seventh avenue were presented anew. All the old ground had to be gone over, and although the rate of progress was very slow, the city eventually was committed to the improvement.

Now that the map has been passed upon by the Board, it will be sent to the Corporation Counsel, who then has ten days to appoint commissioners and then ten days' notice is given that they will be qualified on a certain day. Then the commissioners advertise ten days for owners to file claims. Testimony is then taken as to title and damages and a preliminary report made and advertised for twenty days for objections to be filed. The commissioners then, after hearing objections and passing upon them, make a final report and file it with the County Clerk, when five days' notice is given for confirmation. The amended law in 1913, Section 990, Chapter 142, overcomes the long delay heretofore made necessary in acquiring title. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment can, if necessary, adopt resolutions, vesting the title in the city as soon as the commissioners file their certificates of appointment with the County Clerk.

—After a public hearing the Armory Board announced that the awarding of a contract for intended alterations to the old 22d Regiment Armory, to make it suitable for occupation by a troop of cavalry, would be postponed pending alterations in the plans, to meet objections entered by property interests in the neighborhood of the armory. B. Aymar Sands for the Rhinelander estate, and Edward D. Palmer, representing various owners, appeared before the board.

—The big apartment house movement in the West End continues, with Harry Schiff, the Paternos, the Hall and the Johnson-Kahn interests as the present-day leaders. Thirty years ago the leaders were Edward Clark, John D. Crimmins, David Christie, George W. Hamilton, Ralph Townsend, Richard Deeves, Cornelius W. Luyster, Casper M. Lawson, Samuel Colcord, John Richards, Christian Kruse, James R. Smith, B. C. Wetmore.

Various Suggestions.

Borough President McAneny told yesterday of the varied nature of some suggestions that have been made to the Heights of Buildings Commission. This body, which was appointed by President McAneny after the Board of Estimate appropriated funds for the investigation, is hard at work now holding meetings and hearings. All sorts of solutions are being proposed, and the commission, through its committees, is sifting them all and seeking to arrive at some rational plan for regulating building heights.

A representative of the Chamber of Commerce makes the novel suggestion that a line be run down from the top of every high building at an angle, say, of 45 degrees, and that damages be granted to all other buildings or parts of buildings which fall within this angle. Another man believes in towers, provided they are set back from the street; and still another suggests a flat limitation of so many stories.

That the basis of any successful plan must be a division into zones or districts seems to be the consensus of opinion. Almost everybody who has appeared before the commission thinks that there should be restrictions against factories and very high buildings in certain areas, and that in other areas there should be a more liberal rule. Representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and of the Real Estate Board of Brokers are among those who favor the theory of creating zones.

High Buildings Not Always Profitable.

The economic side of the high building is an important consideration in the present inquiry, and much testimony is being offered to show that the high building is not, as a rule a very profitable venture. One man who appeared before the commission said that towers would not pay unless they were large enough in area to provide plenty of rentable office space on each floor. He said that the value of towers was proved by the fact that in one of the downtown tower buildings offices in the tower part rented for two and one one-half times more per square foot than offices on the third and fourth floors of the same building. He said that a block built up solidly to over twenty stories, like the block bounded by New street, Exchange place and Broadway, was fundamentally wrong. Nobody gained by such condition of things.

Another said that some of the largest builders and operators on Fifth avenue wanted a law requiring that one-fourth of every plot should be left open, especially at the rear, so as to have at least 40 ft. clear open space between the backs of buildings. They were convinced that it would increase the total net rentability of the building. Some wanted to keep factories entirely off of Fifth avenue and surrounding streets. They realized that it would work a hardship on some, but in the end it would raise values for all.

A prominent real estate agent maintained that the average high building through the United States does not net over four per cent. He further said that above the third floor the rents paid only a nominal interest on the cost of the building alone. He considered a limitation according to the width of the street wrong. He preferred a limitation which would cause the building to step in as it went up in height—what is known as a "pyramidal" limitation of height.

A man who is well known for his practical interpretation of census data, said he was a "zonist" absolutely. He was primarily interested in getting decent homes for the workers. He said that by proper restrictions we could do away entirely with tenements in New York City and house the whole population for many years to come in two-family houses—fourteen to the acre.

COURT HOUSE PLAN HELD UP.

If the Justices Cannot Be Suited, the Court House Board Will Seek New Legislation.

New legislation may be required in order to dissolve the difficulty that has arisen between the Court House Board and the justices of the Supreme Court over the Court House plans. Under the present law the concurrence of no less than three bodies is required for the legalization of the plans selected by the jury of architects. The Court House Board and the Municipal Art Society have given their tentative approval, at least in a general way, to the Lowell conception, but the judges of the Supreme Court are understood to have acted after conferences with architects and builders whose advice differed from that of the architectural authorities employed under the law by the Court House Board.

Three Ways Out.

Out of the controversy there has developed the knowledge that the Court House Board is considering three ways out of the difficulty. First, to agree, if possible, with the justices upon certain modifications of the Lowell plan for a round building. Second, to give way entirely to the justices, lay aside the present plan and take up a new one. Third, to seek new legislation which will permit the Court House Board to dispense with the approval of the Supreme Court Justices.

"When the tail of a kite is too long it is wise to cut it off," was a remark heard yesterday. "It was absurd to expect so many different authorities to agree and impossible to design a court house that will meet the individual ideas of twenty-five judges, as well as of all the others constituted authorities. No doubt the justices have been influenced by architectural counsel the source of which can be guessed."

The Record and Guide is reliably informed that the Court House Board will first propose a series of conferences with the Supreme Court Justices in the hope of coming to some agreement. The board has followed the advice not only of the jury of expert architects and of expert ventilating engineers specially employed, but also of the President of the American Institute of Architects, Walter Cook, and has had estimates of cost of construction from three of the leading building firms in the country, namely the George A. Fuller Company, the Thompson-Starrett Company and Charles T. Wills (Inc.). The builders reported that with some modifications of the Lowell plans the building could be constructed within the limit of cost fixed by the Comptroller.

The Court House Board will have a meeting next Tuesday, when it is expected that the report of the Justices of the Supreme Court in opposition to the circular design will be received. It is understood that the justices will then be asked to advise the Court House Board as to the kind of building they want. In effect the justices charge that the construction under the proposed circular plan would involve unreasonable expense; that the building would have inadequate light and ventilation; that it shall be generally convenient for court house purposes, and, finally, that it shall be constructed so as to permit of extension.

Will Cause Delay.

L. Laflin Kellogg, Secretary of the Court House Board, says the attitude of the justices is certain to result in delay. The board has already arranged to get the money needed for borings and soundings, and title to the site was to be taken by the city as soon as the condemnation award was made. It was hoped to obtain this, he said, before the Board of Estimate adjourned for the summer.

Mr. Kellogg added: "The most experienced authorities have been employed by the board and have reported to us that the building has adequate facilities for light and ventilation, and can be built, with such modifications as are necessary to bring it within the financial ability of the city, without destroying Mr. Lowell's design.

"The justices seem to have acted not only on the information given by us but after conferences with architects and builders of experience and high standing. It seems as if the information they have obtained, though satisfactory to them, differs in every way from that supplied by the authorities employed by us."

Can Modify Plans.

Mr. Lowell is confident that the construction need not cost more than the $10,000,000, and that it is a mistake to suppose the circular plan increases the cost.

"Really all the points brought up are matters of opinion," he is quoted as saying, "In developing my plan I considered every one of them, and if I have come to a different view of them from that entertained by the justices it does not mean that I cannot modify my plan to meet their ideas.

"Personally, I believe that the experiences derived from modern school houses has shown that it is much better to have the light as long as there is enough of it from one side of the rooms alone, but if the justices prefer windows on either side I can easily give them to them.

"It is a mistake to suppose that the circular form increases the cost. Three eminent building firms have estimated at approximately our figure.. There is no difference between putting up a circular and a rectangular building except in the exterior perimeter, and here the increase of cost will be slight. Remember that none of the stones will have to be prepared on two sides, as is the case in buildings with angles, and there would be a great uniformity in the stones needed, which should keep the cost down."

WEST 25TH STREET.

Loft Buildings Displacing More Private Dwellings There.

West Twenty-fifth street has a number of mercantile buildings under construction at the present date, and others not so far advanced. The 108 West 25th Street Company of which Abraham Gordon is president, is excavating for a twelve-story structure 40x82.10 feet at 108-110 West 25th street, to be ready for occupancy about November 1. The cost is placed at $200,000.

At 11 West 25th street plastering and interior equipment is being installed in the twelve-story building being erected by the 11 West 25th Street Company, from plans by Gross & Kleinberger, Bible House. The Rexton Realty Company, 37 Liberty street, of which Samuel Kempner is president, has plans by George Fred Pelham, 30 East 42d street, for a sixteen-story loft with stores 50x84 feet, to be erected at 32-34 West 25th street, to cost about $150,000.

The twelve-story loft and store which the Nodrog Realty Company has just erected at 164-166 West 25th street, from plans by Chas. B. Meyers, has dimensions of 40x87.6 feet and cost about $200,000.

Henry Hencken, coal dealer, 534 West 27th street, contemplates the erection of a twelve-story loft building in the north side of 25th street, between 9th and 10th avenues with dimensions of 512x200 feet. The plot is now covered with taxpayers and it is understood that the erection of a building is dependent upon securing a tenant for a long term lease.

Another project which has been pending for a year or more is a twelve-story loft with stores, 50x100 feet, to be erected by the New York and Chicago Construction Company, of 39 East 27th street, at 135-137 West 25th street, plans for which have just been completed by Neville & Bagge, 215 West 125th street, to cost $275,000.

The twenty-story business building which the Fifth Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street Company, George F. Johnson, Jr., Leopold Kahn and William H. Frame, are completing in the south side of 26th street fronting on Broadway and Fifth avenue, will be ready for occupancy before many weeks. The interior equipment and trim is being installed and a large percentage of the building has already been leased through Mark Rafalsky & Company, the renting agents. The Exchange Buffet Lunch of 3 Broad street, will soon open a restaurant in the building taking in the entire basement floor. The estimated cost of the structure without the value of the land is placed at $1,000,000. (For further particulars, see issue March 22, 1913.)

MERCANTILE BUILDING.

Road Conditions in The Bronx.

Borough President Cyrus C. Miller has had printed a valuable street map of The Bronx, showing in colors the different kinds of pavement in existence on Jan. 1, 1913. Asphalt and asphalt block pavements predominate in the built-up section of the borough, while macadam and rock are numerous elsewhere. Streets that are not paved are shown in white. The map is, therefore, an accurate record of road conditions in The Bronx.

Enlarging Bronx Park.

Proceedings are about to be instituted for acquiring title to the extension of Bronx Park on its easterly side, between East 180th street and White Plains road, Borough of The Bronx. The whole cost will be assessed upon the borough.

This extension was placed upon the City Map to include the area intervening between the former boundary and the land to be acquired for subway purposes, comprising about 5.5 acres, which is assessed upon the books of the Tax Department at $56,400, of which amount about $13,700 is credited to buildings. It was also understood when the map was adopted that by reason of the present or future ownership of all the property in the immediaite vicinity by the city it would not be practicable to assess for benefit and that the expense involved would be assumed by the Borough. The Borough President now states that the Public Service Commission has taken steps to secure the adjoining property needed for the subway, and concurs in the suggestion heretofore made that the park lands should be acquired at the same time.

—Six theatres are under construction in Manhattan, making the total number in the borough 117 in all. There are 227 interior moving picture shows and 38 open air shows. The total number of amusement places coming under the notice of the Bureau of Buildings is 384.

CITY ECONOMY LEAGUE.

Enthusiastic Committee Meetings—Lining up City Trades and Professions.

Reports from the City Economy League indicate that the committee meetings are being fully attended and characterized by enthusiasm. The executive committee has decided to extend the organization into all trades and professions in Manhattan and Brooklyn and to organize in every election district of The Bronx, Queens and Richmond all those who have signed the declaration. Commissioners duly accredited by the executive committee of the league will represent it before every city trade and profession and organize branches of the league.

The Publicity Committee, of which Edward P. Doyle is chairman and Henry Bloch secretary, has prepared a pamphlet for wide distribution throughout the city, setting forth the principles for which the league is contending. It is evidently the purpose to extend the membership among real estate men, building mechanics and rentpayers generally as well as among taxpayers. Abram I. Elkus, counsel to the Legislative Factory Investigating Committee, and William B. Ellison, former Corporation Counsel, have been added to the executive committee, which meets every Tuesday.

Big Taxpayers' Mass Meeting.

The first of a series of mass meetings given by the "City Economy League," under the auspices of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations will be held on Monday, June 30, 8 P. M., at New York Turn Hall at 85th street and Lexington avenue. The committee consists of Chas. H. Schnelle, chairman, Thos. Krekeler, Alphonse Koelbele, A. G. Muhlker, Dr. A. Korn, M. J. Horan, Frank Carstarphen, Hon. Joseph Schwab, Sigmund Feust, Henry Wolf, Gernard Goodman, Chas. J. Bohlen, John Miller, Barnett Levy, representing the Real Estate Owners' Assn. 12th, 19th Wards, Real Estate Association 10th, 11th, 17th Wards, Harlem Property Owners' Association, South Bronx Real Estate Owners' Association, Greater N. Y. Taxpayers' Association, Real Estate Owners' Protective Association, 12th, 22d Wards, Real Estate Owners' Association, 18th, 21st Wards, Murray Hill Taxpayers' Association. All taxpayers' associations are invited to participate in this mass meeting.

Arthur M. Johnson.

Arthur M. Johnson died at Plainfield, N. J., last Thursday night. He was born at Lower Bank, N. J., November 27, 1842. At the outbreak of the Civil War, President Lincoln appointed him a lieutenant in the Navy, and he served in various ships and navy yards, principally at Perth Amboy. After the war, Mr. Johnson entered Columbia College Law School and was admitted to the bar. After practising a number of years, he took up real estate in 1872, forming the firm of A. M. Johnson & Brother, with offices where the Clearing House is now located.

Mr. Johnson continued in active business until about six months ago, making a specialty of mortgage loans. He leaves as successors in his profession two sons, A. G. and A. L. Johnson, now connected with the real estate office of Frederick Fox & Co.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Company.

THE PART OF THE MANAGER IN RENTING.

PART THREE.

By LOUIS B. DAILEY.

(Member Chas. F. Noyes Co., New York.)

THE record of calls and inquiries must be carefully kept. The method of so doing varies, but any method which does not include all the available data obtained, the space shown and the inquirer's impression, if expressed, is not complete and to that extent not so valuable. A plant is one of the most important adjuncts of the renting office, for it enables one to concentrate on the firms whose leases are about to expire. It shows, too, whether the tenant requires 500, 5,000 or 20,000 square feet, so that your best renting men are sent after the big fellows, while the cub renting man is put on the trail of the smaller ones.

Tenants are like butterflies. If you wish to catch them, you must go after them and, having caught them, remember that the most important thing is to keep them. It has been well said that keeping tenants takes precedence over getting them, because those qualifications which are powerless to hold old tenants will never be able to attract new ones. Tenants do not move for the fun of it.

Efficient Service Keeps the Tenant.

How do we keep them, or rather, what is the policy best adapted to satisfying the tenant and at the same time permit of the economical management of your building. Buildings erected as monuments or as advertisements for great banks or institutions can be run extravagantly if their owners so desire, and can furnish a service which the investing owner cannot consistently, at prevailing rates, duplicate. Yet service is the great drawing card, your biggest advertiser. The larger buildings in lower New York which house from three to five thousand people, if they make their tenants comfortable, clean and protect their offices properly, furnish an adequate elevator service, have three to five thousand agents on the streets talking for them all the while. Service must not be minimized. It is the keynote of successful renting.

The length of a lease and the date of its termination are points on which experts are not in entire accord, though it is the general practice in lower New York to fix the expiration date on May 1 and probably three years is a fair average of the length of term. Concessions in rent, which are sometimes granted in the early renting stages, should be made not by reducing rent, but by adjusting the term. In this manner the tenant pays no more for his full term, while on its renewal a normal renewal rate has become established. It is difficult, indeed dangerous, to attempt to raise rents on renewal. Old tenants always feel that their term of rent paying entitles them to consideration rather than increased rates. It does away, too, with the gossip of bookkeepers who tell their neighbor's bookkeeper the rate for a certain office and that upon renewal the lower rate is bound to obtain. Option clauses, alteration agreements, short-term leases on space adjoining growing tenants, careful renting of floors so that leases expire at approximately the same time—all these should be considered with great care, for their successful handling means ultimate success.

Making It Pay Is the Main Thing.

Anyone with capital can erect a modern skyscraper, but it requires able and intelligent management to make it pay. The principal items of expense in operation are, first and heaviest, labor; second, coal, and, finally, the other supplies incidental to operation, such as oil, packing, lamps, janitor's supplies, etc. An honest, intelligent and careful supervising engineer is a most important factor in successful management, and the wise owner will get the best the market produces. But having done this, the margin of difference in operating costs between the careless, wasteful and incompetent operating man and that of the highest grade, most economical supervising engineer, is not the item which makes the financial success of your modern building. It is income and not operating expense which tells the story. It is income which pays the taxes and interest on mortgage; it is income which pays operating expense, and income which pays the dividends, and it is the successful renting of the building which produces that income. Present-day owners seek specialists in this line for the safeguarding of their investments, and the market rate for the services of these specialists is being steadily advanced.

Exalting the Building Manager.

The renting manager is a new type now rapidly superseding the estate agent. The latter assumes the management of a building, but devotes the best talent of his office to the buying and selling of property, and leaves the renting to the juniors. These juniors may be capable, industrious, honest, aggressive—in fact, have all the qualifications for successful renting—but their hearts are set on the day when they, too, can sell properties and draw big commissions. It is not enough that the district shall be flooded with cheap solicitors. One good man, well paid, spending year after year prosecuting his search for tenants, is worth a dozen of the cub variety who come and go, as the birds of summer. It is the knowledge lying dormant in some fold of your renting specialist's mind which enables him to seize upon the press item, indicating a change of control in a large corporation and opening up the possibility of moving it to a new location. One cannot learn these things from books or records, but only from actual experience and knowledge, acquired by years of pounding the mosaic corridors of the city's buildings.

The successful renting man is born, not made. If you have one, prize him, for he is as valuable as the best tenant on your rent roll. Honesty of purpose, energy, ingenuity, efficiency, enthusiasm, diplomacy and salesmanship, these are only a few of his qualities. With such a leader your building should be able to establish and maintain its reputation, enjoy the confidence of the business world, and in good times and bad have an enduring rent roll.

MANAGERS' CONVENTION.

J. E. Randell of Chicago Elected President.—Next Convention at Duluth.

Eight delegates represented New York City in the national convention of Building Managers and Owners at Cincinnati, June 10 to 14. The sessions were held in Music Hall, with President Charles E. Horton in the chair. Walter A. Draper, president of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the delegates. An exhibition of building materials and equipment was held in connection with the convention. Sessions were held morning and afternoon and between times the delegates enjoyed a round of social pleasure.

The first of a series of addresses was delivered on Tuesday afternoon by R. F. Henke, of Spokane, Wash., on "Value of Local Associations." This was followed by an address on "Labor Problem in Southern Buildings," by H. F. Martin, of Atlanta, Ga.

On Wednesday morning the convention was addressed by E. M. Willoughby, of Chicago, on "Central Agency vs. Individual Management," and by A. L. Hawley, of Seattle, Wash., on "Operating Costs on Square Foot Basis," followed in each instance by a general discussion. In the afternoon the members left Music Hall in automobiles for a trip through the down-town district, then to Eden Park, Walnut Hills, Avondale and Clifton, ending at the Zoological Gardens, where dinner was served at 5 o'clock. The Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra gave a concert at the Zoo in the evening for the entertainment of the visitors.

On Thursday morning C. T. Coley, of New York City, addressed the convention on "Method of Determining Proper Height of an Office Building." This was followed by an address on "Duties of a Building Manager During Construction of a Building," by J. E. Randell, of Chicago. At the afternoon session addresses were given by Louis T. Kaiser, of Cincinnati, on "Smoke Abatement and Furnace Operation," and by Carl J. Maural, of Chicago, on "Relation of Plant to the Building Manager," and by Joseph G. Steinkamp, of Cincinnati, on "Building Codes." In the evening the conventionists enjoyed a steamer trip to Cincinnati's Coney Island, where dinner was served.

Committee Reports.

On Friday morning after the executive session, reports of the Chairmen of the various committees were given—"Government Buildings," by J. M. Walshe; "Plumbing," by E. H. Doyle; "Standardization of Forms," by C. M. Duncan; "Basic Principle of Figuring Rentable Area in Buildings," by Reginald Pelham Bolton of New York; "Insurance," by Charles E. Doty, and "Wireless Installation," by Dr. Milliner.

The closing hours of the convention furnished the liveliest session of the four days' meeting. A long, hard-fought battle of cities desiring to secure the 1914 convention of the organization ended in a victory for Duluth, Minn.

Five large municipalities had entered the fight and their delegations and committees used strenuous efforts in gaining favor with the delegates. Ballot after ballot was taken until the choice narrowed to a race between Atlanta, Ga., and Duluth. An unusually large delegation fought for Atlanta, but the northern city finally secured the majority vote.

The smoke of that battle had hardly cleared when the contest for new officers furnished fresh excitement. Campaigning was strenuous and the voting close.

The New Officers.

J. E. Randell, of Chicago, was the choice for president and others elected were: Charles E. Doty, Cleveland, vice president; C. A. Patterson, Chicago, secretary; L. L. Banks, Pittsburg, treasurer.

About 100 members of the association were initiated into "high life" in Cincinnati early Friday morning, when they were taken on a tour of the Queen City's tallest building, the Union Central skyscraper. The expert building men were pleased with the great structure and carried away with them many pointers that will be used in work in their home cities. In the evening the delegates and their wives had dinner at the Altamount Hotel at Fort Thomas, going and coming by the trolley cars.

The New Yorkers.

Among the New Yorkers present were ex-President John C. Knight, of the Metropolitan Ins. Co.; George T. Mortimer, vice president of the U. S. Realty & Improvement Company; Louis B. Dailey, of the Charles F. Noyes Company; Thomas Morsch, of the Equitable Building; Charles T. Coley, of Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Co., and William P. Ropes, of Horace S. Ely & Co.

The New Equitable Building and Its Managers.

Rock drilling and excavating was started this week on the foundations of the new Equitable Building by the general contractor, the Thompson-Starrett Company. Thomas Morch, the renting agent of the building, has opened offices at 27 Pine street. Some years ago the success which Mr. Morch had had in managing office buildings attracted the attention of William H. Chesebrough, president of the Century Realty Company, then the second largest realty company in the city. The company had recently completed the original White Building and was about to erect the twelve-story Century Building, at West Thirty-fourth street, and the fifteen-story Beaver Building, at Beaver, Pearl and Water streets. Mr. Morch was placed in charge of the latter property and it was by reason of his success in leasing the building throughout and his management that the Century Realty Company promptly disposed of it to a prominent investor for about one million and a half dollars. The investors, apparently satisfied with the management, leased the property to a subsidiary company of the Century Realty Company, the Beaver Building Company, composed of William F. Havemeyer and William H. Chesebrough, and Mr. Morch was then appointed secretary and a director of that company. He continued in this capacity for several years, even after the Century Realty Company was merged with the United States Realty and Improvement Company, at which time he became first assistant to George T. Mortimer, the real estate manager, and who sometime later became its vice-president.

In this position his duties involved his assistance in the leasing and management of such important properties as the Trinity, the United States Realty, the Flatiron, the Mercantile, the Beaver and the Everett buildings, together with miscellaneous properties scattered throughout the city. Mr. Morch evinced such marked executive ability that he was soon appointed as secretary and director of a number of the subsidiary companies, which positions he held until the time of his resignation in April, 1909, in order to become manager for Lewis B. Preston, a prominent real estate broker of the city, who had just sold Herbert du Puy of Pittsburgh over seven million dollars' worth of improved Manhattan realty. On the day that the announcement was made of the sale of the Equitable site to General T. Coleman du Pont, Mr. Morch made his application for the exclusive agency and for the preparation of the renting schedule.

Charles T. Coley, M. E., has been retained in an advisory capacity for the Equitable Building, and in September he will sever his connection with Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown & Co. and become operating manager for the building.

President Horowitz, of the Thompson-Starrett Co., says it will be the most fireproof office building in the world. Fire walls will divide it into quarters and there will be nine fireproof stairways, but no exterior fire-escapes.

A New Type of Fireproof Partition.

In view of the recent order issued from the Fire Prevention Bureau, the installation of a new type of fireproof partition around the four main elevators at the Standard Oil Building, at 26 Broadway, is of more than passing interest.

The order, calling for greater fire resisting efficiency around elevator shafts, particularly in factory and commercial buildings has aroused a considerable amount of interest among architects and for that reason the accompanying illustration will show how the Cornell Iron Works solved an intricate problem in the building referred to. The partition as shown in the photograph is constructed of steel and wire glass, and was fitted in between the ornamental uprights and railings, already in place. The advantages claimed for the method used in this instance include its adaptability to existing construction, a maximum of light with a minimum amount of space required, one inch being the greatest thickness, and no dirt.

A FIREPROOF PARTITION THAT CAN BE ERECTED WITHOUT BLOCKING TRAFFIC.

The publication office of the Record and Guide has been removed to the twenty-second floor of the Lewisohn Building, 119 West 40th street. Our new telephone number is Bryant 4800.

The net value of the estate of John B. McDonald was fixed this week by the State transfer tax appraisers, at $1,271,111. Not a big fortune for the man who built the subway.

The first of a series of mass meetings to be given by the City Economy League under the auspices of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations will be held on Monday evening, June 30, at 8 P. M., in the New York Turn Hall, 85th street and Lexington avenue. A committee, of which Charles H. Schnelle is chairman, has charge of the meetings.

The justices of the Supreme Court rejected on Tuesday of this week Mr. Guy Lowell's court house plan, which had previously been approved by the Court House Board. The approval of a majority of the Justices of the Supreme Court must be obtained for the plan before it can be finally adopted by the Board of Estimate. Mr. Lowell's friends hope he will be able to meet the objections advanced by the justices.

The building committee of the Chicago Real Estate Board has recommended that a suitable inside lot be procured under a 99-year lease, where the store floor and basement would rent for an amount equal to the ground rent and taxes. The building of three or four stories in height is suggested, with the idea that one of the floors might be let. The committee's proposal is typical of what may be done in a city where leaseholds are common. Our own Real Estate Board would have to hunt a long time before it could find a site on which to carry out such a simple and economical plan.

The Permanency of Civic Centers.

The decision of the Knickerbocker Club to move to a new location on Fifth avenue at 62d street brings to an end a process of shifting the club district of Manhattan, which has been under way for about twenty-three years. It began about 1890 with the removal of the Century Club to a location in 43d street west of Fifth avenue, and only now is it practically completed. Some of the minor clubs still remain in and around Gramercy Park, and there they are likely to stay for special reasons and for an indefinite period. The Colony Club used bad judgment in building on Madison avenue, south of 34th street, only a few years ago, and now that Madison avenue is being converted into part of the mercantile district, it will soon be obliged to move. The Union League Club still lives at Fifth avenue and 39th street, but that location is so near the margin of the present club district that it is under no necessity of moving. It is almost certain that this club district will remain where it is for a very long time. There is no reason why it should continue the northward migration of the past. A club has to be centrally situated, and no area north of 59th street and east of the Park can be considered central. Those clubs, now situated in the district which have outgrown their existing quarters are either enlarging their existing building, as is the Harvard Club, or else moving to a new location in the same district as is the Yale Club.

In this, as in other respects, the Borough of Manhattan, like the cities of Paris and London, is assuming a relatively permanent aspect. The costly buildings which are now being erected throughout the whole central district cannot be scrapped and replaced as were the cheaper buildings of the past. They must continue to stand where they now stand and be devoted to their present uses. Fifth avenue, north of 34th street, must remain the center of the more expensive retail district. Sixth avenue must continue to keep the department stores. The theatres and restaurants will continue to congregate in the neighborhood of Long Acre Square. The location of the financial district has long been established.

The mercantile district continues to change more than any other; but there are limits beyond which its changes will not become effective. It still goes on spreading farther north, particularly along the line of Broadway; but it can hardly do so very much longer. It cannot displace the existing amusement and retail districts, because property becomes more valuable for those purposes than it is for loft buildings. If it wishes to spread farther north, consequently, it can do so only by occupying territory to the west of Seventh avenue or east of Park avenue; and before it accepts such inferior locations north of 34th street it is likely to spread even farther west and east south of 34th street. In general, that street is likely to be the northerly line of the mercantile district for a great many years.

The Morris Park Auction Prices.

The newspapers have naturally given a great deal of space to the excellent prices obtained at the sale of the vacant lots comprising the old Morris Park race track; and it certainly was very extraordinary that at a time when real estate is suffering from such acute depression and general business is so much disturbed, so many people could be induced to buy vacant lots which will not be available for improvement until some years have elapsed. It indicates that in the opinion of many small investors the prevailing depression will soon pass away. But, however encouraging the success of the sale may be considered to be, one important contributing cause of its success should not be overlooked. The sale was extremely well managed. Rarely have more ingenious and extensive measures been taken to attract public attention to an auction sale of lots than were taken in this instance. A considerable amount of money was spent in advertising, and the advertisements were well calculated to attract public attention.

It would be very interesting to learn precisely what proportion of the total receipts were spent in the attempt to make the sale a success and how much the average price obtained for each lot was diminished thereby. Of course, the managers of the sale derived an enormous advantage from the huge area of the property which was being offered to the public. They could afford to spend unusually large sums of money in advertising, precisely because they had so many lots for sale. The same methods could not have been used with the same success under any other condition. This fact does not detract from the credit which belongs to the gentlemen who planned the distribution of the Morris Park lots; but it should give reason for hesitation and reflection to other property owners who would like to dispose of smaller areas of vacant land to the public.

An Impressive Record.

A recent number of the New York Times contained an interview with the Borough President of Manhattan, in which Mr. McAneny gave an exhaustive list of what had been accomplished in his office during the past three years. The list is so long and so impressive that it will bear repeating—particularly in view of the fact that so many of the items are of greater future than past importance. In the first place, a policy was deliberately adopted, not of planning expensive street improvements, but of utilizing the existing streets to the limit. Wherever such action was necessary, "stoop" privileges were revoked, and the roadways widened at the expense of the sidewalks, the result being an addition to the public highways the value of which has been rated as high as $10,000,000. The proposed improvement of the intersection of Park avenue and 34th street has been planned to accomplish the same purpose, and, together with the bridge over 42d street, will practically add a new longitudinal thoroughfare to the street system of Manhattan. A similiar result will be accomplished by the extension of Seventh avenue to Varick street.

Another proposed means of relieving existing congestion turns upon the proposed limitation of the height of buildings, which will in the long run tend to a better distribution both of population and of business. Mr. McAneny also points to certain effective beginnings which have already been made towards the more economical spending of the city's money. In the Hall of Records, for instance, there was an electric and heating plant which was being operated far under its capacity. By connecting it up with the county and city buildings in City Hall Park at an expense of $15,000 a saving of $18,000 a year was effected. The coal bill for the city's buildings in Manhattan has been cut down since 1910 from $90,000 to $45,000 through the introduction of new grates and other devices and the adoption of the British thermal unit system of buying. The cost of cleaning sewer basins used to be $2.56 per cubic yard. It is now $1.41 per cubic yard. All that needs to be done in order to accomplish similar results in all the city departments is to establish throughout a proper system of efficiency records, which would supply standards for future work; and with such standards in existence the Borough President's estimate of possible future saving, which amounts to no less than $12,000,000 a year, does not seem to be excessive. It is worth while dwelling upon the successes which have already been achieved in the work of reorganizing the plant and methods of the city, because far more drastic work along the same lines must eventually be undertaken, and constitutes the great hope for the future.

The Week in Real Estate.

Although business was dull and revealed no tendency toward actual expansion of dealing, there can be no doubt that the market made some progress during the week. The progress was of the intangible kind, impossible to measure, but nevertheless real. It consisted in a changing of the point of view of operators and investors, and was perhaps peculiarly the result of a natural reaction from the extreme pessimism created by the recent course of the stock market. The remarkable success of the Morris Park sale emphasized it, and gave it this force; and brokers report that they are now getting at least a hearing when they have a good proposition to submit.

The blind determination not to part with ready money, because of undefined, general alarm over financial conditions, has largely passed. Operators and investors are regaining confidence in their own judgment upon what they themselves see or understand; and, once in this frame of mind, there is much to inspire cheerfulness. The harvests are promising, there is no inflation of credits, industry is on a sound conservative basis, and the conviction is growing that the symptoms which everybody feared were caused by "congestion of securities," something which can be alleviated by proper remedies.

Meanwhile, labor is still to be employed and money to be spent on the new subways, the city continues to grow, and there is not an excessive amount of building construction under way. If there is an oversupply of recently erected buildings, it will have been greatly reduced before the building industry can start up again on a very large scale; and the investment returns to the man who buys now at current competitive prices look promising. The prospective investor may not be able to borrow money freely with which to buy; but if he owns some property that is not too heavily mortgaged and has some cash in the bank, he can do well in a trade for a modern apartment house or mercantile building. As a matter of fact, trading of the nature just referred to is the main feature of the market and it is likely to expand with recovery of confidence in the general industrial and financial prospect.

Economical Methods in Bronx Paving.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I notice in the Record and Guide of June 7 an article headed "Extravagance in City Paving," which gives the views of one Albert E. Davis on certain alleged instances of extravagance in paving in the Borough of The Bronx. It says:

"The evidence of this waste can be found in great quantities of paving blocks and curb stones in good condition piled up in vacant lots in various sections of The Bronx."

In the first place, some of these piles of paving stones belong to the street railway companies, which we have induced to pave the roadway between their tracks with granite blocks. This has not been done before on many streets and is a great addition to our street paving.

In the second place, we have invented a method of using old granite blocks by breaking them in two, refacing them and laying them on a concrete foundation. This was done in Third avenue and some other streets, and in my judgment is the finest paving for heavy traffic in the city. It costs about $1.70 a yard, which is about half the cost of first class paving. On the Third avenue job alone we saved about $100,000.

We have amended our paving contracts so that when a street is to be repaved and there are granite paving blocks in the gutters, the contractor is required to cart them to our yards, where these blocks are accumulated, instead of throwing them away. In this way we expect to get enough blocks to repave certain streets at small cost. Instead of being an evidence of extravagance, such piles of paving blocks are proofs of economy.

The Southern Boulevard was paved only after it became almost impassable because the paving had been torn up so many times for house connections and other surface structures—and the asphalt blocks were worn out.

Mr. Davis' ignorance is shown further in the statement that petitions for repaving are obtained easily by interested contractors; whereas repaving is not done by petition.

CYRUS C. MILLER.
President of the Borough of The Bronx.

The Old Town Records of Queens.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

A matter that should have the immediate attention of all property owners in Queens Borough—in fact, of all property owners in the city of New York, who would lessen the ever-increasing number of street opening proceedings—is the request of Borough President Connolly for an issue of $5,600 of special revenue bonds to pay for the copying of the records of the old towns and villages that are now an integral part of the Borough of Queens.

The information pertaining to streets contained in these old records is the most important collection of facts that the Borough President can quote when he requests the opinion of the Corporation Counsel as to whether the city has title to a street by dedication. These records are in Manhattan, and are not indexed. Consequently, when some data contained in them is needed, a man needs to be sent to Manhattan, and oftentimes spends days turning the pages of these old records looking for something that should be at the fingertips of the officials in Queens.

Property owners on a street the Corporation Counsel declares dedicated can obtain all improvements without first paying for a street opening proceeding.

On May 6 the Board of Aldermen gave its approval to this bond issue, and requested the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to do likewise. President Connolly, however, expects the Comptroller to oppose this bond issue in his report to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

The records in question are fast going to pieces and will have to be copied sooner or later. Therefore, lest they loose the benefit that an immediate copying of these records would afford, property owners on these old town and village streets of Queens should make plain to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment the saving this bond issue means to them.

THE WEST SIDE PLANS.

Engineer Rice Acting for Riverside Owners—Hearing Next Tuesday.

George S. Rice, who was chief engineer of the old Rapid Transit Commission, and has now been retained by the new Riverside Drive Protective Association, is preparing plans in an attempt to avert the damage that would be done to real estate by the construction of a great railroad terminal at Manhattanville. He hopes to have the yard cut down in extent, completely covered over, and the rise in the main tracks north of 135th street rendered unnecessary. Another hearing will be held next Tuesday.

Messrs. Brunner, Olmstead and Lay, landscape architects, have strongly recommended to the Terminal Committee of the Board of Estimate, which is negotiating with the New York Central Railroad Company, that the tracks be so spaced as to permit the placing of columns among them at suitable intervals for the construction of a more or less continuous deck and that the city retain the right to erect such columns and construct such deck at a future time, provided the plans for the same shall be approved by the Public Service Commission or other competent body as not interfering unduly with the efficient operation of the yards.

This deck would be used, when erected, for park and playground purposes. In this locality the value of a level area of such extent for these purposes will soon exceed many times the cost of construction. Indeed, it will be impossible otherwise to secure it, since the possibility of filling into the river for such purpose is here cut off for a length of a mile and a half by continuous commercial dock sites.

Why a Freight Yard?

Stanley M. Isaacs, counsel for the Riverside Protective Association, in an interview for the Record and Guide, questioned the necessity of having any freight yard at all at Manhattanville. "The Central at other points has," he said, "a large area devoted to its use. Would not a more intensive development in its present localities answer its purposes? No such yard as that now proposed was asked in 1906, or indeed before the act of 1911. If a yard to land market supplies is needed, could a worse location be found anywhere? Accessible only at one end, viz., through Manhattan valley, a steep and impassable cliff bars access to and from every other point. Manhattan valley, where there is a commercial development already, would welcome the added transportation facilities, and land values would rise instead of fall because of such a neighbor.

"The westerly shores of the Harlem River could also well be developed in this way. The low, flat ground from Spuyten Duyvil to Dyckman street lends itself ideally to this sort of improvement, or the Harlem River waterfront, from 135th to 155th street, from which tunnel connection could be had with the North River tracks—a district adjoining a tenement and commercial section, where the houses would be filled with new tenants and business actually gain by the proximity of the yards. These are merely suggestions. Anyone of them could, I am confident, be worked out.

Why Not Cover It?

"Or, if a yard must be located here, and if the Central can prove its necessity beyond a reasonable doubt, then let it be smaller in extent; and, above all, let us insist that it be entirely covered over. I am assured by competent engineering authority that this is feasible, and Mr. George S. Rice, who has been retained by the owners, is ready, if proper time and hearing are accorded him, to convince the Board of Estimate and the engineers of the railroad that this is an engineering problem which lends itself to ready solution. Indeed, the advisory board of architects employed by the city suggests the propriety of a complete covering of the yard.

"I am informed that the cost of covering the yard completely would not exceed $4,500,000. If this is so, the city would obtain a very cheap park. Land fronting on the Drive is assessed at approximately $400,000 an acre. This park would cost the city less than $150,000 per acre. Riverside Drive Park below Grant's Tomb, which cost over $50,000 an acre in 1872 is now valued on the city's tax books at over $200,000 an acre. If the city not only remedies the evils against which we are protesting, but can add to its park and playground facilities, a large area of desirable waterfront at a comparatively low cost, certainly the problem which we are facing will be well solved.

"All that the property owners ask is that the city treat that portion of the Drive north of 135th street with the same consideration as is paid to the Drive south of Grant's Tomb. The report of the special committee of the Board of Estimate states that it forced the Central to agree to roof over the tracks for the entire distance from 122d street to 72d street, because not to do so would rob Riverside Drive of all its attractive features. There is no more reason for robbing the Drive north of 135th street of all its attractive features than there is for committing this crime to that portion south of Grant's Tomb."

Population Follows the Trolley.

The new trolley road from Long Island City through Queens to Rosedale, at the Nassau County line, will bring all of Queens and part of Nassau county within the five-cent fare zone. As a result hundreds of workers in Long Island City heretofore residing in Manhattan and The Bronx will reside in the borough of their employment and in Nassau county because they present the suburban home aspect.

Of twenty-four large factories in Long Island City there is employed in them a total of 9,573 persons, of whom 5,149 reside in Queens within a few miles of their places of employment: and the tendency now is for many of them who reside in Greenpoint and those in Manhattan, to move with their families from tenement house neighborhoods to points in Queens and Nassau counties where residential attractions are greater. This circumstance accounts for the moderate priced house building movement in Valley Stream, Rosedale, St. Albans and the adjacent area in Queens.

A campaign is under way among real estate developers and dealers in both Queens and Nassau counties to encourage more expansive housing conditions and thereby cause a greater influx of good mechanics and other well paid workers to the parts of those counties where they can obtain individual homes. The new trolley road must naturally aid growth of population. The hundreds of cottages in the southern part of Woodhaven, for example, are owned and occupied by men who earn good wages in adjacent factories.

—The first four numbers of the Publications of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York, series 1912-13, just received, are gotten up in a craftsmanlike manner that does credit to the secretary, L. D. Woodworth, of 1 Exchange street, Rochester, N. Y. They should be sent for as models, both of contents and make-up, by all who are interested in real estate association work.

—The Public Service Commission for the First District gave a hearing Tuesday noon on the application of the Vyse Estate and other property owners for the establishment of a station on the Lenox avenue branch of the existing subway at 172d street. At present there is no station between Freeman street and 174th street, and 172d is about midway between the two. The hearing was an animated one, as sectional rivalry was developed, and the commissioners withheld their decision.

—The Flatbush Gas Company has received special permission from the Public Service Commission to put into effect, seven days after publication, a supplement to its schedule of rates for power purposes. The new supplement gives a schedule of discounts to be allowed on monthly bills ranging from 20 per cent. on quantities between 100 and 200 h. p. hours and 83 1-3 per cent. on quantities in excess of 80,000 h. p. hours.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

THE CASE OF THE PEOPLE AGAINST THE GREATER NEW YORK BRICK COMPANY OPENS—MANUFACTURERS THRONG COURT ROOM AT WESTCHESTER VILLAGE—NEXT SESSION MONDAY, JUNE 30.

General Pig Iron Market Unsettled—
Brick Shows Signs of Improvement.

THE award this week of the contract for approximately 1,500 tons of steel to the Hedden Iron Company for the Military Plaza hotel in Newark, and the fact that the George A. Just Company took the contract for the theatre and office building to be erected at Forty-seventh street and Broadway, were the two bright spots in the steel trade that portend a return to normal conditions in the building material market. In both of these instances it was rumored that owing to present business conditions and the alleged over-crowding of new construction in Newark and in the Longacre square section of this city, these operations were to be deferred until next Spring so the news of the actual awarding of steel contracts in these two important projects acted as a sort of stimulant to an otherwise languid week.

On the floor of the Building Material exchange the week closed with a little more life to transactions and there was a better tone in the inquiry for forward purchases of brick, although few actual contracts have been made so far. Up the river the manufacturers are operating about three-fifths of their capacity which is a little less than last year's schedule, but this is due more to scarcity of labor than to any concerted action in keeping down the output.

The market is at present strongly competitive, but there is no general price shading except in certain steel departments where an effort is being made to counteract the tendency to postpone building operations until later in the fall. This is being felt particularly in Newark and in Brooklyn where speculative construction work was expected to be heavy this year. The strengthening of the money market tends to encourage a return to normal building conditions which may account, in part, at least, for the firmness with which prices are being held to list.

Iron consumers, however, are inclined to await further developments before coming into the market for forward purchases. Lumber dealers are still buying from hand to mouth, brick dealers are buying gingerly and are waiting until July before going in heavily for future deliveries, granite cutters have manned their yards with non-union help and are supplying almost all the jobs taking this material, crushed stone and sand is gaining in demand. Portland cement is active at the new price levels of $1.58.

BRICK DIRECTORS STAND TRIAL.

No Change in Procedure Just Yet In Case of Guybco Interests.

THE directors and officers of the Greater New York Brick Company went into Magistrate Freschi's court in Westchester village on Thursday in exactly the same roles they have taken ever since D. C. Weeks & Sons first made them defendants in an action to disband them as an alleged monopoly in restraint of trade a year ago. There appears to have been no disposition to remove at this time the individual members of the directorate from liability to fine and imprisonment if the company is ultimately found guilty of violating the Donnelly anti-monopoly act, and the examination proceeded before Magistrate Freschi with the directors and officers of the big company in exactly the same status in the eyes of the prosecution as they were last week.

The present action is synonymous with that of a prospective complainant before a police magistrate who holds a preliminary examination to determine whether there is sufficient evidence at hand to warrant placing the case before the Grand Jury, and differs from the exparte proceedings just closed in that the latter was held for the purpose of permitting the magistrate to determine whether there was sufficient evidence in the hands of the District Attorney to warrant him in entertaining a complaint. The decision of the magistrate was in the affirmative and in the present examination those witnesses who testified in the action are now undergoing cross-examination by counsel on either side. If the magistrate finds, by the evidence adduced in the present proceedings that there has been criminal connivance between the directors, officers, employees and others identfied with the company tending in any way criminally to restrain business in this state, then the magistrate may hold all the defendants for the Grand Jury which, finding indictments against either the officers and directors as individuals or against the company as a corporation, would thus throw the case into a trial court when evidence will have to be taken as from the beginning. But when the present proceedings are finished, the Magistrate will decide whether the corporation should suffer indictment and undergo action in dissolution or whether the individual members of the directorate shall personally be held liable for any infraction of the law.

The issues in this case, aside from the mere criminal liability of the corporation or its officers and directors, are so far reaching that this apparently round-about procedure to determine the guilt or innocence of the accused brick manufacturers, is necessary because it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that the decisions of Magistrate Freschi in this case will be the first precedent in intra-state anti-monopoly law, for no prior decision has ever been handed down to establish whether the act under which the present proceedings are being conducted is actually constitutional. In this connection, and in view of the fact that Magistrate Freschi has had before him the reported cases of the Poultry and Ice Trust Prosecution, it was considered significant that the Court requested counsel for the complainants to procure for him the reported case of the National Cash Register Company, which recently caused a country-wide sensation.

Three witnesses were examined Thursday morning, Frank DeNoyelles, a manufacturer of common brick of Haverstraw, and secretary of the Greater New York Brick Company; Edwin Brockway, a vigorous brickmaker of more than three score years and ten, who showed evidences on the stand of having a remarkably clear memory for dates and incidents in connection with the formation of the selling agency here, and N. John Haines, who proved to be a rather puzzling witness for the counsel for the defense.

The Formative Period.

The proceedings were enlivened at times by witty replies by the last witness and by the persistency with which the examining counsel drove his inquiry apparently in an effort to learn whether Mr. Haines was in the employ of D. C. Weeks & Son as an investigator or merely as a purchasing agent as he testified he was, just prior to the organization of the Greater New York Brick Company. So evasive was the witness that a great deal had to be left to inference, as the court suggested, so that due progress in the examination might be made. The testimony of Mr. DeNoyelles was chiefly in relation as to whether the manufacturers who had organized the Greater New York Brick Company had been advised regarding their legal standing in the eyes of the Donnelly and Sherman acts. An interested spectator at the hearing was A. N. French of the law firm of Eidlitz & Hulse, of 31 Nassau st, counsel for the Mason Builders' Association of this city.

Mr. DeNoyelles testified that the brick business up the Hudson that bears his name was inherited by his father and that he has since conducted its affairs, both at the yards and in the New York market, as agent for the DeNoyelles estate. He thought he was pretty familiar with the conditions governing the manufacture of brick in the Hudson river district and said he was vice-president and secretary of the defendant corporation. He said that his company was not a part of the Greater New York Brick Company, that it was entirely separate, save in so far as the Greater New York Brick Company was its selling agency in this market, as consignees, and that at no time has the DeNoyelles brick company been compelled to sell solely through the Greater New York Brick Company.

His testimony showed that the first attempt that was made to organize a central selling agency in this market was in 1906 and that at various times attempts were made to perfect the plan. The Consolidated Brick Company was one of the early efforts at organized selling and the DeNoyelles Brick Company consigned to that firm. Later came the Manufacturers and Agents Association with offices in West 42d street through which considerable business was done by various Hudson river brick manufacturers. The third and final organization was the Greater New York Brick Company with offices at 103 Park avenue.

The organization of this company, according to the testimony of Mr. DeNoyelles, was

BRICK MARKET STEADIER.

General Conditions Seem to Indicate Prospective Improvement.

WITH $7.12½ ruling as approximate top in the Hudson river market and $7 full for Raritans, the general brick market showed a steadying tendency with collections very much improved. Brooklyn and Newark are only taking a fair volume of brick at present, but the prospects favor more activity, if the securities market continues to show the strengthening tendency it has demonstrated in the last six days.

Front brick is in moderate demand with prices unchanged. Competition is keen, but so far there has been little shading. Official transactions covering the week ending Thursday night with comparisons for the corresponding period last year follow:

PREVENTS LUMBER MONOPOLY.

Terms of Sale by Government Safeguards Resources.

ON a sale of 50 million feet of national forest timber to the Mount Graham Lumber Company, of Thatcher, Arizona, a contract has been entered into which, Forester Graves says, contains effective safeguards against possible monopoly. The timber is located on the Mount Graham Division of the Crook National Forest and flumes will be constructed by the company for taking the lumber from the mountain into Gila Valley. Under the terms of the sale these flumes, which will form an outlet for the Mount Graham Range timber generally, are to be available for the use of the Government or of any other purchasers from the Government.

The timber contracted for consists chiefly of Douglas fir and Engelman spruce, with small quantities of western yellow pine, white fir, and Mexican white pine. The initial price of $2 per thousand feet board measure is subject to readjustment in accordance with market values at the end of three years, the contract period extending over six years.

LUMBER THE WEAK SISTER.

This Branch of the Building Material Market Feels Doleful.

By R. JOHNSON PERRINE, President.

"It looks to us as though the lumber business was going to be very quiet this summer.

"The writer has had an opportunity during the last two weeks to meet the heads of all the representative lumber yards in Greater New York, and with a very few exceptions they are not very busy. This is generally the busiest time of the year in our trade.

"There seems to be a feeling of uncertainty in the trade, and most of the yards are reducing their stocks, and I think are buying only what is absolutely necessary to meet present demands.

"Regarding prices, I think most of the wholesale prices are about the same as of March first, but the opinion seems to prevail that they have reached the highest point and a reaction is about to take place."

THE WEEK'S REAL ESTATE NEWS

Brokerage Sales, Auctions, Foreclosure Suits, Building Loans, etc., Together With Brief Personal Items.

Trades and Corner Properties Were Features of the Week's Business.

Trades involving large properties were features of the week's business. Several large West Side apartment houses figured in the exchange of equities, as did a valuable Fifth avenue holding. A site on West 86th street was acquired for the erection of a large apartment, the second transaction on the same block this month which is the forerunner of a building operation.

Small tenement properties were in demand on the upper East Side and a few dwellings on the West Side for occupancy. The Brooklyn market weakened after last week's sturdy showing, while The Bronx remained quiet.

The total number of sales in Manhattan this week was 28.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 8, against 7 last week and 5 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 20 compared with 14 last week and 14 a year ago.

From the Bronx 9 sales at private contract were reported, against 12 last week and 10 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $3,012,078, compared with $3,549,164 last week, making a total since January 1 of $32,064,424. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $755,490, making the total since January 1, 1912, $28,388,563.

MRS. J. VANKIRK THOMPSON, of Pittsburgh and New York, is the purchaser of the two estates at Rhinebeck sold recently by Henry Schwarzwalder and Conrad Stein through G. A. Derschuch. The properties adjoin the residence of Jacob Ruppert on the north and are surrounded by the estates of Levi P. Morton, Tracy Dows, Vincent Astor and August Finck.

NEW PLAYGROUNDS.—The Board of Estimate will consider at its next meeting on July 26, the advisability of laying out a public playground in that section of Brooklyn bounded by Douglass st, Dumont av, Hopkinson av, Blake av, Bristol st, Dumont av, Hopkinson av and Livonia av; discontinuing Ames st, from Dumont av to Livonia av, and discontinuing Amboy st, from Dumont av to Livonia av.

EUGENE J. BUSHER has placed for the Co Free Realty Co. a loan of $51,500 at 5 per cent. for 3½ years on property 1113 Boston road, 5-sty building, 63x123; also for the S. N. Construction Co. a loan of $33,000 at 5 per cent. for 5 years on 864 East 175th st, 5-sty building, 48x94; also for E. Mullgannon a loan of $7,000 at 5½ per cent. for 3 years on a lot on the south side of East 149th st, 146 ft. east of Park av.

THE ESTATE OF MARGARET L. ZBOROWSKI, granddaughter of William Astor, has been appraised at $3,091,280. The New York realty amounted to $1,237,250, of which the largest item was 335 5th av, appraised at $1,006,250. The remainder consisted of securities. Other real estate holdings were 264-6 1st av, 404-6 East 16th st and 405 East 15th st, $88,500; 126-30 Bleecker st, $111,000; and 206 9th av, $32,500.

AS THE RESULT of petition proceedings brought by Charles Moran against Thomas Morgan, L. E. Frith, Maria L. Hoyt and others the sum of $945,100 was realized Monday at auction of 7 Morgan estate properties, located at 240 Broadway, 738 Broadway, 7 Washington pl, 1155 to 1159 Broadway, 17 to 20 Central Park West, 12 Washington pl and 255 Greene st. Joseph P. Day was the auctioneer. A. D. Moran bought in the property, representing several parties in interest.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES of the First Church of Christ Scientist of Staten Island have purchased as a site for a church building a plot 75x100 ft., located on Richmond Terace, St. George, S. I., which commands an unobstructed view of the harbor. Since this purchase was made the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has announced that the coal pockets and coal buiness located at St. George will be removed to another section of Staten Island as soon as their plans can be completed.

THE BRAUDE-PAPAE CO. negotiated the recent sale of the plot, 54x81x irregular, on the east side of Hamilton pl, 81 ft. north of 136th st, at the junction of Broadway, for Mary E. J. Devlin to the Domain Realty Co., which owns adjoining property. This plot, in addition to the present adjoining holdings of the Domain Company, gives the purchaser a total frontage of 136 ft, part of this plot now being improved with a 2-sty business and theatre building. The improvement of the last purchase will be 2-sty stores, lofts and offices. This is the first transfer of this property in 60 years.

OBJECTIONABLE SUBWAY KIOSKS.—The petition of the Forty-Third Street Association, addressed to the Board of Estimate and the Public Service Commission, requesting the removal of the subway kiosks at Madison av and 42d st, was referred by the Board of Estimate on Thursday to the President of the Borough of Manhattan.

The association is contending that an important public improvement in the heart of the city is being delayed because the question of cost is unsettled. The widening of 42d st at this busy crossing has been long delayed owing to the kiosk and the work in connection with it. The street car tracks on the northeast corner of 42d st and Madison av have been permitted to be moved almost to the sidewalk, anticipating the widening of the street, which has been delayed. Owing to this condition, serious danger is occasioned to pedestrians from passing cars.

The petition requested prompt attention from the board, for the necessary steps to satisfactorily adjust the situation.

Dr. James Kerr, of London, England, for many years an active member in London Council, and an international figure in affairs relating to school hygiene, will read a paper on "The Illumination of Class Rooms." "Re-circulation and Ventilation" is the title of the paper to be given by Dr. Luther Gulick, of New York.

Other papers on the subject of architecture will be read by Frank Irving Cooper, president of the Boston Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, who will speak on "The Planning of School Houses Against the Fire Hazard," and by Prof. Theodore Hough, of the University of Virginia on "Some Aspects of the Problem of Ventilation."

BUILDING MATERIALS.

subsequent to a number of meetings that had been called in the Palatine Hotel in Newburgh to which many manufacturers had been invited including Hiram Merritt, Denton Fowler, Jr., William K. Hammond, Edwin Breckway among others. This meeting, the witness stated, was an informal one at which a general discussion took place regarding the legality of such an organization contemplated, there apparently having been considerable doubt, in view of the decisions handed down in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases a short time previous to the conference up the river. Subsequent meetings were held, the witness testified, at which Robert M. Patterson, the corporation lawyer, of this city, was invited to be present to give them an insight into the legal status of such an organization as the brick makers then contemplated forming. Witness remembered that following the first meeting on June 23, 1911, in this city another meeting was held in Newburgh on July 3, 1911, when Mr. Patterson went very fully into the interpretation of both the Sherman and the Donnelly anti-monopoly laws in the light of the Tobacco and Standard Oil decisions. Witness said that the reason the manufacturers went into these laws and decisions so carefully was to make sure that they were entirely within their rights in forming such a company and that if they finally did decide to take such action they wanted to make sure that their company would not be susceptible to attack by the courts. It was shown that Mr. Patterson, in reply to a query, wrote that not only were the manufacturers entirely within their rights, but that he (Mr. Patterson) did not want to have anything to do with a corporation that was formed in violation of the law nor with men who contemplated the violation of any statute.

On July 10, 1911, the Greater New York Brick Company, which previously had been chartered as a corporation in Albany, opened offices and began business at 103 Park avenue, New York, and to show that the officers and directors were even at that time acting cautiously in the matter of keeping safely within the law, a letter written by Mr. Patterson bearing date of August 29, 1911, was offered as defendant's exhibit 1 in which he cautioned the Greater New York Brick Company against possible rebating or discrimination on the parts of barge captains, pointing out a possible prison penalty for violation of this provision in the law. Under date of September 20, 1911, President Rose sent out a letter which was admitted as defendants' exhibit 2 in which he repeated the caution to the barge captains and instructed them to post the notice in their cabins after each captain had signed a receipt for same. The letter ended with the admonition that the company would not be responsible for any sale made, contrary to the order issued in that notice. Witness said that the order has been carried out explicitly ever since.

This evidence was accepted as tending to show that the manufacturers believed they were within their rights and not to disprove the giving of rebates, no such allegation having been made in this case.

Not Bound by Contracts.

When Edwin Brockway, probably the oldest active brick maker in the Hudson river district was called to the stand he corroborated Mr. DeNoyelles in the statement that the directors of the Greater New York Brick Company were not under contract or bond in any way to ship their output exclusively through their selling agency. He said that the 103 Park avenue concern stood in relation to both the Brockway Brick Company and the Brockway Brothers Company merely as agents or consignees and that no agreement or contract would be violated if they decided at any time not to dispose of their brick through the defendant corporation. He said further that there never had been an agreement, contract or arrangement whereby output, season's length, machine capacity of plants or prices on the market were arranged or fixed or controlled. He was very emphatic in the statement that there was no understanding regarding selling or manufacturing conditions had ever been attempted or even suggested, and fuhtrermore, his companies were at liberty to put their outputs through any agency they chose to if they did not get a price from the Greater New York Brick Company that suited them.

He showed that his knowledge of the nonexistence of such an agreement was dependable because he had attended all but two or three of the preliminary and directors' meetings since the very inception of the company and knew of every action that had been taken. In extenuation of his contention that any stockholder of the Greater New York Brick Company could sell through other agencies he cited the Richmond Brick Company, which, though a stockholder in the selling company, sold its brick very largely through other agencies.

He further referred to George Archer, of Haverstraw, and Parnell & Merritt, as stockholders, who sold through other agencies than Gnybco.

Assistant District Attorney Ellison brought out the fact at this point that the Brockway interests had sold brick outside of the Greater New York Brick Company since its organization. The court asked witness if W. H. May, an employee of the Greater New York Brick Company, had ever called his attention to the fact that the Aeolean and the Telephone Buildings were receiving brick from sources outside of the Greater New York Brick Company to which question he gave a negative answer, both to that query and to one as to whether he had ever heard a discussion to the effect that any contractor was using brick not purchased through the 103 Park avenue selling agency. He said he had never heard of any cessation of shipments on the Masonic Building because brick were purchased from the outside. He also answered negatively to the court's question as to whether he knew of any resolution suggested or introduced to refuse the granting of riding privileges to any individual or firm that did not buy brick through Gnybco, upon being recalled to the stand by Magistrate Freschi after counsel for the defense had excused him.

KEEP COOL

Don't neglect your business just because hot weather has arrived.

Secure an electric fan and work harder this summer, next summer and every summer.

Electric fans add greatly to the summer attractiveness the lure—of a store. Swept by electric fan breezes, a store will attract and hold customers even in the dog days.

In the office, the same force will accomplish double the work with electric fans.

In the home, the electric fan makes it possible to live in comfort in spite of the weather.

Make your store attractive, your office, your home, comfortable.

Eliminating Grade Crossings.

The Public Service Commission for the First District will ask the forthcoming special session of the Legislature for an appropriation to enable it to proceed with the work of eliminating grade crossings on the lines of the Long Island Railroad in Queens Borough. The commission requested the last session of the Legislature to appropriate $1,500,000, but the appropriation bill carried only an item of $350,000 for New York City. This item, however, was vetoed by Governor Sulzer, and the commission was left without any funds to prosecute crossing work. Under the law the State must pay one-quarter of the cost before the commission can order a crossing eliminated. Since 1911 no money has been appropriated, and as a result elimination work, except as to that ordered prior to that time, is at a standstill.

The commission has held hearings on several groups of crossings which it desires to eliminate and only awaits an appropriation by the State to issue the necessary orders. Among these crossings are 21 on the Atlantic Avenue Division between the end of the elevated structure and the beginning of the Jamaica improvement. The elimination of these crossings will cost about $3,500,000, and the railroad company is willing to supply its half of the cost as soon as the State makes an appropriation. The other crossings for which the commission has prepared elimination orders include several crossings on the Whitestone branch, the main line, the Montauk and Rockaway divisions of the Long Island Railroad, and a few crossings in Richmond Borough on the line of the Staten Island Railway.

Haines a Puzzling Witness.

N. John Haines, who said that he was a purchasing agent in the employ of D. C. Weeks & Son, residing in Plainfield, N. J., was called to the stand after the court had requested Bert Hanson, counsel for the complainants, to procure for him a copy of the reported case of the National Cash Register Company. Mr. Patterson for the defendant company tried to bring out that Mr. Haines was in reality an investigator employed by the complainants and not merely a purchasing agent.

Witness testified that he had been employed by the complainants for some time, that he had purchased brick in various quantities at different times prior to and after December, 1911, and that failing to obtain figures on various quantities of brick here he finally went up the Hudson to deal direct with the manufacturers. He said that he worked for the complainants out of pure friendship, as he worded it, that he had not received a salary or other emolument as such, but that he was to receive a commission on the brick he was able to buy—from D. C. Weeks & Son. He said that he also bought brick for Haines Brothers, besides the Telephone building at Lispenard and Walker streets. Pressed for details as to whom he had applied for brick he said that he had talked with William Barnes of the Greater New York Brick Company who, he said, had acquiesced when he prodded him about charging what ever he d—d pleased for brick in this market and that he had not been able to see any official higher in the company than Mr. Barnes, and that he then went to see Cook & Genung of Newark and finally had engaged John J. O'Keefe, to go up the river and count the brick there to ascertain whether brick actually were scarce as he had been told was the case.

Mr. Haines created a ripple of laughter in the court when he said that he went from Fishkill Landing where he had gone on business, to Newburgh because he had heard a great deal about the Palatine Hotel there and was curious to see just what it looked like. He said he went there alone, with no particular object in view, and he was not sure whether it was the day in which the conference was held in the same hotel with reference to the organization of the Greater New York Brick Company. He said that he had heard that some paper there had published a nasty article about certain brick interests and he was desirous of getting a copy of the paper.

Cross examination brought out the information that Mr. Haines expected compensation for services rendered to D. C. Weeks & Son, but only as a buyer of brick and not as an investigator in anticipation of court proceedings against the defendant company. He said that he had employed for the complainants John J. O'Keefe to count brick, that he had conferred at that time with Frank Weeks and with Mr. Warner about the brick case, as often as he could, sometimes daily, but that he had gone to the office of D. C. Weeks & Son only four times so far this year, and that Mr. Warner had not directed his movements prior to the institution of this action. He said he worked about eighteen hours out of the twenty-four, Sundays included, as a buyer of brick for D. C. Weeks & Son. He said that after trying to buy brick at 103 Park avenue he had returned to Mr. Weeks' office and had said to him that it was about time he went to Albany and found out who the Greater New York Brick Company was. Asked who supplied the brick for the telephone company building he said he did not know except from hearsay information, but that he presumed that the Mason Builders' Association could supply that information. Counsel for that association was present, but that point was not pressed.

Incinerator Interests Combine.

Just as the patent situation in the waste destructor field bids fair to be an important factor in the establishment of of a new industry of waste disposal comes the announcement of the taking over of the incinerator business of Lewis & Kitchen, Chicago and Kansas City, by the National Iincinerator Company of New York. Coincident is the announcement of appointment of Mr. Samuel R. Lewis to be consulting engineer of the National Incinerator Co., and of the arrangement by which Lewis & Kitchen become the dealers and distributors of "Incinerite" devices for the territory served by their Chicago and Kansas City offices.

The long established heating and ventliating business of Lewis & Kitchen continues without changes.

The National Incinerator Company succeeded the Incinerator Company of America at the death of Paul Mortor, former Secretary of the Navy, president of the Equitable Insurance Co., etc., who in conjunction with O. M. Shannon, organized that company to build small sized gas burning destructors for household and hospital use from the designs and patents of the latter. The business has grown remarkably, as the National Incinerator Company and the taking over of this large device business completes the "Incinerite" line and provides a waste destroyer for every waste center, both large and small.

Samuel R. Lewis, former president of the National Association of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, has been appointed consulting engineer and will spend much of his time in this city.

Miller Urges City Terminal Markets.

At the fourth conference of New York State Mayors and other city officials, at Binghamton, Borough President Miller of The Bronx addressed the meeting on "What the City Can Do to Reduce the Cost of Living" and said:

"The city can help to cut the cost of the necessaries of life by providing terminal markets, by supervising and inspecting the marketing so that the interests of all are safeguarded; by giving publicity to market conditions so that the people can market more intelligently; by educating our youth to the dignity and importance of agriculture and by aiding nearby farmers to improve productions and to market goods advantageously.

"Retailing is now the most expensive link in the chain of distribution. The retailer adds 15 per cent. to the cost of food for delivery alone. Perhaps eventually some one will work out a plan whereby the common sight of ten wagons in one street distributing goods to ten families will be replaced by a view of one wagon delivering to ten families."

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1913.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instance names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page, is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

NEW YORK, JUNE 28, 1913

Real Estate as New York's Principal Source of Revenue—Modernize Method of Selecting Public Servants—Why a New Charter is Needed—Home Rule Necessary.

———Article IV, Part II.———

By HENRY BRUERE, Director, Bureau of Municipal Research.

EACH taxpayers' pronunciamento on civic matters combines a demand for economy with a complaint against the growing taxation of real estate. Complaints and protests have yet been unavailing. Taxes on land have increased from $67,927,925 in 1903, to $144,658,762, in 1912. Land taxes are New York City's chief revenue reliance and doubtless they will continue so. For the past ten years an average of 74 per cent. of the budget total has been levied against real estate. As long as the cost of government continues to increase, it is safe to assume that at least there will be no important reduction in the total tax collected from real estate.

The Income Tax a German Alternative.

In contrast with New York, the budgets of the great German cities show that most of their revenues comes from sources other than land taxation. In Hamburg, for example, in 1910, only $6,250,000 (Mess. 25,000,000) of the $19,250,000 (Mess. 77,000,000) total revenues were collected from the land tax. In Frankfurt, in 1911, $1,250,000 (Mess. 5,000,000) out of a total of $6,250,000 (Mess. 25,000,000) were collected from land taxes.

There are few taxpayers or rentpayers who would prefer the substitution of the income tax for present land taxation as a means of supplying funds for municipal purposes. But income taxation is a chief source of revenue of the great German cities. Citing Frankfurt and Hamburg again, in 1910, 58 per cent. of the total revenue in the first city, and in 1911, 60 per cent. in the second, was collected from incomes.

Income taxation is a logical means of obtaining funds to defray the cost of city government, if the principle governing taxation is the ability of taxpayers to pay. But for municipal purposes, taxation of land makes the stronger equitable appeal, because land values not only reflect the benefit of municipal services, but are themselves the peculiar product of community growth. The average non-land owning citizen of New York will prefer to continue paying taxes in the disguised form of rent to the more direct method of the income tax.

German Cities Make Money as Well as Spend It.

The preponderance of land taxation in the municipal economy is a result of a city business policy which taxpayers themselves have willed. Revenue statements of German cities often show a surplus derived from the operation of public utilities. German cities are to this extent in the business of making money. It is a commonplace that taxpayers in Germany are the advocates of municipal ownership of their utilities, because they have always been accustomed to a city government competent to organize and operate them. New York's taxpayers very largely still regard any extension of public operation of public utilities as fraught with danger.

Assuming that there had existed the efficient, business-like government that New York is now striving for, it would long ago have been regarded mere common sense for the municipality to derive whatever legitimate profit it could from public utility services, and not merely take over, as in the case of the Staten Island ferry, only those utilities which are commercially forlorn hopes.

When perpetual franchises are forever revoked, and the city acquires control of its natural common services, taxpayers will doubtless be prepared to compel their efficient operation by the city and for the city. For the time being, however, reduction in taxation by means of public service revenues is out of the question.

Lesser Alternatives.

The large revenue alternatives of the income tax and public ownership profits being out of the question, there are left lesser ones which merit attention. Irrespective of the propriety of land taxation it is good public policy to develop other proper sources of revenue. Two years ago a revenue commission was appointed to inquire into possible new sources of revenue. They made their report in January, 1913. The commission suggested some new sources, but the bulk of their report has to do with further development of old sources. Some taxpayers protested against one of the commission's recommendations, that for a land value increment tax, but no organized taxpayers support has been given to other recommendations concerning which there is little chance of controversy.

Revenue Commission's Suggestions.

In the six months that have passed since the commission reported, action has been taken on only one recommendation. The Legislature has authorized the establishment of a fund from the sale of real estate owned by the city, but no longer required to be used in purchasing other real estate. There is some question whether it would ever be wise for the city to give up land once acquired, provided it made it its business to put all vacant city land to some profitable use.

At present, land can be purchased by the city only for public use and used only for public purposes (except dock lands and lands under water and property awaiting use for the purpose for which the city acquired it).

Recommendations not yet acted upon and which taxpayers will hardly oppose, are the following:

1. Annual payment for the privilege of erecting and maintaining billboards and signs on private property.

The very reasonable proposal is made that the square footage of bill boards, sign boards and electric signs be taxed at the rate of 2 per cent. per annum on an assessed valuation of 1 per cent. of the front foot value of the land occupied. This tax will either bring a substantial revenue, or discourage the present plague of offensive, uncontrolled billboard advertising.

2. Adequate payment for the use of vault spaces under sidewalks. An annual charge, as made in Chicago and demanded by common sense, is proposed instead of the present ridiculously low once-for-all payment.

3. Taxing franchises irrespective of other payments. Sec. 48 of the tax law which the commission proposes should be repealed, according to the report, "has whittled away a source of income to which the city is justly entitled." It permits corporations to deduct from the levy made upon their franchises, payments made under franchise provisions.

4. Sale of privileges at public auction. A practice that not only increases revenue but interferes with political favoritism in disposing of park concessions and other privilege rights.

5. An extended use of water meters. A business-like method of collecting water revenues and the only means of

Non-partisan Government

Until taxpayers insist that the method of selecting the men who are to administer public business is modernized, the efficiency program is likely to suffer periodic political obstruction. Good administration is more likely to be obtained from a government directly responsible to the people than from a government responsible to political bosses, self-constituted committees, however well-intentioned, or to one or another dominating or influential personality. Direct and non-partisan primaries and non-partisan elections will help mightily in modernizing New York City's government.

HENRY BRUÈRE.

equitably distributing the cost of supplying water.

6. Discontinuing the practice (required by law) of exempting church and other tax exempt (except city) property from assessment for benefits resulting from public improvements.

Many now favor the complete doing away with all exemption from taxation.

7. Assessing cost of rapid transit extensions against benefited property, as permitted by the Rapid Transit Act. An economically sound proposal, but one generally regarded as politically inexpedient.

8. Charging slightly higher fees for certain specific services performed in the county offices, e. g., recording instruments, in order that these services may be self-sustaining.

This proposal opens the question of the economy with which county offices are conducted. It may be desirable to increase fees charged, but a study should first be made of county administration.

The commission recommended in addition, a tax on all forms of business which require inspection and regulation by the city government. This proposal bears resemblance to the archaic occupation tax, and, therefore, is not likely to be welcomed.

Excess Condemnation.

An amendment of the constitution to permit excess condemnation was included among the commission's proposals. An amendment providing for excess condemnation had been passed by the Legislature before the commission made its report, but was defeated at the polls because of insufficient vote. The 1913 Legislature has again passed the proposed amendment and it will be submitted to the people in November. Taxpayers can help bring out a full vote in November to give cities the desirable power of participating in the increment in contiguous land values that generally result from great public improvements.

Investigate Operation of Lower Tax on Buildings.

The Bureau of Municipal Research, and the writer personally, are frequently asked for an opinion on the "halving-the-tax-on-buildings" proposal. The friends of this measure say that it will shift the incidence of taxation to the land miser and land under-user from the occupiers of buildings and the owners of improvements. There is an appealing force in the argument that to tax improvements is to tax enterprise. Personally, I believe that the argument is so appealing that persistent advocacy of it will continue for some time and with reasonable prospects of success.

The project of lowering the tax on buildings at the expense of land is not untried. Influential taxpayers whose public interests outweigh their real estate interests, should have a scientific, impartial study made of its operation in Canadian provinces. It would be appropriate for the Tax Department itself to conduct an investigation of the measure if funds were granted for the purpose. If it is true that by lowering the tax rate on buildings the use of land now unused is encouraged, and the burdens of enterprising land owners and the owners of small houses lowered, the measure will benefit all taxpayers who are not land speculators, as well as their tenants.

Opposition to this adjustment in taxation methods will not finally prevail unless it is based on evidence clearly showing that the predictions of its advocates are disproved by the experience of other communities.

However great the zeal and ability which officials may apply to improving administrative methods, thoroughly direct, business-like and progressive government will not be attained under the present charter.

Defects in the Charter.

From time to time scores of defects have been pointed out in the present city charter, but five attempts to prepare a new charter in the past six years have inspired more opposition than advocacy. Perhaps one reason for this condition was that none of the charters was framed by a commission truly representative of the community. Taxpayers should see that the new constitution (1914) permits local home rule and charter-making by representatives chosen by the electorate. This is the method employed in Ohio and State further west.

At this moment the three important cities of St. Louis, Minneapolis and Cleveland have see charter commissions at work. The Cleveland commission has just submitted its proposal. This commission is headed by the mayor of the city. Its secretary is the secretary of the Municipal Association of Cleveland.

Whatever action the people take upon these charter proposals, they at least will have had an opportunity to say not only who shall prepare their charter, but whether the charter prepared suits them. The people of New York should have this power and when they do, more public support will be obtained for the much needed redrafting of the city charter.

Taxpayers should include the preparation of an efficient home-rule charter among their next steps towards efficient government for New York City.

Make Use of the Home Rule Law.

Amid a good deal of doubt as to its application, there is a general understanding that the Home Rule bill passed at the last session of the Legislature, confers upon the Board of Aldermen power to regulate in detail and reconstruct, if necessary, the administrative machinery of the city.

The Governor vetoed several bills amending the charter on the ground that the aldermen now have power to do for the city what formerly lay within the exclusive power of the Legislature. This being so, there is no longer any excuse for postponing the adoption of a city-wide business procedure. At the suggestion of the Bureau of Municipal Research several cities are now preparing administrative codes to insure uniformity and efficiency of method throughout all city departments. An administrative code provides one best way of letting and executing contracts, one best way of executing public improvements, one best way of making purchases, keeping stores, preparing payrolls, and all the other details of city business that can be standardized, and by standardization made efficient. Taxpayers should see that the aldermen have this opportunity for promoting efficient government effectively brought to their attention.

Non-Partisan Primaries and Elections Help Efficient Government.

Nothing in government is more important than the method of selecting those who govern. Good administration is helped by popular control of the elective machinery. It will help New York's efficiency program if the New York electorate are given as full control over the selection and removal of officials as is provided for in the charters of many Western cities. There modern election provisions are fairly represented by the election clauses of the proposed new Cleveland charter. Would citizens find it less difficult to insure the election of competent officials than now if these provisions, taken from Cleveland's charter, governed the selection of public officials in New York?

1. Nominations by petition.
2. Ballots without party mark or designation.
3. Ballots so printed that each elector is enabled to designate for each office the candidate of his first choice, the candidate of his second choice and such other candidates as he may desire to support.
4. Names of candidates on ballots printed in rotation in different order in different lots, so that no candidate shall have undue advantage by reason of having his name placed first in the list of candidates.
5. Recall of elective officials by majority vote on petition signed by a suitable number of voters.

The Iowa and New Jersey commission laws add to these provisions a plan for primaries on similar lines for the purpose of reducing the number of contestants for each office to two. With provisions of this kind in force, pilgrimages of aspiring candidates to the seats of the mighty, more or less secret deliberations of self-constituted committees, and speculation as to the intentions of the boss or bosslets, would play a less important part in the all-serious people's business of choosing the managers of city government. If nothing more, the people themselves would have the right to pass on the relative merits of aspirants for nomination. Every four years intelligent voters in New York undergo the humiliation of having applicants for the chief administrative positions of the city combed over and culled out by the politicians or well-intentioned men who act no doubt conscientiously but wholly without popular authority.

Until taxpayers insist that the method of selecting the men who are to administer public business is modernized, the efficiency program is likely to suffer periodic political obstruction. Good administration is more likely to be obtained from a government directly responsible to the people than from a government responsible to political bosses, self-constituted committees, however well-intentioned, or to one or another dominating or influential personality. Direct and non-partisan primaries and non-partisan elections will help mightily in modernizing New York City's government.

Mechanics' Wages at Various Centers.

A table, showing the rate of wages, per hour, that is being paid in the building trades, has been compiled and issued by E. M. Craig, secretary of the Builders' Association, 808 Chamber of Commerce, Chicago, Ill. On studying this table it will be seen that New York by no means pays the highest wages in the country. The following list gives the average rate per hour paid to bricklayers at various centers:

Albany, $0.65; Birmingham, $0.70; Buffalo, $0.60; Chicago, $0.72½; Cincinnati, $0.65; Cleveland, $0.67½; Denver, $0.75; Des Moines, $0.70; Indianapolis, $0.70; Kansas City, $0.75; Los Angeles, $0.75; Minneapolis, $0.65; Newark, $0.65; New York, $0.70; Omaha, $0.70; Peoria, $0.70; Portland, $0.75; Philadelphia, $0.62½; Rochester, $0.60; San Francisco, $0.87½; Salt Lake City, $0.75; Seattle, $0.75; St. Louis, $0.70; Sioux City, $0.80; Washington, $0.62½; Tacoma, $0.75. A number of cities, it will be noted from the above list, pay mechanics equally well as New York City.

THE PROBLEM OF LIGHT AND VENTILATION

As Intensified By Skyscrapers—A Practical Method For Limiting Building Bulk—Evils Not Due to Height Alone—Restricting Ground Dimensions.

By A. L. A. HIMMELWRIGHT, C. E., Member Advisory Committee on Building Code.

THE advisability of restricting the height of buildings in this city is a subject that has again been brought to the attention of owners, architects and builders. Limiting the height of buildings will not in itself bring about the improved conditions so greatly desired in the congested districts, nor will it affect the most important question of light and ventilation in the buildings.

We all know that the present building code in effect in this city is in part hopelessly antiquated and inadequate. The proposed revisions that have been submitted to the Board of Aldermen during the last six years have each represented considerable advances in the right direction. All the revisions, however, so far submitted have been defective in the following details:

(1) Lack of specific regulations in regard to lighting and ventilation, except for sleeping rooms. The sizes of light courts are carefully designated, but there are no provisions as to the minimum number or location of such courts.

(2) The portions of building lots that may be occupied by buildings is left practically the same as is permitted under the existing laws and regulations, without any different or better distribution of the unoccupied spaces.

There can be no question but that the time has arrived when it is absolutely necessary for the protection of the public health that some definite and effective regulations should be provided governing the questions of light and ventilation. Unscrupulous and grasping owners and speculators are so prone in these days to evade the building law and construct buildings which will have the maximum amount of renting space, irrespective of sanitary conditions, light and ventilation, that regulations governing these matters must positively be enacted and enforced.

The Case Against High Buildings.

Many persons erroneously believe that the conditions in regard to light and ventilation are due to the height of buildings, and that the limitation of the height of buildings is the proper and only means of correcting the difficulties in regard to light and ventilation.

The leading argument against high buildings is that they obstruct the light and impede the fresh air currents. Localities such as Nassau street, near Printing House Square, and lower Broadway, are pointed out as illustrating the wanton and exorbitant appropriation of sunshine and air. It is asserted that high buildings at such places produce the effect of continuous canyon-like walls on both sides of the narrow streets, intercepting the light and rendering the streets dark and gloomy; that offices and stores in the lower stories are dark and in many cases must be lighted by artificial means.

While these assertions are undoubtedly true, it is necessary to consider this subject in a broader light and look into the conditions of light and ventilation that exist in other sections of the city where the buildings are of moderate height, and we will see that the high buildings are not the many headed monsters some would have us believe.

A. L. A. HIMMELWRIGHT.

Everyone who is familiar with lower New York and other closely built up sections of our large cities is well aware that block after block of buildings present a solid front on the streets. The depth of the buildings generally averages between 60 and 90 feet, the average frontage being about 25 feet per lot and the average height from five to seven stories. These buildings, flanked on both sides by solid party walls, are wholly dependent for light upon the windows in the front and rear. In some instances additional light is obtained in the top story by means of skylights in the roof. The great majority of these buildings are dismally dark and artificial light must invariably be resorted to whenever they are to be used for business purposes.

Even in four and five-story residences, of which there are many thousands between 23d street and the Harlem River, practically the same conditions exist. These residences have only a few well-lighted rooms in the front and rear, while the hallways and interior rooms are dark, cheerless and frequently are lighted only by doorways leading to the front and rear rooms and have insufficient or no ventilation.

A Question of Design.

When we find the same conditions as to inadequate lighting and ventilation in practically all the moderate height residences and commercial buildings that have been built under our existing laws, is it not conclusive proof that the question of light and ventilation is one wholly of design? This is the important point to which I wish to call attention. The question of light and ventilation is simply and absolutely a question of suitable design and depends only in a very small degree on the height of the building. It would amaze most persons if they were to have correct knowledge of the actual number of owners and architects who besiege the Building Department after plans have been filed in their effort to evade the laws and sacrifice necessary stairways, light and ventilation to secure maximum renting space. It is also to be regretted that there are numerous architects, who, for a consideration, are willing to smother whatever professional pride they may possess and in opposition to their better judgment and good taste, cater to the vicious greed of unprincipled speculators and owners.

It seems to me that the permissible area of a lot which may legally be occupied by a building can be properly further restricted, and that there cannot be any reasonable objection in requiring this, if an owner by complying with legal regulations governing light and ventilation is permitted to build a large part of his building to any desired height. This, in my opinion, is the solution of the present problem.

The area of lots which buildings may occupy should, therefore, be further restricted so as to permit conformity with reasonable and sufficient regulations governing the problems of light and ventilation.

A Practical Method Suggested.

The problem of restricting the height of buildings in New York City was first suggested and considered sixteen years ago and met with overwhelming opposition by the property owners. To improve the conditions and solve the problem of light and ventilation, I suggested that a law be framed prescribing that only a certain portion of the total frontage in the middle of the lot might be occupied by a building. A passage for light and air would thus be provided between all buildings which would render each independent of any and all others as regards light and ventilation.

Such a plan would have many other advantages. It would afford better and safer means of escape for the occupants in case of fire and would facilitate the operations of the Fire Department. Many of the perplexing difficulties experienced by owners of adjoining properties when excavating for new buildings would be obviated and, most important of all, such a plan would insure absolute freedom of design, which is impossible when buildings adjoin each other.

A practical illustration may make this plan clearer. Assume a law as suggested that prescribes that a building may occupy 80 per cent of the middle portion of the frontage of the lot (other than corner lots) and 72 per cent. of its total area to a height of two and one-half times the width of the street; and that one-half of the building, or 36 per cent. of the lot area, may be continued to any desired height.

Properly Lighted Buildings.

It would be apparent that under this plan a lot with 50-foot frontage would be occupied by a building 40 feet wide in the center of the lot; a lot 25 feet wide by a building 20 feet wide, and a lot 100 feet wide by a building 80 feet wide. The space between two adjoining 50-foot lots would be 10 feet; between two 25-foot lots 5 feet, and between two 100-foot lots 20 feet.

The unoccupied spaces distributed in this way would afford conditions making it possible to design buildings that would be properly lighted and ventilated to a height of two and one-half times the width of the street, and by restricting the portion of the building of unlimited height to 36 per cent. of the lot area, similar conditions would result for the proper lighting and ventilation of the higher portions of the buildings.

No more difficult problem has ever been presented to architects than the artistic designing of high buildings. When this problem is still further complicated by the necessity of adapting the design so that it may harmonize with adjoining buildings the task becomes well nigh hopeless. If, on the other hand, all buildings were isolated as is here proposed the utmost liberty of design and freedom of action would result.

The Profit Limit.

The practical and profit-producing limit of height to which buildings may be built has been approximately reached in the cases of the Singer Building, the Metropolitan Life Tower, and the Woolworth Building. From authoritative sources it is learned that these buildings, provided they can be kept filled with tenants, will furnish sufficient revenue to pay only a fair rate of interest on the entire investment. They are, therefore, not attractive investments from a business standpoint, and never can be. Consequently, we need have no fear that any considerable number of such buildings will ever be built in this city.

It is my belief that to arbitrarily limit the height of buildings is not only a mistake, but that the 100,000 property owners in this city whose interest and influence would overwhelm any other influence would never consent to it. Take for example a man owning a lot with a 100-foot front on Broadway, which at the present time may be covered with five or six-story buildings, alongside of an adjoining property of the same size improved by a building twenty-five stories in height. Would not the owner of the property with the low buildings make an instant and vigorous protest against a law which would restrict any proposed new building to a height of two and one-half times the width of the street and thus prevent him from ever constructing a building as high as his neighbor's, and thus forever cut off the possibility of his obtaining the same income or returns for his property as his neighbor? In other words, all owners of such property would have the actual value of their properties arbitrarily diminished. This would result in a universal protest, which could only be remedied by a modification of the law restricting the height of buildings, and this would probably be done within a few months after its adoption.

In view of these conditions, it is the duty of the Board of Aldermen to anticipate any such result, and so regulate the questions of light and ventilation that wholesome and healthful conditions will result independently of the height of buildings.

Adequate Exits.

Another important question that heretofore has never been considered in our building laws is the question of adequate exits so as to provide reasonable safety in buildings occupied by large numbers of persons. The joint committee report represents a distinct advance in this respect on all previous drafts that have been proposed, but even the joint committee draft is insufficient and inadequate in some respects. It is now possible to make buildings of any height perfectly safe for all the occupants and without materially increasing the cost or sacrificing space. In fact, it is generally possible to make a building safe for its occupants at less cost than they are now being constructed.

TRINITY'S DWELLINGS ARE REAL HOMES

They Give Character to Greenwich Village—Are Free From the Lodger Evil—In Good Repair and Carefully Looked After.

By MISS E. W. DINWIDDIE.

(Miss Dinwiddie has again made a report to Trinity Corporation on the general conditions in its tenement properties. For years the corporation needlessly submitted to criticism through a mistaken policy of official silence. Miss Dinwiddie, who has been called Trinity's housekeeper, has through her reports revealed the corporation as an excellent landlord.)

TRINITY'S houses have some advantages which most homes, even of the very wealthy, in downtown New York City lack. They have, as a rule, large yards, which not only serve as playgrounds for the children, but are commonly utilized by the tenants for flower gardens and in a few instances for vegetable gardens as well. They are, in over two-thirds of the cases, private dwellings for only one or two families in each, giving an opportunity for quiet family life with room for children to grow up and space for their play, totally different from the surroundings in New York's towering apartment houses and swarming barrack tenements.

As compared with East Side houses equally far downtown, the contrast is marked. They are low buildings, not making dark canyons of the streets on which they stand, and the large open spaces in the rear give abundant light for the back rooms as well as for those facing on the street. There are no rear tenements on the back of the lots. There are few stairs for mothers and babies to climb. The bedroom windows do not open on air-shafts where one crying child keeps twenty families awake. The rooms are on the average much larger than in the dumbbell and other common tenement and apartment types. Large families are not excluded from the houses, but are welcomed as tenants, the only restriction enforced being that they shall not take or keep quarters too small for the number of persons.

Free from Saloons.

The houses through the corporation's control are kept free from saloons, gambling houses and immoral resorts, and also from rag shops and junk shops with their dangers to health and proper sanitary conditions. The rents have remained practically the same for a quarter of a century. Probably as a result of this the dwellings even of the tenants in very limited circumstances are free from the lodger evil in its dangerous form. Moreover, the corporation on its own initiative has instituted systematic inspections of the houses for the purpose of discovering need for repairs, or other defects which call for remedy, or opportunities for improvements of any kind, or for being of service to the tenants in other ways.

The popularity of the dwellings is shown by the length of residence of the tenants, of whom more than half have been living in the same houses for from ten to fifty years or more.

Few who have not seen this section realize that such a neighborhood is to be found on Manhattan Island, below 14th street, within a short distance of the business district and the congested tenement streets. Flower gardens and low buildings are not commonly thought of in connection with this part of the city.

Though the lots belonging to Trinity are not blocked solidly together, but are sandwiched in among others, still they are sufficiently closely grouped for the corporation's houses to affect the character of the whole neighborhood, making this an area of quiet residences, very different from the swarming tenements to the east and the waterfront section to the west.

What Trinity Corporation Owns.

The corporation now owns 366 houses, containing accommodations for 882 families, or between 3,000 and 4,000 persons, a small village in itself with many characteristics of village life.

The average number of families to a house is only 2.4. Of the total number of dwellings, 36.6 per cent. are two-family houses; 32.0 per cent. are occupied by one family each, and only 31.4 per cent. have as many as three families. Most of the buildings are only three stories high, and many cover less than half of the lots on which they stand.

Effort is made by the corporation to prevent overcrowding in the houses and its consequent evils, but apart from this no attempt is made to keep out children or to make families move when the number of children increases. One record-breaking tenant was a woman, twice married, who had twenty-four children. Another family had eight sturdy sons born in a space of eight years.

The lodger evil as it is seen on the East Side is non-existent in the Trinity properties. In examination of all the houses no instances have been found in which lodgers shared the use of sleeping rooms with members of the family. Over 80 per cent. of the tenants have no lodgers, and where lodgers are taken they are in separate rooms, not interfering with the privacy of home life.

Rental Rates.

The rents in the houses vary between wide limits, but they have not been raised to the excessive rates which make one of the heaviest burdens families in New York with small incomes have to bear if they wish decent accommodations. One small dwelling rents for only $12 a month for the entire house. Another building, a two-family house, rents for $1,200 a year. The lowest rents in apartments in three-family houses are $7 per month for three rooms. The highest apartment rents are $26 a month for five rooms. An average rent per room in the Trinity houses is at the rate of only about $1 per week or between $4 and $5 a month per room.

Not only is it true, as previously stated, that over half the tenants have been living in the same houses for from ten to fifty years or more, but in many cases the actual length of tenancy under Trinity is longer than appears, because the families rented from the corporation in other buildings before moving to their present quarters. Because of increase in the size of the family, or on account of the growing up of small children, or because sons and daughters have married and left the home, families sometimes wish to move into a larger or smaller number of rooms. Or they may wish to move into more or less expensive quarters, or to be in a different section for business or other reasons.

But the permanency of residence in the individual house and still greater permanency of residence under Trinity are conspicuous. One tenant still in a Trinity house has been living here for fifty-five years, and her four children were born and grew up in the house. Another tenant, now ninety-five years old, has been living in one Trinity house for forty-six years. As she says, she has been renting from Trinity since she first came over from "the old country" as a "greenhorn." This is a striking contrast to the proverbial New York tenant, moving once a year, and to the actual migratory life of a large part of the population of the city.

It should, however, be borne in mind that with the exception of ten houses built by the corporation as model tenements the dwellings were all erected and owned by holders of ground leases and have only come into the possession of Trinity by purchase on the termination of these leases. They are old, are usually in a run-down condition when acquired, and require a larger amount of renovation and repair than would be the case with newer houses of the same type. The number of children occupying them increases this amount, especially in the houses tenanted by three or more families. The structural conditions were fixed before the houses came into the hands of the corporation, but these have been modified, and in cases of such matters as interior rooms, where found in three-family houses, and of inadequate fire-escapes and so on, they have been altered to conform to law and to the needs of the tenants.

The proximity of the Trinity houses to those held by other owners in certain cases has objectionable features. Some very neat tenants, for instance, have difficulty in keeping their premises in good condition on account of rubbish carelessly thrown out of the windows of adjoining tenement houses. An unsettled condition in one section of the properties, too, is already in existence and more disturbances here are in prospect on account of the projected widening of one of the streets, which the city has in view as part of a general scheme of municipal improvement. This scheme will involve at some date in the future the tearing down of the houses on one side of the street, some of which belong to Trinity, some to other owners. The liking of Trinity's tenants for their houses is shown by the general satisfaction expressed by the families living in other sections that their dwellings are not to be disturbed.

TYPICAL TRINITY BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT.

This fine loft building stands on a site formerly occupied by stores and dwellings, on the west side of Hudson street, between LeRoy and Clarkson, opposite the park.

Newly-Acquired Houses.

Within the year the corporation has taken over eleven additional houses formerly belonging to ground leaseholders. Of these one was a rear building on the back of a lot behind a front house. This rear building was removed at once, as soon as it was within the corporation's power to do so. The house was the last but one of its kind anywhere on Trinity's land. The single remaining rear dwelling is a one-story janitress' house, belonging to an owner holding an old ground lease, which does not expire for a number of years. Another recently purchased small house was torn down and its site was concreted to make a large yard for the use of the two adjoining dwellings. Still a third house taken over in the course of the year was vacated permanently, as it was an old frame building in poor repair and eight houses purchased on termination of leases have been renovated and put in thoroughly satisfactory repair and have had many improvements added.

The number of dwelling houses on Trinity's land belonging to other owners has greatly decreased. Since early in 1910 these have been reduced from between 200 and 300 to 136. But as it will be many years before all the ground leases expire, there are some dwellings on Trinity's ground which will not come under the corporation's control for a long period.

There are other dwellings on land held on short ground leases. In cases where ground tenants ask renewals of leases not compulsory under the terms of the original lease, the corporation makes it a rule not to grant these where the houses are in unsatisfactory condition, or where they do not comply with the law, but has not thought renewals for one year objectionable in the case of sites of dwelling houses ascertained by examination to be in good condition throughout. Some of the tenants who have well-kept houses which they have owned for many years would feel it a great hardship to have these taken from them.

Holiday Business Prospects.

The "Fourth of July," which falls on a Friday, and the succeeding Saturday and Sunday are three holidays, in which to have merry times in the suburbs. Transit lines will unquestionably be crowded during these three days. A general outpour is expected on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 4th, 5th and 6th, if the weather is good. Promoters are running special excursion trains, as requests for free tickets are coming from all quarters. Even other large cities are sending big delegations to look at New York's growing suburbs. This stimulation in the realty business is unquestionably due to the advertising of the Dual Subway System, running into all the outlying sections of the city.

Home sites are wanted as urgently as new homes. According to suburban promoters, a large proportion of this year's lot buyers say they intend to build dwellings for their own use. If all carry out their plans, a great boom in suburban building will take place. It is the intention of several promoters on scores of new settlements to keep open house for the visitors over the triple holiday period, and many unique "Fourth of July" displays are being planned for the streams of visitors. It is expected that this entertainment will continue throughout the three days. It is said that the masses of wage earners are buying more enthusiastically than ever, and that most of them are paying in cash. They have been convinced that real estate is the safest investment, because it alone, above all other securities, has been able to hold its own against the recent hard times.

Brooklyn Terminal Plans Sent Back.

Upon the motion of Borough President McAneny at the Board of Estimate meeting, this week the recommendations of the Terminal Committee of the Board of Estimate, with regard to the improvement of the South Brooklyn waterfront, were referred back to the committee for further consideration and report.

GREATER CHANGES FOR MANHATTANVILLE.

Engineer Rice's Plans to Save Real Estate Values—Would Cover Over the Freight Yard, Raise Grade of Manhattan Street and Build Marginal Way.

THE three-sided negotiations over plans for improving the West Side terminal facilities became so tangled that the Board of Estimate concluded at the public hearing on Tuesday afternoon to send the whole matter back to the Terminal committee for reconsideration. Doubts are expressed that the committee will be able to make the new study and general revision which it intends before the close of the present administration.

The property owners who challenged the legal soundness of claims concerning right of way on the part of the New York Central Railroad Company, those who protested against the monopolization of the river shore at Manhattanville with an enormous freight yard and those who alleged a serious error in the railroad company's map affecting Fort Washington Park, bombarded ex-President John Purroy Mitchel's arrangement with the New York Central with what seemed great effectiveness. Besides, Col. Kline, Mr. Mitchel's successor in the board, was new to the negotiations, while Comptroller Prendergast and President McAneny on whose perspicuity real estate interests have learned to place great reliance, had been unable on account of the subway negotiations to give much aid to Mr. Mitchel as chairman of the Terminal Committee, in his negotiations with the railroad company for a reformation of its lines and terminals.

Moreover, the arguments made against the written opinions from the Corporation Counsel's office on legal points involved, by Charles L. Craig, of the firm of Hoadley, Lauterbach and Johnson, representing the West End Association, and Julius Henry Coehn, representing the Citizens Union, came with such logical power as to make another reason for reconsideration.

The proceedings at the hearing were of such short duration as to suggest the probability that the members of the board had tacitly agreed on this course in advance, and when counsel for the property owners asked for time to study the latest opinion of the Corporation Counsel, which had just been read, it was decided to send the whole matter back to the committee for reconsideration. Further hearings will be held but no date was named, and Mr. McAneny remarked that if those who wished to appear in opposition would give their names to the stenographer they would be specially notified.

Whereat, a long roll of names of civic bodies was called off, including the Riverside Drive Protective Association, the West End Association, the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, Citizens Union, Merchants' Association, Parks and Playgrounds Association, Founders Progressive Club, Manhattan Single Tax Association, the Socialist Party, the Municipal Art Society and the Reform Club.

Engineer Rice's New Plans for Manhattanville.

Apart from the questions concerning franchise and Ft. Washington Park, the most interesting problem the Terminal Committee has been called upon to solve is the modification of the plans for the enormous terminal at Manhattanville. A month ago George S. Rice, who was the chief engineer of the Rapid Transit Commission, was called upon by the property owners on Riverside Drive at 135th to 153d streets to see if some scheme could not be devised to overcome the objectionable features of a freight yard on the west side of the Manhattan waterfront from 135th street to 153d street. In an interview Mr. Rice gave this explanation of the railroad company's scheme:

GEO. S. RICE, C.E.

"I find that the plan as proposed contemplates the construction of a freight yard of over thirty acres, extending from 135th street to 153d street west of Riverside Park, and embracing the greater part of the land to the bulkhead line, as shown on the plans you see here and designated by a yellow color.

"The scheme of the railroad company contemplates the use of this section as a yard with the elevation of about six tracks from 146th street southerly to about 122d street, crossing the Manhattan Valley streets from 129th to 133d streets with a viaduct. The main objectionable features of this scheme is that the greater part of the territory is absolutely cut off from access to the waterfront by the construction of the yard; also the elevating of the tracks is an objectionable feature, as the freight cars and traffic would at all times be in evidence for a good portion of this section. And the yard will be a great detriment to the residential abutting property owners from the necessary annoyance both day and night from the constant movement and bumping of cars, due to the breaking and making up of trains, and to the passing of the same.

Would Elevate Manhattan Street.

"I have carefully studied this question and have hit upon a scheme by which a greater part of the objectionable features can be eliminated. In 1906 I made a careful study of the treatment of the New York Central tracks on the West Side of Manhattan while I was Chief Engineer of the Rapid Transit Railroad Commission, which study was made at the order of the Legislature. At that time the carrying out of the Act was not easily secured, and at a later date a new Act was drawn under which the present scheme has been divulged. At that time it was suggested that an easy solution of abolishing the grade crossings in the Manhattan Valley would be to elevate the railroad in this particular section, but the construction of a freightyard was not then considered.

"I now propose to keep the yard and railroad at their original grades and to elevate Manhattan street by a structure extending for about five or six hundred feet from the eastward of the railroad, and then to construct a way along the marginal road as proposed, with a down grade of 3 per cent.

"The section in the vicinity of 133d street is treated in the same way with a connection along 12th avenue with Manhattan street if desired. There would be a connection with the street extending from the Riverside Drive section south of 129th street with a crossing at about 129th street, rendering the lands of the Park department to the south available by means of a ramp and also connecting directly with the upper level of the recreation pier at 129th street."

Mr. Rice illustrated his points by means of colored drawings.

Ferry Accessible From Two Levels.

He further said that this scheme enables the upper level of the ferryhouse to be directly connected with the elevated portion of Manhattan street, giving a parking space for automobiles and also rendering the ferry and recreation pier accessible for both levels. This treatment of the abolition of the grade crossings in the Manhattan Valley is shown on the plan in red.

The railroad in this particular section is to be laid out for six tracks at the present grade and allows of communication along a large portion of both sides of the railroad with the abutting properties. A very little damage to real estate interests is involved in this treatment and practically no business interests are eliminated or wiped out of existence as far as the use of the railroad is concerned.

Covering the Railroad Tracks.

It is proposed that the railroad shall be covered to the south of 129th street through the Park and also that the yard north of 135th street shall be wholly covered. Mr. Rice says this yard can be covered by a masonry and steel structure and the deck parked and used by the public in connection with Riverside Park from one end of the yard to the other. The surface can be laid out in an agreeable and presentable scheme with openings for the railroad yard underneath so that good ventilation can be secured and the front of the railroad yard can be left open as suggested in the scheme contemplated south of 122d street to 72d street.

A Marginal Way.

It is proposed for the preservation of the waterfront directly to the west of the yard and extending from 129th street north, that a marginal way 150 feet in width shall be laid out so that the Hudson River can in the future be available both for vehicular travel and for pedestrians. It is proposed that on top of the yard that ways of communication can be laid out so that the public living on and using the Riverside Drive can have access by means of stairways along the west side of the covered yard with the waterfront.

FIFTH AVENUE'S PERIL.

Depreciation in Real Estate Values—Reasons for Decline.

"If we do not take strong measures now, Fifth avenue, the street of which all America is proud, will have become in a few decades merely a name. Already the cancer has eaten in deeply. It was only a few years ago that a well known piece of property on the avenue near 30th street sold for $380,000, for a 25x100 foot lot. Today the same property goes begging at $240,000. Why this drop of nearly forty per cent.? And there is nothing to prevent the same thing happening further up the avenue, unless buildings are restricted in height or size and in character or amount of occupancy."

All of this and a great deal more came out at the conference just held between the Heights of Buildings Commission and A. W. Bruner, representing the Fifth Avenue Commission; Robert Grier Cooke, president., and Messrs. Frank D. Veiller, Simon Brentano, Bruce M. Falconer, R. P. Bolton, S. H. Tyng, J. M. Gerard, and Louis H. Hosmer, representing the Fifth Avenue Association; Edward I. Devine, Comptroller of the New York Life Insurance Co.; Gerald R. Brown, Comptroller of the Equitable Life Insurance Co., and Edward R. Hardy of the New York Fire Insurance Exchange.

A man well known for his real estate operations on Fifth avenue gave reasons for this decline. He said land between that avenue and Sixth avenue or Broadway, on one side, and Madison or Fourth on the other, has no shopping value that compares with Fifth avenue. Where land on the avenue is worth from $10,000 to $20,000 or more per front foot for an inside lot, land just back from the avenue on the side streets is selling for from $3,000 to $5,000 per front foot. Influenced by the settled factory development on lower Fifth avenue and on Fourth avenue these side streets are far more desirable for salesrooms, sample rooms and warehouses than for any other purposes. Now manufacturers, especially of "seasonal" goods, are convinced that the salesroom and the factory must be together under one management and under one roof. And so they are crowding their often large plants into these loft buildings near the avenue above 23d street.

"Various tall office buildings have been erected along the avenue between 23d and 34th streets," this expert said. "It has been becoming difficult in some cases to fill them, partly due to the constantly increasing crowd of factory operatives from the side streets filling the avenue during the noon hour and decidedly hurting its use as a high-class shopping and office street. Probably the office building managers could have made their buildings pay in the end as office buildings, but the temptation to fill up the building at any cost was too great, so they tore down partitions and changed many an unlet office floor into a loft floor, although these let at only half as much per square foot as the offices did. This again has helped to drive out the best retail trade and so values have dropped to nearer the factory loft level.

"If a man in Chicago or St. Louis has $100,000 to spend does he spend it in the Chicago shops? No, he comes to New York. The great number of the highest class retail shops must be here, and they must be near together so that the shoppers can go readily from one to another. They must be, too, on a quiet broad street, where people can circulate easily on foot or in motors unobstructed by trolley cars or trucks.

"It is obvious that except for a short stretch on 57th street absolutely the only place left in Manhattan for this high-class shopping is on Fifth avenue below 59th street. For the best interest not only of New York but of the whole country this stretch of Fifth avenue must be reserved for high-class shopping."

Agreed on Proper Limit.

Those with the most experience seemed pretty well agreed that for this purpose a six-story or at most a seven or eight-story building is by far the most profitable investment and so they are convinced that along the avenue a cornice line about 100 feet above the curb with perhaps two more stories in the roof, bringing the total height up to 125 feet, would not only be to the great advantage of all but would work no hardship on the individual owner of property. They would, however, exempt from this height limit hotels and high class office buildings, for a certain number of both are for the good of the avenue yet they often have to be higher than eight stories to pay, especially on land worth $20,000 or more per front foot.

They would keep lofts and factories off the avenue and for several hundred feet back from the avenue on side streets so as to keep the factory hordes away from the avenue at all hours. If the courts would not allow a direct discrimination against factories within the Fifth avenue zone, then they would urge the passage of a law from the standpoint of safety and health which would raise the minimum permissible space per person especially for the upper floors of buildings and so increase the size and number of exits that it would not pay to use these buildings for manufacturing.

STARTLING FACTS.

Disclosed at a Meeting of the City Economy League—To Open Campaign.

The present debt of the city is in the neighborhood of $1,225,000,000, an increase since December 31, 1898, of over $900,000,000.

The budget has increased from $77,000,000 in 1898, to $192,000,000 in 1913. In addition to this tremendous increase in the budget the habit of issuing corporate stock has grown enormously and from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 of corporate stock is now issued annually.

The assessment on real property has been raised from $2,063,135,687, in 1897, to $7,861,898,890 in 1912. Notwithstanding this tremendous increase in assessment, both the debt limit and the taxrate are near the constitutional limit.

There was uncollected taxes due on January 1, 1913, amounting to $21,818,996. There was due for unpaid assessments at the same time $25,847,420. There was due for uncollected water rates $543,999. This makes a total of $48,210,415, and this great amount was due notwithstanding the fact that there had been tax sales in each of the boroughs except Manhattan and that a Manhattan tax sale was then being advertised.

The foregoing startling facts were made known by the publicity committee of the City Economy League, in a report submitted at the last meeting of the executive committee by Chairman Edward P. Doyle and Secretary Henry Bloch.

Another startling fact disclosed at the meeting was that at the tax sales the liens are almost invariably bid in by tax lien companies and not by the property owners, and that there are nearly 6,000 tax liens offered for sale in the Borough of Manhattan.

In view of the situation the committee recommended, and the recommendation was adopted, that the property owners and rentpayers of the city of New York be organized by election districts, each election district to have a leader; the leaders to form an assembly district committee and the assembly district committee to send one or more delegates to a central committee.

This central committee is to force the several political parties to nominate proper candidates for the municipal offices to be filled at the coming election.. In the Borough of Manhattan the trades and professions are to be organized also, but the basis of organization is to be the election district.

The executive committee feels that it is time a halt is called in the expenditure of city money for things not absolutely necessary. The organization is now going on and will be perfected within a month, when it is hoped to have at least 60,000 enrolled voters.

The opening gun of the campaign will be the massmeeting to be held at New York Turn Hall, Lexington avenue and 85th street, June 30, at 8 p. m.. William H. Chesebrough will preside and many prominent speakers will be present.

REAL ESTATE BOARD.

The Old Board of Brokers Adopts a New Constitution and Changes Its Name.

At a special meeting of the Real Estate Board of Brokers of the City of New York, held on Thursday afternoon, at the board rooms, 115 Broadway, important changes were made in the organization. The following statement was issued at the close of the meeting:

"The membership in the future will be divided into three classes: Active, non-resident and associate. The active membership which is to be limited to 200 will be composed of real estate brokers whose main office is in the City of New York. Non-resident membership will be composed of brokers whose main office is outside of the Borough of Manhattan. The associate membership is open to any owner of real estate or other persons who are interested in the welfare and advancement of real estate interests.

The name of the association was changed to the Real Estate Board of New York. The Board now has an active membership of 155.

President E. A. Tredwell, made the comment to a Record and Guide representative:

"The changes are along lines now in force in Chicago. Our new name is a shorter and broader term than the old, and we have limited the active membership, consisting of professional real estate men, to 200. After that number is reached those professional real estate men who desire to become active members will be placed on a waiting list.

"It was felt by the Board that its assets and influence had so grown in the past few years that a broader plan of operation was required.

"A healthy difference of opinion was developed during the meeting, but as the committee having the special matter in charge, consisting of Lawrence M. D. McGuire, chairman, Charles E. Duross, Edward L. King, Pierre M. Clear and W. J. Van Pelt, had given considerable thought and care to the revision of the constitution, they were ready and able to explain the details promptly to the satisfaction of all present.

"The final outcome of the deliberation was the unanimous adoption of the new constitution, including the new name of the organization."

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Company.

ECONOMIC BUILDING HEIGHT.

A Method Checking or Determining It In the Case of Skyscraper Office Buildings.*

By C. T. COLEY, M. E., 14 Wall Street.

WHEN our Secretary, Mr. Patterson, asked me to come to Cincinnati and lead in the discussion on some subject, I at once thought of the many friends that I have made among you, and realized that we were all handling hard problems, and that should I show you how I have solved one or two of mine, the work for you would be easy, when you are called upon to solve a similar problem.

I chose the subject, "The Method of Checking the Economic Height of an Office Building," both because it is a problem that is encountered almost daily, and also because it is one for which I have not seen a satisfactory solution, and consequently the development of a solution would be a little new and interesting to you.

First, the Land Value.

We will consider the erection of one of the most modern and expensive office building skyscrapers, the construction of which must be of the very highest grade. The plot of ground should be in the very best location for a building of this kind. Let us assume a land value of $300 per square foot of lot area. The value of a plot of ground is determined by the best possible use to which it can be put, or the best improvement that can be made thereon, to bring in the largest net financial return per annum, upon the money invested in the lot.

The value of a plot of ground is therefore dependent upon its net annual earning capacity, which earnings are usually funded at 5 per cent., making the value of the land about twenty times the net return per annum earned by the land.

The annual interest charged on $300 valuation per square foot would be $15 with money worth 5 per cent. The New York City taxes are about $1.83 per $100 valuation, which on each square foot of land under consideration would be about $5.50 per year. This added to the interest cost of $15 makes a total cost of $20.50 per year for owning one square foot of land in the best financial business district on which to stand a building.

Only 65 Per Cent. of Rentable Area.

If the entire area is not covered by the building, but say only 95 per cent. of the total, the balance being used for light courts, we must divide the total cost per square foot per annum ($20.50) by 95c., giving $21.58 the amount that must be earned per annum on each square foot of land on which the building actually stands. Since only 65 per cent. of the area is rentable area, to produce one square foot of rentable area, we will require one divided by .65, or 1.54 square feet of floor area, and consequently the land carrying charge would be increased from $21.58 to $33.23 per square foot of land over which to secure one square foot of rentable floor area per floor.

The question arises at once, what can be done to meet this great expense? One answer is, after looking around to see that it is suitable for the neighborhood—build a skyscraper office building. What will one cost? How high will it have to be, so that the net profit on the building, will equal the expense on the land? What will the operating and other expenses be per annum? We will look into the problem.

An Office Building the Solution.

Experience shows that office buildings of the very best type of granite, marble, bronze and steel construction cost from

C. T. COLEY.
Will be the Operating Manager of the New Equitable Building.

80c. to $1.00 per cubic foot of building volume to build. When the average distance between finished floors is 12 feet, it requires 12 cubic feet of building volume to produce one square foot of floor surface, of which past experience shows that in a well designed building, about 65 per cent. of the total floor area is rentable area. Therefore, to obtain one square foot of rentable area of floor under consideration, it will be necessary to build 12 divided by .65, or about 18½ cubic feet of building volume.

Let us assume that we are to erect a building about twenty-five stories high of the type costing 80c. per cubic foot. It would therefore be necessary to make an expenditure of 80c. multiplied by 18½, or $14.80 for 18½ cubic feet of building volume, in order to secure one square foot of rentable area.

Cost of Maintenance.

The cost of maintaining one square foot of rentable area per annum in a high class building of this kind is shown in the accompanying table.

Assume an allowance of 10 per cent. of gross rents for vacancies and loss of rent on an average rent rate of $3.50 per square foot—35c. This makes the total $1.50. Interest on 5 per cent. on an investment of $14.80 necessary to produce the required building volume to secure one square foot of rentable area, 74c. Allow for depreciation and amortization in 50 years about 30c. (Money worth 4 per cent. compounded semi-annually.) Total cost per annum, $2.54 per square foot of rentable area.

Engine room labor, supplies and repairs	.18
Coal and ash removal	.15
Elevator labor, supplies and repairs	.09
Janitor's labor and supplies	.15
Electrician's labor and supplies	.02
Supervision and collections	.09
Building repairs	.15
Insurance	.01-1
Water	.02-1
Sundries	.01
Sub Total	.88
Taxes on structure alone	.27
Total	1.15

Subtracting this cost of $2.54 from the gross rent rate of $3.50 per square foot of rentable area leaves a net profit per square foot of rentable area of 96c. per floor.

The Final Calculation.

In order to equalize or wipe out the annual expense of $33.23 for the lot area on which to build one square foot of rentable area, we would need to get the profit of 96c. per square foot rentable area per floor by repeating the operation or building floors upon floors as many times as 96c. is contained into $33.23, or 34.6 times, making the building 35 stories high.

Hence it will be seen that properly to develop or improve a plot of land with the value assumed which will pay 5 per cent. on the investment in the land and building, and at the same time set aside a proper fund for depreciation and amortization, a 35-story building will be necessary. This would be the proper height for the building, provided that the plot area was sufficient to allow for the proper shafts up through the building to contain pipes, smokestack, stairs and elevator shafts and still give a rentable area of the assumed 65 per cent. of the gross area.

WIRE ROPE SUGGESTIONS.

Many Elements Combine to Produce Satisfactory and Economical Service.

Wire rope expense can be greatly reduced by the use of a suitable rope for every work and by its correct handling during installation and proper care during operation. Working conditions also require careful consideration and oftentimes changes can be made that will effect a material saving.

The most satisfactory results are always obtained with large size sheaves and drums; the greater the diameter of the sheaves and drums, the longer the rope will last.

Experience has demonstrated that wear increases with speed; therefore, true economy results from increasing the load and diminishing the speed. For a working load, one-fifth of the ultimate strength of the rope is usually considered safe, although this is not recommended for all cases, as very frequently a greater safety factor is required.

Wire rope must not be coiled or uncoiled like a hemp rope. When not on a reel, roll on the ground like a wheel or hoop to prevent kinking or untwisting.

To insure against accidents the ordinary precautions should be taken to frequently examine wire rope and install a new one before the old is worn to the danger point.

However used, a wire rope should be made of the best obtainable material of the most suitable grade, for rope made from cheap materials is far more expensive in the end, as the time lost by the frequent changing of rope will greatly overcome the first cost saving.

The use of high-grade wire rope also provides the necessary strength in the smallest possible diameter, thereby reducing the dead weight of the rope itself.

The hemp center in a wire rope is also an important factor. If the quality is poor, it will soon go to pieces and allow the rope to lose its correct shape. After such an occurrence, deterioration of the rope is rapid.

Proper lubrication, both during manufacture and use, is necessary, as it lessens internal and external friction, prevents corrosion and renders the various wires impervious to the effect of steam, acids and other damaging influences often present.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Varnish That Never Dried.

I had a little antique varnish job done recently and the varnish never dried. What can I do with it?

Answer: Get a good varnish remover, take it off entirely, fill the surface again and revarnish with a good, standard make of varnish. Be sure and wait until the wood is thoroughly dry and never varnish on a day when the temperature is below 70 degrees or when the humidity is excessive.

Testing Laboratories.

Is there any place in the city that is available to the general public where building materials are tested for fire.

Answer: The Bureau of Buildings cooperates with the Engineering Department of Columbia University which maintains a laboratory where tests may be arranged for.

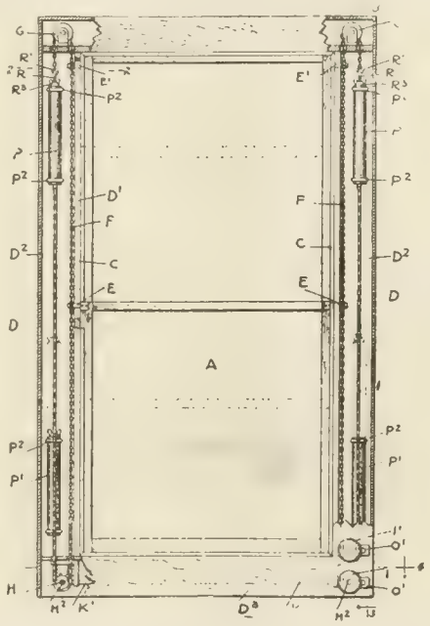
Architect's Lien.

Can an architect file a lien upon a building for his pay if the owner refuses to pay on the ground that the charges are exorbitant?

Answer: An architect has a lien on a building for his pay, provided he superintends erection of the structure. He must file the same claim of lien as is required of laborers, mechanics and material men. The question of the size of his bill should be settled before he is formally engaged.

Where to Place Meters.

What is the best place to put electric meters in multi-tenanted buildings?



Answer: If it is the plan that tenants shall pay by meter for their illumination, meters should be located in the basement, as then the humming will not inconvenience anyone. For smaller apartments equipped with not more than one circuit, the branch cut-out should also be in the basement.

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.

An Operating Device for Window Sash.

Patrick F. Fitz Gerard, builder, of 823 Third avenue, has been granted a patent, No. 1,055,156, serial No. 701,557, for an operating device for window sashes. It comprises a pair of sidewise-extending brackets on the upper ends of the stiles of the sash, the brackets projecting into the weight pockets of the window frame through vertical slots formed in the sides of the window casing; a pair of endless chains for the sash and each connected at one run with the corresponding sash bracket; a counterbalancing weight interposed in the other run of each of the said chains, this weight having at one end a swivel connection with the chain; guide pulleys in the upper portion of the window casing, over which pass the upper ends of the chains; sprocket wheels around which pass the lower ends of the chains; transverse shafts journaled in the lower portions of the sides of the window casing and carrying the sprocket wheels, longitudinally-extending shaft journaled in the sill of the window casing; pairs of beveled mashing gear wheels connecting the ends of the said longitudinal shaft with the said transverse shafts, one of the latter extending into the room, and a handle on the outer end of the shaft.

2. In a window-sash balance, an endless chain connected at one run with the sash, and a counter-balancing weight interposed in the other run of the chain, the said counter-balancing weight having at one end a swivel connection with the chain and having at the other end an adjustable screw and nut connection with the chain to permit of taking up.

An Improved Packing System.

If your engineer has constant trouble with his packing and blames his inability to bring his engine up to proper efficiency upon this factor, there may be a solution awaiting upon this problem by investigating a new type of packing that is now on the market. It is a woven fabric, but is conspicuous among others because of its soft metal inserts in the weave that prevent scoring, especially on rods. Building managers having trouble with leaky elevator plungers and pumps may find permanent relief by writing James Walker & Co., Ltd., of 27 Thames street, this city.

A Novel Indirect Lighting Fixture.

Here is an indirect lighting fixture which has some principles that are quite distinctive. It is called the Brascolite Unit and is semi-direct; or, in other words, all direct rays are diffused and indirect rays are reflected downward and outward. A glance at the cut will show how this is accomplished. It is provided with a canopy or reflector, which is made of dense white opal glass, and the suspended bowl below is made of Alba glass. This is a new illuminating unit which has attracted the favorable attention of illuminating engineers. It was recently put upon the market by the St. Louis Brass Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis, Mo.

Suburban Water Feed.

One of the advantages of living in the suburbs is the absolute independence one may have from domination by the rules and regulations of a water supply company. Many owners of estates have excellent water supply at hand, but very frequently the problem of cheaply conveying that water to the point of consumption is a problem which is not always satisfactorily solved. Usually the well system is the one employed, but this has been proved in many cases to be only a half solution. It is now possible to go into the market and buy a pumping unit line which is not only satisfactory but is absolutely dependable in any kind of weather. The accompanying illustration shows the new device being introduced by the Leader Iron Works, of 103 Park avenue.

This apparatus is distinguished by a differential plunger for equalizing the load which relieves the strain on the pump rod and connection, thus largely reducing the liability of fracture or wrenching when service is heavy. The discharge can be arranged either above or below the base, and water is discharged on both the up and the down stroke. When the discharge is below the base. the pump is anti-freezing. An air compressor is attached to the plunger near the top of the pump. The device, herewith shown, is a great improvement over the systems heretofore on the market and where used has given splendid results. The ease with which it is operated also commends it highly to estates where the foreman is a general handy man. It is very simple in operation.

Don't fail to attend the mass meeting in the New York Turn Hall next Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. The meeting has been arranged by the City Economy League under the auspices of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations.

The extra session of the Legislature did quick work with Governor Sulzer's direct primaries bill, and adjourned promptly—not promptly enough, however, to prevent the introduction of a bill levying a direct State tax of one mill.

—Whether the City Economy League wins its cause completely or no, it has achieved a remarkable thing in rallying to its banner so large a proportion of the really able men of the city. By the way, what are the league's colors and when can we expect to see its badges?

The board of governors of the Stock Exchange has voted to grant the petition of the members for a suspension of business Saturday, July 5, making a three-day holiday Some architects, according to information and belief, are taking a three months holiday; and quite a number of real estate brokers would like to join them in Paris, if mortgage money wasn't so tight.

The Real Estate Board of Brokers did effective work in the field which it originally chose to occupy. Under its new name—the abbreviation to The Real Estate Board is significant—it may, therefore, be expected to accomplish larger results in the broad sphere of activity which it now proposes to enter. A professional body like the Board is a permanent institution, held together by permanent causes; and ought to be in a position to represent real estate for all purposes, including some that are now aimed at by temporary associations.

The Future of Seventh Avenue.

The consummation of the Seventh Avenue Improvement has now entered upon its final phase. Commissioners will soon be taking testimony as to the value of the property which has to be condemned and title will doubtless be vested in the city at the earliest possible moment, so as not to delay the construction of the Seventh avenue subway. That district of the city known as Greenwich Village, is expecting to reap considerable benefit from the opening up of Seventh avenue, and it is very much to be hoped that property owners thereabouts will not be disappointed.

Undoubtedly the business development of the section has been very much retarded as a consequence of its absurd street system, which seems to have been designed to prevent its convenient connection with the adjacent parts of Manhattan. Undoubtedly, also, the expected results would follow, in case the city possessed the power of excess condemnation. In that case a frontage on the new avenue sufficiently large for building purposes could be condemned and this frontage could be sold off to builders in large plots, which would be improved with up-to-date modern buildings, and which would bring new business and new life into the district. As it is the new avenue will be improved very slowly because of this difficulty and expense of collecting plots available for modern building out of the fragments of lots left by the improvement. Largely for this reason the widening and the cutting through of Elm street to the east of Broadway was never attended with the expected results.

The new Elm street has never become as important, either for traffic or for business purposes, as was confidently anticipated, and its failure to come up to anticipations has taken place in spite of the fact that it contained a subway which benefited property all along the rest of its line. Considering the amount of vehicular traffic using Elm street, it seems absurd that a surface railroad franchise for the street was refused, because it was expected that the cars would interfere with the trucks. No similar mistake should be made with reference to Seventh avenue. The future business of the thoroughfare demands the extension of the surface tracks at least as far south as Canal street. Such a new West Side railroad would be of the greatest benefit, not only to that particular locality, but to the whole of the lower West Side.

A Defect in Our Borrowing System.

A prominent official connected with the mortgage department of one of the title companies recently suggested a change in the prevailing system of borrowing money on real estate that is deserving of serious attention. He considers that the failure to provide for a systematic reduction of the principal of the mortgage constitutes a fundamental defect of existing methods. The lack of some regular plan of amortization frequently makes it extremely difficult for the borrower to renew his loan or obtain a new one, while it obviously injures the security which is obtained by the lender. The need of some amortization clause applies particularly to the case of modern apartment houses and loft buildings that are erected for sale by speculative buildings. Such structures are usually mortgaged to the limit.

In many cases their value depreciates very rapidly either because of indifferent construction or because of the substitution of more desirable types of building. Yet this element of depreciation is largely ignored in mortgage lending, the idea apparently being that the increase in the value of the land will take care of the decrease in the value of the building.

But now that the conditions of business development are becoming more stable in Manhattan, there is less chance for a future increase in land values, and the lenders of money, will frequently find the margin upon which the security for their loan depends, wiped out. These speculative buildings, which are mortgaged to the hilt, should be required during their early period of probable prosperity to earn enough money to pay for their own future depreciation. With an amortization clause in the mortgage, borrowers might be able to obtain loans running for periods from ten to twenty years, and thus avoiding the loss, which results from the frequent calling of their loans and the increased aggregate expense of refunding them. "There can be no doubt," says Mr. Randall Salisbury, "that in the past real estate owners have been to a certain extent responsible for their own troubles in this direction, owing to the apparent tendency of some of them to regard a real estate investment as of somewhat the nature of stocks carried on a margin." There can also be little doubt that in the course of time the terms, upon which money will be borrowed on New York improved real estate, will approximate to those which prevail and rightly prevail in other highly developed business communities.

What Does Space in the Municipal Building Cost?

The Record and Guide of last week contained a number of interviews with real estate brokers and architects respecting the future location of the offices of the Bureau of Buildings. The present plan is to move the offices of that bureau into the new Municipal Building, as soon as it is ready for occupancy; but the Superintendent of Buildings, Mr. R. P. Miller, objects to this removal. The Bureau of Buildings, over which Mr. Miller presides, is concerned with building in the Borough of Manhattan only. It should be situated in that part of the borough which is most convenient both to the employes of the bureau and to the citizens who need to go frequently to its offices.

In Mr. Miller's opinion these considerations demand a location somewhere between 32d and 39th streets. He has found, after careful inquiry, that the geographical centre of the offices of those who were applicants for building permits during the last six months of 1912 was somewhere near 39th street. Considerable difference of opinion was developed among the brokers and architects whose opinion was sought in relation to this question; but these differences of opinion were explicable. In every case those architects and brokers, whose own offices were situated uptown preferred an uptown situation for the Bureau of Buildings. In every case those architects and brokers whose offices were situated downtown preferred a downtown location. It is evident, consequently, that the opinions expressed by these gentlemen were determined largely by their own individual interests. As to the arguments on which these opinions are based, the one in favor of a location downtown which has most force hinges upon the desirability of having all departments in one building. It is frequently necessary for a broker or an architect to consult with several of them in relation to one matter, and the new Municipal Building has been erected chiefly for the purpose of concentrating the offices and enabling a citizen to go from one department to another with very little loss of time. On the other hand, it is unquestionably and emphatically true that the particular clientele of the Bureau of Buildings and the most important part of its own fieldwork is situated uptown.

For this reason the Building Bureau has for a very long time occupied offices in the central part of Manhattan, and the arguments which were formerly urged in favor of such a location have become of late years more rather than less pursuasive. It is undoubtedly the case that a concentration of the offices of architects, builders and building material dealers has been taking place in the district between 34th and 42d streets. It is undoubtedly the case, also, that a large and constantly increasing proportion of the money used in Manhattan buildings is being spent in the central district. Finally, there is another aspect of the matter upon which it would be interesting to have light. What would be the comparative expense to the city of offices for the Bureau of Buildings in the Municipal Building or in a loft building uptown? How much does space in the Municipal Building cost the city per square foot? Could the space which the Bureau of Buildings did not use in the Municipal Building be advantageously employed by some other department? Answers to all these questions are necessary to an adequately determination of the proper location of the office of the Building Bureau.

The Week in Real Estate.

The private sales reported during the week were few in number and of the miscellaneous order, reflecting a total absence of positive market movements or of tendencies toward expansion. Several modern buildings, including a loft building in 24th street, figured in trades; an investment corporation bought a Riverside Drive apartment house; a couple of dwellings in good residential blocks in the middle fifties were purchased by dressmakers; one or two sites were acquired by apartment house builders, and a building in middle Broadway which has remained tenantless about a year found a new owner. This enumeration will serve to illustrate the general character of the week's private sales in Manhattan.

The chief immediate cause of the present dullness is the scarcity of capital. Ordinary mortgage loans are difficult to obtain, except at stiff rates, and in the case of building loans bonuses are quite generally demanded. The monetary prospect is apparently clearing up, but the improvement. though substantial, is not of a kind to encourage the belief that there will be any notable change in real estate trading or in building for some little time.

Mortgage lenders will probably continue to be extremely conservative until the existing surplus of new housing is taken up. At present they are generally demanding higher rates on, or a reduction in the principal of, expiring mortgages. The falling off in building construction, which has been so marked in the last few weeks, should enable the demand to overtake the supply of housing, and the scarcity of money is, therefore, not an unmixed evil.

Because of the many vacancies in apartment houses, old and new, it is believed that the number of changes in tenants will be very considerable this summer. The changes under the present leasing custom will be made for the most part within a few days of October 1, resulting in a congestion of work for a number of professional people. It is interesting to note that a committee, appointed by the New York Furniture Warehousemen's Association, is trying to bring about a change to obviate this congestion. A letter sent out by the committee to agents reads in part:

"The New York Furniture Warehousemen's Association has had under discussion the matter of the change of date in the expiration of leases, particularly of apartments, and at a recent meeting of the association a committee was appointed to take up this matter with real estate agents.

"It is not necessary to remind you of the tremendous congestion in moving on October 1, when all leases under the present custom expire, but it is not only the moving man who is affected disadvantageously by this congestion but all lines of business engaged in the fitting up of homes. The moving business is only one of a number of industries thus affected. Painters, decorators, house furnishers and others find it impossible to get sufficient satisfactory help to carry them through this busy season. You real estate brokers also feel the pressure.

"We believe it has always been the custom in Philadelphia to have leases terminate at any period of the year. In Chicago, where conditions are more like those in New York City, and where leases formerly expired on May 1, a change was made about two years ago, and we are informed greatly to the advantage of all concerned.

"If it would not seem practical to have leases terminate the year round in New York City, might it not be well to extend the time to cover a period of, say, three months, from September first to December first?"

The chairman of the committee is Chas. R. Saul, of the Columbia Storage Warehouse, 149 Columbus avenue.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Now that the Corporation Counsel has virtually thrown up the sponge and in effect admitted that he can not answer the question as to the title of the New York Central Railroad Company to its roadbed along the Hudson River in any way that would support the report of the subcommittee of the Board of Estimate and Aportionment—is it not time that a similar question be asked as to the title of the Brooklyn shore, along which the same subcommittee recommends that the City of New York pay eleven million dollars to acquire rights from private corporations? I believe that also in this Brooklyn case it will be found that the City of New York owns as substantial rights in the lands occupied by the companies from which it proposes to buy the water front freight railroad as it is now virtually confessed that the city owns in the roadbed of the New York Central along the Hudson River waterfront.

Certainly our experience in the latter case justifies the question being put to the Corporation Counsel, what right has the City of New York in the Brooklyn waterfront occupied by the freight railroad which the city is about to buy?

Moral: Advertise Your Auction Sales.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The outcome of the Morris Park track sale, proves that whether prices may be considered high, low or normal, the fact still remains that there are buyers for 3,000 lots at a time when money is positively hard to find for real estate investment. Therefore, the deduction is fair that the perfectly arranged advertising, logical and far-reaching, had the effect of producing the audience, without which neither the skill of the auctioneer nor agent could have produced results. The success can be largely spelled in one word "Publicity."

Now why not apply this same means to bring about results (in a manner and amount proportionate to the particular circumstances) when property is offered under forced conditions at foreclosure? A little timely adv. (not a mere perfunctory notice of sale) in display type, in the regular columns, used for auction advertisements, might prove helpful in offering to the public at large bargains now proverbially secured by plaintiffs (who do not care to acquire the premises in that manner) simply because no one else is notified to come and compete at the sale. Tax Liens.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

In the matter of tax liens in favor of the United States, to which I referred in a recent letter, I find from the Corporation Trust Company Journal that section 3186 of the revised statutes has been amended so that such tax liens are invalid against mortgagees, purchasers or judgment creditors, until notice of such lien is filed by the Collector of Internal Revenue with the clerk of the property is situated; and, further, the court for the district within which that where there is provision for the filing of such notices in the office of a recorder of deeds in any State, the lien of the United States tax is likewise invalid until a notice is so filed.

With this change in the law, there will be no difficulty in finding any liens that may attach to real property by reason of the failure of the owner to pay a federal income tax. A. C. PLEYDELL.

Extending High Bridge Park.

The Morris Heights Property Owners' Association and the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society are favoring a plan for an extension of Highbridge Park to include the territory bounded by Amsterdam, Fort George avenue, St. Nicholas avenue, Dyckman street, the present westerly boundary of Highbridge Park and Laurel Hill terrace, Borough of Manhattan.

The Board of Estimate's engineer reports that the plan relates to an area of about 27.5 acres, of which 0.2 acres have been acquired for sewer purposes, while about 0.3 acres are included in a proceeding now in progress for acquiring land for the construction of a flight of steps. The latter improvement has been given preliminary authorization at an estimated expense of about $25,000. The property is situated on a precipitous slope and is similar to that within the limits of Highbridge Park as heretofore laid out and acquired.

A large portion of the frontage on Amsterdam avenue is occupied by amusement resorts. The petitioners for the improvement allege that the inclusion of this area within the park system and the removal of the amusement resorts will substantially enhance property values in this vicinity, and that the land can now be bought at a low figure.

It is recommended by the engineer that the plan be approved provided that the property owners in the immediate vicinity are prepared to assume 30 per cent. of the cost of the proceeding, with the understanding that 65 per cent. of the expense will be placed upon the Borough of Manhattan, and the remaining 5 per cent. on the Borough of The Bronx, and that an opening proceeding will be instituted as soon as the map is adopted. It is also suggested that in this case the Borough President be asked to defer the carrying out of the work heretofore authorized relative to the construction of steps, inasmuch as this would become a corporate stock charge rather than one to be paid from the Street Improvement Fund.

In case the map is disapproved, it is recommended by the engineer that the attention of the Borough President be called to the desirability of laying out a street along the present westerly boundary line of Highbridge Park in the section north of Laurel Hill terrace. At this week's meeting of the Board of Estimate consideration of the matter was laid over.

"I realize from the reports and the statements of the New York Central authorities that there will be an objection to the covering of a freight yard," said Mr. Rice. "This problem I have studied very carefully and realize that the only real objection will be the question of cost. Of course it is more expensive to have a covered freight yard than an open one, but when one considers that the space above the yard can be made of some use and that the yard instead of being an eyesore can be entirely hidden, I think that the benefits to be derived are desirable, particularly as the front of the Hudson River along Manhattan should not be placed in the same category of 'squallor' as exists along the Manhattan and Brooklyn shores of the East River south of the Harlem River. The New York Central Railroad has to-day a large amount of space for waterfront traffic at the 60th to 72d street yard and no doubt another yard can be secured in some desirable locality to the north of this residential district desired. It has been my fortune to live in this particular section for the last thirteen years, first at 157th street, then at 137th street, and now at 113th street, and I have paid particular attention to this question on account of my study for the Rapid Transit Board of 1906.

"Independent of the aesthetic question of the location of a yard in this vicinity, I know that the disagreeable noise occasioned by the making up of trains and the shunting of cars both day and night is a decidedly objectionable one. These features will be entirely eliminated by the covered yard.

"Notwithstanding what has been said about the undesirability of a yard which will be covered, I am confident a freight yard although covered can be operated with ease and safety. One has only to raise the top of the yard to such a height as to enable men on top of freight cars to be safe in handling the cars. In our subway from 137th street to 145th street such a yard exists for eight tracks."

Mr. Rice's scheme does not attempt to limit the area of the proposed freight yard. He leaves to the Board of Estimate the duty of fixing the bounds, but provides for covering the entire yard whatever its extent, and strongly urges the laying out of a marginal road outside of the yards for the eventual use of the public.

—It is hoped that the new commission appointed to select a site for a State prison to take the place of Sing Sing will not make the mistake of desecrating sacred ground, as the first commission did when it chose the Fort Montgomery battlefield in the Hudson River highlands. To have reared a felons' pen where a national monument should have been dedicated long ago to commemorate one of the most glorious combats in American history would have been a shame to the nation. The second commission found a less incongruous place to immure convicts on the Harlem railroad out of sight from the river that has the strongest possible claim on patriotic Americans to be defended from desecration. It will be recalled that the Record and Guide was the first to inform the public that the site chosen and first designated by an obscure name was in reality the famous battleground of the Revolution; and the outcome was that Mr. Harriman and Mr. Morgan, with the associates that they called together, bought up the whole tract between Stony Point and West Point and gave it to the people for an interstate park. The new commissioners are Simon Rosendale, of Albany; Edward M. Crocker, of Byron; A. V. Wadhams, of Wadhams; Leon C. Weinstock, of New York, and Charles Oberlander, of Buffalo.

—The sidewalk widths on Unionport road, between Walker avenue and White Plains road, were fixed this week by the Board of Estimate at a uniform width of fifteen feet.

—Mayor Gaynor has his own ideas on how to rectify the "break" on Park avenue and has vetoed the plan approved by the city engineers.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

WHY THE FIRST HALF OF THE YEAR JUST CLOSED HAS BEEN A GLOOMY ONE AND WHEREIN IT EXCEEDS IN VIRTUE 1912

A Comparison of Price Conditions That Offset Current Operations

HERE endeth the first half of 1913, with building material men sitting around heavy of face and gloomy of heart, and their voice ladened with plaint of dull times; but is such an attitude warranted?

In the brick market, for instance, up to June 20, twelve more barge loads of Hudson river common brick had arrived than in the corresponding period last year, and sixty more barge loads had been sold than in the same period during 1912. About 100,000,000 brick of last year's output is still unsold in the Hudson River sheds as against almost 200,000,000 brick last year at this time. In the first half of 1912 the average wholesale market price for North river brick was about $6.37½ to $6.72½, while the average price for the same brick during the first half of this year was from $6.75 to $7.25.

Portland cement at this time last year sold at $1.48 a barrel, while the same product this year is bringing $1.58 and is stiff at that level. During the first half of 1912 hardwood lumber brought $2 a thousand less than it brought in the first six months of 1913. General building grades brought prices all the way from $1 to $1.50 more during the last six months just closed than they did in the corresponding period of a year ago. Lime was from five to ten cents a barrel lower in the first half of last June than it is at present, and in addition to that consumers are getting a standard barrel of 300 pounds now, whereas they were not sure whether they were getting uniform weight a year ago.

Steel is one exception to the general stiffness of prices at the end of the current half year, but this is only a temporary shading, designed to stimulate orders, and as an indication of the general crumbling in the market, pig iron is also down, but reductions have been made chiefly because of the falling off in demand for steel shapes, consequently pig iron producers have suffered. Architectural terra cotta, which can not be measured by prices, has had a good average season so far. Granite and other building stones have done fairly well, although prices have been shaded at times where competition has been unusually keen. The volume of paints that has been turned out of the leading factories has not been restricted, despite the fact that the enactment of proposed tariff legislation would seriously effect the raw material entering into its manufacture. Furthermore, the consuming paint market had a very encouraging half year, which usually is the case when construction is restricted.

This brings us up to the cause for the curtailment of new building operations in the East during the six months just closed. No two persons agree as to the actual cause of a drop of about 33 1/3 per cent. of the volume of new building construction in New York. It is doubtful if there is any one factor which has been responsible for it. It is significant that on the first of June building construction throughout the whole country was one per cent. in advance of the total volume for 1912, which was a boom year. At the same time Eastern construction fell away from last year's record approximately one-third. In the first place, the tariff unsettled the securities market. In the second place, New York City, where the greatest stimulus to statistics emanates, found itself surfeited with too many buildings of one type per district, with the result that prospective builders did not see their way clear to invest as heavily as they otherwise might have done.

The fact that a new building code was in course of compilation was also a deterrent to new building projects. That there was to be a general breaking away of prices in the building material market as a result of the disturbance in the financial market, caused by pending tariff legislation, led many investors to believe that they could save considerable money in the cost of their materials by waiting for a sick market. Investors began to realize early in April that, instead of mills being overstocked and ready to sell at a sacrifice, in order to obtain working capital during the spring money stringency, that they were not only holding their prices firm, but in many cases actually advancing them, because their stocks were low and their terms rigid. As the open winter permitted general building construction, the retail yard stocks were seriously depleted, so that the estimates made by the wholesalers were entirely set at naught, and much of the spring reserve that manufacturers would have otherwise carried was sapped by general hand-to-mouth buying throughout the Metropolitan district which has continued even up to the present time.

Nobody looks for anything startling in the second half of this year because the renting market has not proved itself able for the time being to absorb the loft and office space now available. But the principal scene of building activity is expected to be shifted from the heart of Manhattan to its outskirts during the next six months, and in the following year, 1914, the close proximity of the opening of the new transportation lines will probably result in a great building movement in the suburbs.

There is no reason to be gloomy over the future. The second half of the year, judging from present indications, should provide a moderate volume of business. The speculator will begin to show some activity as soon as the tariff bill passes, and with most of the building material manufacturers forced to keep their supplies low because of the scarcity of labor, it is entirely probable that at the end of the ensuing six months manufacturers will find that they can take a profit that will be considered fair for a normal building year, considering the handicaps that business has had to meet during a twelve-months whose last two digits end with a 13.

BRICK IN LIGHT DEMAND.

Price Splitting a Feature of Week's Business—Few Out at Top.

NORTH RIVER common brick continues in light demand. Prices showed some signs of weakening at top where split-shilling quotations were made in some instances. Sales were fewer than arrivals, which accounts for the weakness in prices. Raritan Rivers are firm in Brooklyn. Raritans and Hackensacks in Newark and vicinity are active in demand and quotatiosn are holding firm. Few Connecticuts are coming into the market now, except on specified jobs in the upper Bronx.

STRUCTURAL STEEL OUTPUT.

1912 Statistics Just Compiled Show Tremendous Consumption.

COMPLAINT frequently is heard that the volume of business taken by building material producers this year does not compare with that taken for a corresponding period last year. As a matter of fact such a comparison is not fair because, as official statistics for 1912 come out, it is more and more evident that the year preceding this was distinctly abnormal whereas this one is barely a normal one. Recently the brick consumption figures for this market were announced showing record breaking conditions in many instances. Now comes the report of the American Iron and Steel Institute showing a greater tonnage of structural shapes turned out than ever before and in view of the fact that the behavior of the steel and iron markets have an intimate bearing upon those of almost every other building material, the following statistics are of more than passing interest: The total production of heavy and light structural shapes in 1912 amounted to 2,846,487 gross tons, of which 2,470,415 tons were heavy and 376,072 tons were light structural shapes. All the heavy shapes were rolled from steel, while of the light shapes 5,517 tons were rolled frim iron and 370,555 tons were rolled from steel. As the classification adopted for 1912 differs materially from that used in both 1911 and 1910, we have not compared the output in 1912 with the output in 1911 or 1910.

In the following table the production of heavy and light structural shapes by states is separately given for 1912:

New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania	1,968,967	204,650	2,173,617
Alabama and Ohio	6,818	66,323	73,141
Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Col. and Cal.	494,630	105,099	599,729
Total	2,470,415	376,072	2,846,487

The production of structural shapes since 1909 by states was as follows: See the explanatory statement above in relation to the change in classifications in collecting the statistics for 1912:

States—Gross tons	1909.	1910.
New York & New Jersey.	177,483	1,853,407
Pennsylvania	1,642,074
Alabama & Ohio	60,213	40,433
Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Colorado & Cal.	395,792	373,050
Total	2,275,562	2,266,890
	1911.	1912.
New York & New Jersey.	1,565,457	122,773
Pennsylvania		2,050,844
Alabama & Ohio	30,773	73,144
Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Colorado & Cal.	316,137	599,729
Total	1,912,367	2,846,487

In 1912 there were 38 works in ten states which rolled heavy or light structural shapes, as follows: New York, 2; New Jersey, 2; Pennsylvania, 20; Alabama, 1; Ohio, 4; Indiana, 3; Illinois, 3; Wisconsin, 1; Colorado, 1, and California, 1.

The following table gives the approximate annual consumption of iron and steel structural shapes in this country from 1900 to 1912 in gross tons, imports for each year having been added and exports deducted. Iron structural shapes were not separated from steel structural shapes for 1900 1901, 1902 or 1903. Imports were included with ingots, billets, etc., prior to 1903:

THE WEEK'S REAL ESTATE NEWS

Brokerage Sales, Auctions, Foreclosure Suits, Building Loans, etc., Together With Brief Personal Items.

The Middle and Upper West Side Sustained the Market this Week.

The real estate market was quiet this week. Queens contributed the largest transaction, the purchase of 70 lots to be improved with 68 dwellings. In Manhattan the sales were few and inconspicuous, the biggest deals being trades of a loft building on East 24th street for dwellings in the East 30's, and the trade of West 27th street property for downtown parcels.

Trade continues its invasion of exclusive residential sections. This week two dressmakers purchased properties in West 55th street and West 56th street.

The total number of sales in Manhattan this week was 24.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 13 against 8 last week and 5 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 11 compared with 20 last week and 14 a year ago.

From the Bronx 11 sales at private contract were reported, against 9 last week and 10 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $1,311,647, compared with $3,012,078 last week, making a total since January 1 of $33,376,098. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $459,500, making the total since January 1, 1912, $28,848,063.

Loans on Concrete

Conservative financial institutions of the city, such as the Title Guarantee and Trust Co., and the Equitable Life Insurance Co., have placed loans on reinforced concrete warehouse, factory and loft buildings because they know that such buildings, properly erected, are profitable and a safe risk.

Usually, the only question they ask is, "Who is the Contractor?"

LITTLE FARM SALE.—Another proof of the initiative of Joseph P. Day's office in planning new ideas comes in the form of a lithographed folder in colors, advertising a "Little Farm" auction sale to be held by him at Terrace Garden on July 15 next. This sale will be the second night auction sale that Mr. Day will have held in his business career.

THE GREENWICH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH has obtained permission from Justice Giegerich of the Supreme Court to sell its property on the southwest corner of 21 av and 14th st, 77.6x 143xirregular, for $200,000 to the Church Extension Committee of the Presbytery of New York. The proceeds of the sale will be applied toward the enlargement of the endowment fund of the Greenwich Presbyterian Church.

THE MORGENTHAU, JR., CO., has placed for Charles J. and Gustav Benisch a first mortgage loan of $25,000 on their plant at Jamaica and Railroad avs, Cypress Hills, Brooklyn, N. Y. The monument and granite works of Messrs. Benisch Bros. has been located on this property for about 40 years. The proceeds of the loan have been used by the firm in the purchase of additional granite quarries in Maine.

THE 303 5TH AV. CO. was incorporated on Saturday with a capital of $750,000 and the following directors: Theodore M. Tonnelle, James C. Higgins and Thomas C. Curtis, Jr. The company will take over the 20-sty loft building at the northeast corner of 5th av and 31st st, sold recently in foreclosure proceedings to Campbell Carrington, chairman of the Bondholders' Committee of the Improved Property Holding Co.

ACTIVITY IN QUEENS.

Effect of the New Trolley Road—A New Land Development.

One of the latest important phases of the suburban real estate market is the renewed activity at Rosedale, which is the eastern terminus of the new trolley road through Queens borough, which is destined to be completed by July 1. This is the road which extends across Queensborough Bridge to Manhattan. It will be the first trolley road to run across the Borough of Queens and connect directly with Manhattan for a five-cent fare. The circumstance spells a rapid change in the landscape of eastern Queens the same as the trolley roads through upper Brooklyn caused a wide lot selling and building movement there two decades ago.

The logical result of the operation of the new trolley road through Queens will be the influx of residential population to Rosedale and other points on the route, from middle Manhattan, because that part of the metropolis is on a direct line with Queens and the trolley road will remove all devious routes between the two boroughs. Rosedale is at the head of Jamaica Bay and is just within the boundaries of the city. A new land development is being made at a point southwest of the station while there is an extensive lot development right at the station, it having been laid out by the Windsor Land & Improvement Company a few years ago.

All property in Rosedale has shown an upward trend for the reason that the community is on the electrified Long Beach division as well as on the steam Montauk division of the Long Island Railroad. But, the five cent fare on the new trolley road must necessarily result in an active building movement at Rosedale with a resultant further increment in lot values. The new trolley road means a new five-cent fare zone in the greater city with all the salutary accompaniments.

Closely linked henceforth are Rosedale, Jamaica and other important places along the line of the road, notably Long Island City, where the Queens County court house and borough offices are situated. Eastern Queens from now onward is linked to its western part for a five-cent fare as well as to Manhattan.

Steel Ceilings that Look Like Timber.

Tremendous progress is being made in the perfection of the steel ceiling. Among the notable innovations along this line in the recent past being the introduction of the craftsman idea in ceiling design executed in metal by Northrop, Coburn & Dodge Co., of 40 Cherry street. This is a beam ceiling wherein both sides and end edges of the sheet fit into grooves or channels of the adjoining pieces, and the end of the small beams fit into the grooves of the large beams. All the nailing is in the solid flanges so that the full beauty of a quartered oak beamed ceiling is returned in the finished job without any nail indentures. This company makes imitation wood-beam ceilings to correspond with any scheme of decoration. The practical utility of a metal ceiling is nowhere better demonstrated than in the following case:

In 1887 metal ceilings were put throughout the four-story building at the northeast corner of 125th street and Seventh avenue, now occupied by a well-known grocery firm. A few years afterwards the entire fourth story and roof were burned off, and the entire building flooded with water. At an expense of $15 and repainting, the then remaining ceilings were restored, and are still looking well. Such instances are of frequent occurrence, and in a great many cases the metal ceilings have prevented the spread of flames. Other instances of the durability of steel ceilings are those in the Cary Building, 105-107 Chambers street, and the building at 86 and 88 Chambers street, put up in 1889; the Parsons Building, 149-151 Franklin st, put up in 1888. A water tank on the roof of this building burst a few years ago and the ceiling was flooded, but it seems to be in perfect order to-day.

THE ASTOR ESTATE.

Schedule of the Real Estate as Reported to the Surrogate by the State Tax Appraiser.

The report of the State Transfer Tax Appraiser, who was designated to appraise the estate of Col. John Jacob Astor, as filed in the Surrogates Office, places the value of the real estate at $63,124,321, and the value of the entire estate at $85,311,228 net. The appraising was done by one expert in each line. Robert E. Dowling was the appraiser for the property in the Broadway and Fifth avenue sections, Clarence J. Ramsey for lower West Side parcels, Joseph P. Day for premises in Harlem and The Bronx, and Clarence W. Eckhardt appraised the East Side property.

The papers show that the real estate appraisers chosen by agreement assessed the property in Manhattan and The Bronx at nearly $10,000,000 more than the property is taxed by the city, or an increase of about 20 per cent.

The real and personal property was appraised in five parts, first of which was the property owned outright by Col. Astor. This was valued at $51,258,388, of which $31,987,000 was real estate and $15,986,890 was stocks and bonds.

The second schedule of property embraced real estate and securities in a trust fund established by Col. Astor's father, of which he had the life use and testamentary disposition. The real estate in this fund was worth $29,457,770, and securities and cash raised the total to $33,238,981.

As the real estate schedule is a document of the highest value to real estate men as a fair estimate by private parties of the value of typical properties in all parts of New York, it is reproduced in essential form as a matter of record.

AWAIT U. S. FLAX REPORT.
Linseed Interests Look for Some Price Fluctuation Before July 10.

THE annual report of the Department of Agriculture relating to the available supply of flaxseed is due on July 10, and already there is some nervousness apparent among holders. Upon publication of the report prices may fluctuate in the oil market. Should the acreage show a material decline oil prices may go up, but earlier prophesies indicated a good crop which may result from a greater yield per acre. The American reserve can stand a decrease of 6,000,000 bushels without dangerously disturbing the market. Crushers want to see oil at 50 cents and seed at $1.50. Current prices (June 26) were 47 and 48 cents, city, raw. There is little speculative buying, showing that paint and varnish interests expect little change from current quotations.

Stained and Leaded Glass for the House.

Among the architectural accessories that lend refinement to the dwelling house are to be considered windows of stained and leaded glass. Stained glass, as distinguished from leaded glass, is that material which depends primarily upon color for its effect, whereas leaded glass is dependent upon the lines of lead that form a patterned network to hold the bits of plain glass that compose the whole panel, and rarely contain color at all, although occasionally color is introduced in a slight degree into the decorative scheme.

There are, of course, certain rooms in the house where windows of stained glass will find their most appropriate setting. In the library—that is to say, in the room which is a real library—the stained glass window above the book shelves may form a most appropriate decorative feature, and while admitting a certain amount of light, will obviate the strong crosslights that would otherwise result from the use of windows throughout of clear glass. In some instances small window spaces above the book shelves have been filled by portrait heads in stained glass, and in other instances larger spaces have been occupied by landscape windows worked out with subdued or glowing tints, as good taste determines.

Hall, staircase and music room windows of stained glass are appropriate in the proper setting, and in town houses, where the rear of the dwelling has an unpleasant outlook and yet must give place to the dining-room, stained glass windows let in a sufficient amount of light and yet screen the undesirable view. Naturally one does not look for large figure composition in stained glass windows intended for small rooms. —House and Garden.

DISAPPROVED.

The Painting of Bathrooms.

Probably the most satisfactory painted treatment of bathroom walls is in stenciled tile effects, says the Decorator. The entire wall may be given this tile effect, or the tile design may be carried up as a dado to a height of some five feet where it should be capped with the border, and the wall painted in a plain tint above. For these tile designs light colors should be used in imitation of the tiles most generally used in bathrooms. Delft colorings are very popular, either dull blue or dull green on white or ivory white.

Blue green on a background of pale cream is very pleasing, or a more pronounced green on a pale pink ground. Very light lemon yellow might be used as a ground color with the design stenciled in a light ochre tint. The color should be mixed so as to dry with a gloss. A good result could be obtained by mixing the color very thick for the last coat and adding a certain proportion of varnish, then stippling it on the wall in such a manner as to give a roughened effect. A coat of outside or flowing coach varnish over this would give the work the mellow tone that many of the art tiles have.

It is remarkable how conspicuously the tiniest bit of dust that may get worked into the varnish will show up when the work is finished, and great care must therefore be taken that dust is not present.

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no offcial designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1913.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instance names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page, is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.
